RALLY STARTS CHEST'S DRIVE FOR FUND GOAL

Chest Needs Told 3,000 Workers for Relief Cause.

SPECIAL GIFTS BODY NOW $250,000 SHORT

Red Cross' National Head Is Among Speakers Supporting Appeal.

More than 3,000 workers and well wishers of the Community Chest gathered at Constitution Hall last night for final instructions in the campaign for $1,950,154.40, which opens in earnest today, and to take inspiration from the words of a numbers of prominent speakers who told of the needs in Washington this year.

The mass meeting was closed with a dash of color, as member agencies of the Chest presented a pageant, which was designed to give an insight into their work.

The solicitors of the metropolitan, group solicitation, governmental and other units, which begin their task today, were spurred to intensive efforts by the report of the special gifts committee last night, which found itself more that $250,000 short of its goal of $1,000,000.

Hear Red Cross Needs.

This unit, however, expects to reach its quota by the end of the week, and a preliminary report of the governmental unit made last night showed a tendency toward whole-hearted support by Federal workers in the city.

The appeal of the Red Cross, which receives $100,000 of the funds raised this year by the Community Chest, as Washington's share of the drought-relief emergency, was presented by Judge John Barton Payne, national chairman of the American Red Cross, in the opening address at the mass meeting.

Judge Payne said that the Red Cross was now feeding 641,000 men, women and children in the States affected by the drought. The work of the Red Cross began in August, he related. After the rains in that month, he said, the organization gave $300,000 for seed, to allow stricken farmers to prepare a crop against the winter.

Minimum of Overhead.

He said that the Red Cross was conducting its work with a minimum of overhead, because the funds were administered through the organization's chapters in the various communities, which were headed by their own residents.

The work was being speeded and would continue, despite the criticism of the press, he declared. The drive for 10,000,000 was retarded by the introduction of the $25,000,000 relief bill in Congress, in his view.

"It is a fine compliment to the Red Cross that the bill specifically states that the organization is to administer the funds provided through it," Judge Payne declared. "Of course, we'll never ge the money, but the compliment is appreciated just the same.

BRIAND IS NAMED IN FRENCH CABINET

New Ministries Are Lined Up Definitely by Laval This Morning.

17 OFFICES ARE FILLED

Paris, Tuesday, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Pierre Laval, who has been working several days to assemble a new French cabinet, succeeded definitely in lining up his ministries at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The Laval cabinet is as follows:

Minister of justice, Leon Berard.

Foreign affairs, Aristide Briand.

Agriculture, Andre Tardieu.

War, Andre Maginot.

Navy, Charles Dumont.

Air, Jacques Louis Dumesnil.

Education, Mario Roustan.

Finance, Pierre Etienne Flandin.

Budget, Francois Pietri.

Public works, Maurice Deligne.

Commerce, Louis Rollin.

Merchant marine, Louis de Chappedelaine.

Colonies, Paul Reynaud.

M. Laval—who incidentially is only 47 years old and thus probably the youngest premier France has ever seen—formed his cabinet only after laborious negotiations.

It leans to the right even more than did the last Tardieu ministry, defections among the radicals having made "the republican reconciliation" ministry desired by the new premier impossible.

M. Laval will present his ministers to President Gaston Doumergue this morning and they will get to work without delay.

Observers believe that their chances for survival are slight and that the country soon will go through another period of premier-hunting.

The ministry of public health was left temporarily unfilled.

Two Thought Dead In $5,000,000 Fire

Buena Ventura, Colombia, Has Business District Razed by Blaze.

Buena Ventura, Colombia, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Two persons were believed to have died today in flames which destroyed the commercial district of this Pacific port, with a loss of $5,000,000. The fire, police are convinced, was incendiary.

The only important commercial structures still standing are the new $4,000,000 concrete wharves, recently accepted by the government, and the new Hotel Estacion.

The customs house was destroyed. Officials estimated that it had contained American imports worth $1,500,000. The Banco London and the Canadian Royal Bank burned to the ground, but their cash and securities were believed safe in the fireproof vaults. Ramirez Duran, a shopkeeper, reported he shot at two men who were igniting the rear wall of a store. This building was destroyed.

(Associated Press.)

Commissioner of Customs Eble announced yesterday that customs inspectors have seized 600 pounds of opium on the steamer Raby Castle in New York Harbor.

$250,000 Drought Aid Given by Rockefeller

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The New York Chapter of the American Red Cross announced late today that John D. Rockefeller, jr., has contributed $250,000 toward the fund for the relief of drought sufferers.

His gifts brought the total contributions to the New York chapter to $962,966.58. The chapter's quota has been set at $1,500,000.

$3,412,000,000 HELD COST OF CASH BONUSES

SENATE GROUP GETS CERTIFICATES PLAN

(Associated Press.)

An estimate that $3,412,000,000 would be required for immediate cash redemption of adjusted service certificates at face value was given the Senate finance committee yesterday by Frank T. Hines, administrator of veteran affairs.

Hines was the first witness as the committee opened hearings on the proposal, which was indorsed Sunday by the national executive committee of the American Legion, and is being demanded by some members of both houses to afford relief to veterans in need because of the depression.

Loans to them on their certificates have increased during the present month to a figure far in excess of any previous month, he said.

Demands Are General.

So far this month, he testified, loans amounting to $17,000,000 have been made and they are being provided at the rate of about $1,000,000 a day, whereas formerly they have averaged between $5,000,000 and $7,000,000 a month.

Demands for the loans are not confined to any one section and part of the Nation, he said.

The veterans administrator presented the Senate committee with a comprehensive set of figures to show the cost of all the various proposals which have been made for giving the World War soldiers cash for their service certificates. Immediate cash redemption of the certificates on the basis of their current value would cost $1,707,507,000, he testified.

Immediate cash payment of their face value, as of 1945, would cost $3,412,000,000, he said, but the Government would save about $1,000,000 a year between now and then in administrative costs.

Hines Makes Estimate.

This would amount to increasing the soldiers' bonus by $1,670,000,000, however, he told the committee, taking into account interest charges on the amount of money which otherwise would not be needed until 1945.

Hines estimated the cost of the bill proposed by Representative Garner, of Texas, minority leader of the House, to pay the current value of the certificates plus the full 25 per cent additional credit given by the act of 1925, would cost $2,120,000,000.

He said he was not prepared to estimate the cost of the compromise bill introduced by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, to allow veterans to borrow up to 50 per cent of the face value of their certificates.

This would allow veterans to borrow on the average $300 each, he estimated, which would "meet the greatest need at this time."

"One advantages of this measure," Hines said, "is that it does allow the veteran to retain for the present an equity in the certificate and protect his family because of his death."

He pointed out, however, that if a veteran borrowed 50 per cent of the

Edwards Takes Life; Once in U. S. Senate

Banker Had Also Served as Governor of New Jersey.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Edward I. Edwards, who rose from a $2-a-week bank runner to exalted posts of government and finance, and who lost both, together with his health in recent years, committed suicide last night, by shooting, in the bedroom of his apartment. He was 68 years old.

A note, the sealed envelope addressed to his daughter and a slip of paper within to his son, said "Goodbye—Dad," and directed attention to his insurance policies and private papers.

The body of the former New Jersey governor and United States senator was found today by Charles Baumgarten, friend and legal advisor, whose fear for Mr. Edwards was aroused when he failed to keep an appointment. He knew that Edwards had removed a revolver from a drawer at his office.

In the locked bedroom, where the body was found, it was noted that Edwards, intent upon death was mindful of the well-being of a pet. He had filled to overflowing a water trough and food cup for his parrot.

Col. Edward I. Edwards, jr., and Miss Elizabeth Edwards announced tonight the funeral services would be held Wednesday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Miss Edwards, who made her home with her father, was in a state of collapse and delayed opening the note her father addressed to her for several hours.

8 WITNESSES HEARD IN BRADY BOMB CASE

EXPLOSION IS DESCRIBED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 26.—Eight State witnesses were called to the stand today as the retrial of LeRoy Brady, charged jointly with his brother, Herman Brady, with dispatching a bomb disguised as a Christmas present, and resulting in the death of his wife, Naomi Brady; her brother, Samuel, and sister, Dorothy, was begun in the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court. Judge Robert Moss presided.

The witnesses told of the horrible details of the bombing and the events leading up to it, before the last witness, Edward Herman Smith, jr., was halted by the announcement that the court would adjourn until tomorrow morning. Smith will be recalled to the stand tomorrow.

The State was represetned today by State's Attorney A. Theodore Brady, of Anne Arundel County; J. Frank Parran, former State's attorney, of Prince Georges County; Allen Bowie, present State's Attorney of Prince Georges County, and J. Wilson Ryon, special investigator for Prince Georges County. The defense was headed by M. Hampton Magruder, of Upper Marlboro, who had charge of the previous hearing. He is being assisted by former State's Attorney Nicholas H. Green, of Anne Arundel County; Lansdale G. Sasscer and Frank Hall, both of Upper Marlboro. Attorney Green handled the challenging of witnesses for the defense.

Selecting the jury was completed much more expediently than anticipated.

The jury, of which Thomas W. Williams is foreman, was finally composed as follows: William H. Moone, Robert L. Pumphrey, Clifford Bassford, Albert A. Waters, Charles Taylor, Walter McNew, Fernanda Weems, Gilbert H. Clarke, William I. Cook, John E. Ellison and Malcolm M. Stewart.

Ryon made the opening address to

MORTGAGE BANKERS FILE BANKRUPT PLEA

ESTABLISHED SINCE 1869

Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., one of Washington's largest real estate and investment houses, yesterday filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in District of Columbia Supreme Court. No schedule of liabilities or assets were included, the ten-day period of grace being reserved.

The company immediately closed its doors, but it was intimated that a petition for receivership might be filed today, under which, it was understood, the firm might resume business immediately.

Justice William Hitz, shortly after the filing of the petition, signed an order of adjudication, and referred the matter of Fred J. Eden, referee in bankruptcy.

The petition was signed by Edmund D. Rheem, vice president of the concern, and was filed through the law firm of Tobriner & Graham. Mr. Rheem acted on authorization of the board of directors, which at a meeting earlier in the day at the company's offices, 727 Fifteenth street northwest, decided it was unable to pay its debts. It also was set out that the company was willing to surrender its assets for the satisfaction of its creditors.

This company of mortgage bankers would have been 62 years old April 1. One of the oldest business houses in the National Capital, it first opened it doors in 1869 for the transaction of a general real estate business on Seventh street northwest near the intersection of F street, later moving to its own office at 916 F street, where the organization was known as the B. H. Warner Co.

Early in the history of the company the handling of first mortgage investments took a predominating part in its affairs, so that gradually other branches of the real estate business were discarded in order that it might better serve its rapidly in-

NEED FOR WAR SEEN IF INDIAN PARLEYS FAIL

MacDonald Opens Fight for Plan Approved by Conferees.

CHURCHILL ATTACKS GOVERNMENT STAND

Gandhi, Released, Expects to Be Back in Prison in Two Months.

London, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Great Britain must negotiate peacefully with India or subdue that country's massed millions by force of arms, Premier Ramsay MacDonald warned the House of Commons today in an outspoken defense of the accomplishments of the recent round-table conference.

Other speakers who followed him in the debate on India, which began this afternoon, accepted his point of view, to a greater or less degree, but Winston Churchill raised his voice in protest. Churchill declared the Government's scheme of Dominion status, "accompanied by a host of important reservations," was the worst way of dealing with the problem.

Continue Negotiations.

"Unless Great Britain is willing," he said, "to continue peaceful negotiations for a settlement of the Indian problem, British soldiers must be marched from the Himalayas to Cape Gormorin to subdue by force, not only India's massed millions, but also the spirit of the times."

A refusal to approve the principles accepted by the round-table conference, he said, would "provide a spectacle which will bring our name and fame very low, indeed," while a continuance of the negotiations would bind India to Great Britain "by bonds of confidence."

Mr. Churchill insisted that he spoke only for himself and not for the Conservative party as a whole.

Opposes Proposal.

"I think that the goal of complete severance between Great Britain and India, except for traditions and sentiments," he said, "is a frightful prospect."

"How will the British nation feel about this? I am told that they will not care. They are too occupied with taxation and unemployment and absorbed in sport and crime."

The Conservative speaker likened the present situation with regard to India to a shipwreck at sea.

"A great liner," he said, "is sinking in a calm sea. One bulkhead goes after another. The list increases and the captain, officers and crew are in the saloon dancing to a jazz band.

Sees Sharp Awakening.

"But wait until the passengers find out what their position is. For 30 years I have watched manifestations of the will power of Great Britain, and when the nation finds her whole position is in jeopardy there will be a sharp awakening."

Among those who gave their benediction to Mr. MacDonald's view was Sir John Simon, who headed the commission bearing his name in an investigation of the whole Indian situation, and whose subsequent report was superseded by the work of the round table conference and Mr. MacDonald's declaration in favor of

RAPS DRY BILL

SENATOR WALTER F. GEORGE, of Georgia, a dry, who yesterday assailed the drastic search and seizure features of the Howell bill.

George Is Applauded by Gallery as He Hits Search Plan.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT MEASURE IS BEATEN

Borah Raps Proposed Law as Invasion of Homes; Debate General.

Wet and dry senators joined in attacking the home-raid provisions of the Howell prohibition enforcement bill for the National Capital when consideration of the measure was resumed in the Senate yesterday.

But Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), of Nebraska, author of the bill, was not left standing alone to defend the home-raid provisions he wrote into the measure, several of the ultra-dry senators joining him in approving its provisions and opposing the amendment offered by Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, to make the search and seizure provisions against private dwellings conform to the provisions of the Volstead act.

Several times in the course of the afternoon it seemed as if a vote would be had on the Blaine amendment, but each time another senator arose to say something about it.

Galleries Applaud George.

Once the galleries broke into applause when Senator Walter F. George (Democrat), of Georgia, a dry, opposing the home-raid provisions, declared that what was needed was proper enforcement activities by officers and not such laws as this. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, who was presiding, rapped with his gavel and threatened to have the galleries cleared. The applause began and was mostly confined to the public gallery for men.

An effort by Senator Harry B. Hawes (Democrat), of Missouri, to have the bill recommitted to the Senate judiciary committee was defeated by a vote of 28 to 45.

Notice was given by Senator Hawes that the bill would be made the vehicle for another amendment to the national prohibition laws. There is an adage in Missouri, he said, that even a blind hog finds an acorn now and then, and the Wickersham commission had found one in its recommendation to remove restrictions on the prescription of liquor by physicians. Removal of existing restrictions is to be provided for in an amendment he will offer to the Howell bill, Senator Hawes said.

Howell Urges His Bill.

Senator Howell began debate on his bill with a speech in justification of its home raid provisions, in the course of which he repeated what he had said previously about Washington being a sanctuary for bootleggers and how wet the city was and how little effort there was to enforce the law, and how badly needed was additional authority for the police.

He criticized Washington newspapers for calling his bill a home raid bill and declared that the people of the city did not have a very clear conception of just what were its provisions.

Several times he declared that, far from opposing his bill, Attorney General Mitchell had drafted the bill and, once when he was pressed, he added that he meant with the exception of one or two phrases, here and there. One of these little phrases, which is opposed by the Attorney General, is contained in the search and seizure section and is designed to make easy the process of raiding private dwellings suspected of having liquor or stills, or other apparatus for production of liquor.

Law Interpretations Attacked.

Every time Senator Howell referred to "liquor" he took time to roll the word and emphasize it as though the word, in itself, was enough to completely justify the phraseology under attack. Several times in the course of the day other senators, among them George and Borah, and Walsh, of Massachusetts, and

BULLETS, GUN FOUND IN SEWER BY POLICE

CASE GIVEN GRAND JURY

Within two hours of the opening of grand jury hearings in the Beulah Limerick murder case yesterday, sewer department searchers, working under the guidance of Detective Sergeant James C. Collins, discovered eleven .25-caliber automatic nickel-jacketed pistol bullets in a sewer trap at the corner of Second and D streets southeast.

Redoubling their efforts, the same squad opened the sewer on the opposite corner and there discovered a part of a cylinder of a .32-caliber revolver.

The sewer in which the bullets were found is just around the corner from the home of Beulah Limerick's mother, at 116 North Carolina avenue southeast.

Detectives of the homicide squad on comparing notes found that Vernon Limerick passed the corner on the way to notify his mother that "Beulah was either awfully sick or dead" and that members of the family traversed the same route on their way to see the girl.

The bullets had been in the sewer some time, detectives said, since they were slightly corroded. They were turned over to Lieut. John Fowler, ballistics expert of the department, who declared that while they were exactly the same type used by the slayer, they were of different makes. This point might not make any difference, the lieutenant said, inasmuch as a man of small means might purchase a loose lot in a store and might get several makes. Lieut. Fowler will test the missiles today.

The search of sewers began in the vicinity of the Nineteenth street address Friday. Every trap from there to the family's home on North Carolina avenue was opened. Darkness overtook the searchers last night in the immediate vicinity of the latter

Senate Approves 20,000,000 Bushels of Wheat for Needy

Early House Action Is Forecast on Relief Measures, While Woods Speeds Hearing After Charges of Time-Wasting Are Hurled.

(Associated Press.)

A bill authorizing distribution for relief purposes of 20,000,000 bushels of wheat now held by the Federal Farm Board last night was passed by the Senate.

The measure was passed without opposition and now goes to the House. It provides the Farm Board shall turn the wheat over to an agency to be selected by President Hoover for distribution to drought-stricken and unemployed in need of food.

The cost of milling the wheat and distribution would be borne by the agency selected by the President.

The Farm Board would be credited with the cost of the wheat, so the bill would not affect its operations.

Senators have contended the measure amounts to a direct Federal appropriation of about $15,000,000. When the bill first came up last night Senator Metcalf (Republican), Rhode Island, objected. Later, however, on the request of the author, Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, Mr. Metcalf withdrew his objection.

Early House action on the Senate's $25,000,000 Red Cross relief proposal was forecast late yesterday when Chairman Wood, of the House appropriations committee, announced plans to complete hearings by tomorrow.

The announcement came after an all-day hearing at which Secretary Hyde testified the Agriculture Department was speeding up plans to loan $45,000,000 to drought-stricken farmers, and Thomas H. MacDonald, public roads commissioner, said 300,000 men will be employed soon under Federal and State highway projects.

First indications were that the hearing would occupy a week. After a day, however, during which Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, ranking minority member, had charged the committee was "wasting time," and Representative Ayres (Democrat), Kansas, said he assumed the hearings were to show that the $25,000,000 was unnecessary, the plans were changed.

Representative Cramton (Republican), Michigan, although declaring he had an open mind on the proposition,

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Winter is an important factor in our economic structure. We have great stretches of country, including the South Atlantic States, Florida, the Gulf region and the Mexican border land reaching through southern California to the Pacific, which is unrivaled in climate and beauty. Excellent railway service, good roads and fine hotel accommodations make it most attractive to tourists.

Foreign travel is commendable. It is not necessary even to see America first. But to see the other parts of the world while our own country is unseen not only means lack of a desirable education but is scarcely patriotic.

Our people spend annually six or eight hundred million dollars in foreign travel. On the whole it is a good investment. But it should not be done to the exclusion of domestic travel. People come from all quarters of the globe to behold the wonders of our own land. We ought not to remain ignorant of them ourselves.

It may well be remembered that money now expended in travel will be an aid to business. Every dollar so invested is turned over many times and, reaching in numerous directions, will stimulate trade and increase employment.

International Issue Seen Over Rum-Craft Slaying

Canadian Government Studies Facts Surrounding Capture of Josephine K.; Lawyer Says Ship Was Outside Limit; Protest May Follow.

(Associated Press.)

Canada requested the State Department to supply it with information on the seizure of the Nova Scotian schooner Josephine K, and the death of her captain, after the Coast Guard had fired on the vessel.

The affray occurred Saturday night off the New Jersey coast, near New York Harbor. A 1-pound shell from Coast Guard cutter 145 shattered the pilot house of the Josephine K. The schooner, $300,000 worth of liquor, a scow, a tug, and fifteen men were captured. William P. Cluett, of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, master of the Josephine K, died Sunday in a New York hospital.

Assistant Secretary Lowman of the Treasury, in charge of the Coast Guard, conferred yesterday with President Hoover. He issued a statement shortly afterward saying the Coast Guard was "performing its statutory duty," in the capture of the vessel.

A little later, Hume Wrong, Charge d'Affaires of the Canadian Legation, called on Assistant Secretary Castle, of the State Department for information. Pending a study of the circumstances no protest was made.

Lowman said it was "regrettable that the captain lost his life," but that the fatality was "simply an incident to the transaction." He expressed confidence that the Coast Guard "did not fire with the intention of taking life, but to prevent the rumrunner escaping."

The Josephine K. was well within the 12-mile limit, he said, and was making contact with American boats from the shore.

He described the schooner as a "notorious rumrunner," which the Coast Guard had been seeking to capture for a long time.

Under the antirum smuggling convention of 1924, between the United States and Canada, smuggling vessels are subject to search and seizure only if within one hour's steaming distance of the American shore.

The Coast Guard estimated the Montana, disagreed with his interpretation of existing law and said that court decisions and practice could not be as he described it.

"But the strange fact is that that is the situation here," Senator Howell said, and he would not budge an iota from that defense of his home-raid provision. That was his Gibraltar, and the waves of arguments of his colleagues dashed against it in vain.

Senator Vandenberg asked the Nebraskan to agree that the Attorney General opposed the provisions and that the Attorney General was not interested in keeping Washington a sanctuary for bootleggers. Senator Howell said the Attorney General was not opposed to his measure, but merely had said that he thought it "inexpedient to attempt to get through the Senate a bill containing such provisions."

Unfamiliar With Conditions.

And anyway, Mr. Howell went on, Attorney General Mitchell was new in Washington, and he didn't know much about conditions and neither did Assistant Attorney General Youngquist, but he had had the advice of Judge Britt, of the Prohibition Bureau, who knew a great deal more.

Twenty-nine States had search and seizure laws more drastic than the national prohibition law, he said, and Washington was one of only five geographical divisions which did not. He quoted Sergt. George H. Little and Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman, heads of liquor raiding squadrons of the District Police Department, as his authorities for demanding more stringent laws for the District. Under existing law, he insisted, bootleg liquor stored in private dwellings could not be got at unless there had been a sale made in the house.

Senator George, Senator Walsh and others gave him a lecture on law and legal phraseology and definitions, in disagreeing with his statement, but he replied that the remarkable thing is that that is the condition here.

Sheppard Aids Howell.

Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, author of the Sheppard law for the District, came to the support of his dry colleague from Nebraska with a declaration that any one voting for the Blaine amendment would be voting to maintain bootlegging in Washington. Prohibition, he said, was a part of the Constitution and should be observed.

"Pass this amendment and you will say that effective enforcement of prohibition is not to be had in Washington," Senator Sheppard declared.

Senator Blaine took the Texan to task about grape concentrates which make wine with 21 per cent alcoholic content. Such things have not been declared against the law, Senator Sheppard said. "Well, Senator Blaine rejoined, that meant that such grape concentrates were to be given a free run without competition. Senator Sheppard said that he favored outlawing all liquors having more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol, and when Senator Blaine observed that he had seen him make no move in that direction, Senator Sheppard said he couldn't do everything at once, but he intended to do that.

Borah Hits Raid Section.

"I think the Volstead law has gone far enough," Senator Borah said, in opposing the home-raid section. Senator Howell thereupon began his speech all over again, and at the end, Senator Borah, supporting, the Blaine amendment, proposed an amendment of his own which would include within the present search and seizure authority dwellings used for storage of liquor or manufacture of it.

There was an effort to have this considered as a part of the Blaine amendment, but Senator Blaine objected, and Senator George H. Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, presiding, ruled the proposal out of order.

Senator George declared that Congress should either amend the Volstead act for the entire country or not force on the voteless people of the District such a law. Illegal raids on private homes had done more than anything else to harm prohibition, he said. Senator Brookhart declared that when a dwellings was used as a storage place it became a bootleg joint and deserved no more consideration than one.

Would Raid Poor Homes.

"If you pass this provision," Senator George warned, "what homes will be searched in Washington under it? You know it will not be the homes of the rich and the powerful. The homes raided will be the homes of the poor and the weak. What you need is not a law like this, but officers who will enforce the present law properly."

"It looks," Senator Park Trammell (Democrat), of Florida, declared, "as if we will have to make the law very strict." He referred to court decisions affecting search and seizure of automobiles and declared that was "an outrageous court procedure."

"Some of these judges," he declared, "are in conspiracy with the bootleggers—at least in spirit, and I don't mean to any greater extent than that—and no matter how strict you may make the law, these judges will give decisions to protect the bootleggers."

Holds Volstead Law Sufficient.

Senator Borah said he didn't care how stringent provisions for stopping and searching automobiles were made, but he did believe that the constitutionality of the home should be safeguarded and that the Volstead law went far enough in its search and seizure provisions.

Senator Hawes said the measure was of national importance and its sponsors were proposing to try it out on the dog and to extend the power of the police farther than ever extended before. He referred to the recommendation of the Wickersham committee against extending search and seizure authority. He proposed to recommit the bill. Senator Howell said the purpose was to defeat the measure, and on a roll-call vote the motion was lost.

Describing the Wickersham report as one step forward, one step backward and a sidestep, Senator Henry F. Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, pointed to the commission's opposition to extension of search-and-seizure authority.

Raids Would Be Harmful.

"Nothing will be more harmful to prohibition than these illegal and extraconstitutional raids. Outrageously unjust, reckless and relentless raids on private homes have done more to harm prohibition than all other opposition," he declared.

Senator Ashurst traced the development of the American principle that one's home is one's castle and may not be lightly invaded from the invasion of Britain by the Angles and Saxons, and he quoted from recent and past decisions of the United States Supreme Court and decisions of English court in the past, one of the latter having been given in the middle eighteenth century.

The vote on the Hawes motion to recommit was the only one taken. The Blaine amendment is pending and may be voted on when consideration of the bill is resumed. Illness of Senator David Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, in charge of the War Department appropriations bill, is expected to prevent consideration of that bill today, and the Howell bill will not be displaced.

POWER COMMISSION FIGHT NEARS COURT

AIDS WERE DISCHARGED

(Associated Press.)

The prospective legal battle between the Senate and President Hoover over the right of three power commissioners to hold office drew a step nearer yesterday with approval of a court test by the Senate judiciary committee.

The committee voted 8 to 3 for the resolution of Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, requesting the district attorney here to institute legal proceedings testing the right of the commissioners to their office.

The Montana senator intends to seek an early vote on it by the Senate. The resolution is in the hands of the audit committee for approval of a $2,500 expenditure for Senate counsel.

While administration leaders contend the Senate is without any authority in the dispute because of the refusal of President Hoover to return the nominations of the commissioners, enough votes are in prospect for approval of the court action.

The three commissioners are Chairman Smith, Marcel Garsaud and Claude L. Draper. They were confirmed by the Senate during the Christmas recess. After taking office they announced the dismissal of Charles A. Russell, solicitor, and William V. King, chief accountant, along with other employes of the old commission.

Senator Walsh resented the dismissal of Mr. Russell and Mr. King, who, he said, had been fighting the "power trust." The Senate then took advantage of its rules allowing reconsideration of nominations within two legislative days after confirmation.

The Democratic-Republican independent coalition voted to reconsider, but President Hoover said he was without authority to return the nominations of the men whom he held were legally appointed and in office.

Mr. King subsequently was restored to office.

Senators Deneen, of Illinois; Hastings, Delaware, and Gillett, Massachusetts, all Republicans, voted against the Walsh resolution yesterday. It was supported by Senators Norris, Nebraska; Blaine, Wisconsin, and Steiwer, Oregon, Republicans, and Walsh, King, Utah; Stephens, Mississippi; Dill, Washington, and Bratton, New Mexico, Democrats.

Tamale Vendor Uses Product to Foil Robber

A man approached him last night. Shepard thought he was a customer. Instead, the man demanded Shepard's money.

Shepard met the demand by grabbing a handful of his hot spiced food, and rubbing it vigorously into the eyes of the robber. The robber screamed and fled in great haste. Shepard chuckled in glee.

HOUSE GROUP PLANS SOVIET BILLS STUDY

Ways and Means Body Sets Hearing on Acts to Bar Certain Imports.

AIMED AT FORCED LABOR

(Associated Press.)

Intensive study of proposals for a national policy barring products of forced labor—aimed chiefly at Russian commodities—will be started today by the House ways and means committee.

With a view to final action at this session, Chairman Hawley called for a two-day hearing on bills to restrict imports of forced labor.

"Unless some action is taken, these imports may destroy domestic, as well as foreign, markets of American labor products," Mr. Hawley said.

First consideration will be given the Kendall bill to define forced labor and deny entry to its products. Sponsors of the measure to provide specific embargoes on all Russian products, or on wheat, manganese, lumber, petroleum and other agriculture products also will have an opportunity to present their cases.

Secretaries Hyde and Doak and Chairman Legge of the Farm Board or their representatives probably will be among the first witnesses.

Mr. Hawley's action followed receipt of reports from the Agriculture Department and the Farm Board on suggested legislation.

Representative Williamson (Republican), South Dakota, said he would ask the committee to report one of his bills, to prohibit all Russian products; or to bar Russian wheat, butter, eggs and their products.

"This legislation goes on the assumption that all Russian labor is forced," Mr. Williamson said.

Representative Burtness (Republican), North Dakota, announced he would seek consideration for a bill to bar butter and its substitutes, feed grains, wheat and wheat flour, eggs and their products and edible dried beans.

"These are all surplus crops in this country," Mr. Burtness said. "All products on which present prices are very, very depressed."

Bread and water sentences for drunkenness have been imposed by Judge J. H. Warner, of Brainerd, Minn.

Tobacco Workers Busy.

Mexico City, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—About $13,500,000 is invested in the Mexican tobacco industry, which employs 5,000 workers.

Are Your Sunday Roasts Juicy and Tender?

Sunday roasts—beef, chicken, lamb, turkey—have to be purchased a day in advance. Whether or not they will be juicy and tender depends upon the kind of refrigeration you use to keep them.

If the temperature in your refrigerator is too cold and without sufficient moisture, the delicious, savory juices will be dried up. But if you use pure, sparkling ice in a good ice-refrigerator, you can be sure that all the delicate flavor of meats and fowl is retained. Vegetables and fruits, too, keep their crispness and deliciousness.

To make sure that the temperature and moisture of your refrigerator are exactly right, keep the ice compartment always two-thirds full of clear, sparkling American Ice.

LAW TO AID RURAL BANKS ADVOCATED

STATE DEPARTMENT HIT

(Associated Press.)

Liberalization of the banking laws to permit consolidation of rural banks, a firmer policy regarding operation of Federal reserve rediscounting rates, and higher rates on bond than on commercial borrowing were recommended yesterday to the Senate banking investigating committee.

At the same time the full committee approved the Glass resolution declaring the State Department should "desist from the dangerous practice of involving the United States Government in any responsibility," by approving or disapproving foreign investment loans floated in this country or "assuming authority over the Federal Reserve Board and banks."

The resolution introduced by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, chairman of the banking inquiry committee, recited that no section of the Constitution authorized the State Department to express its views on foreign loans floated in the United States.

It also condemned the department's action in saying it would not permit officials of the Federal Reserve System to serve or select American representatives on the International Bank of Settlements.

Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank of New York, and Edmund Platt, of New York, former vice governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and now vice president of the Marine Midland Corporation of Buffalo, testified before the investigating committee.

Wiggin blamed the stock market collapse of 1929 on the "debauch of speculation that reached a climax and stopped," rather than on any "evils" in the banking system.

He found no fault with the fundamentals of exisiting banking laws, but said if they were to be changed they should provide a "stiffer" policy regarding rediscount rates. He also suggested bond borrowings should bear higher rates than those made on commercial paper.

He repeated a recent statement made in New York that lower tariffs and reduction in foreign debts owed to the United States would go far toward removing foreign irritation against this country, improve the willingness to buy and help American manufacturers. It would more than offset the dollar loss due to any reduction in debts or tariffs, he said.

Platt said the great number of rural bank failures in recent years was due to their inability to meet the diversified needs of the communities. Fewer and larger banks would improve the situation, he said, adding country banks should be permitted to consolidate like city banks, to enable them diversify their business.

Another banking subcommittee will hold a hearing today on the nomination of Eugene Meyer, of New York, to be governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

BULLETS, PART OF REVOLVER FOUND IN SEWER BY POLICE

place. The search will be completd today.

At th same time Detective Sergt. John F. Flaherty, of the police homicide squad, declared that the authorities are attaching "little or no importance" to three "slugs" which have been dug out of the woodshed in the rear of the house at 18 Nineteenth street southeast, where the girl's body was found on a cot on the night of December 31.

Sergt. Flaherty had the slugs in his pocket at District Supreme Courthouse and intimated that no further examination would be made of them. The slugs, he said, while either .31-caliber bullets or large B-B shot, appeared to have been in the wood for several years, all being corroded with rust. The Limerick girl was killed with a .25-caliber bullet.

Today the grand jury, it is believed, will go to the "murder house" and make a first-hand investigation of the premises. They have intimated they desire to make the visit, according to Assistant United States Attorney Julian I. Richards, and if they do it will be at 9 o'clock this morning or during the noon recess.

Witnesses who are scheduled to be heard today are: Sergt. Flaherty, Detective William S. Beck, of the First Precinct; Mrs. Julia Bywaters, a sister of the dead girl; Marion Ashford, a friend of the deceased; Mrs. Pearl Posten, a neighbor; Carl Anderson and Robert E. Wilhelm, undertaker assistants, and James Dudley Thompson.

The grand jury action follows a verdict of a coroner's jury holding Private Robert F. Langdon, of the Police Department; William E. Paddy, Vernon Limerick and Richard Reed.

Testimony, it was understood, has been and will be practically the same as that given at the coroner's hearing except when witnesses discovered since appear.

Capt. Edward J. Kelly, assistant head of the Detective Bureau, was the surprise witness yesterday and judging from the length of time he was closeted with the body, the principal one. Capt. Kelly declined to discuss his testimony or what transpired between him and Assistant United States Attorney Richards after the grand jury session was over.

Other witnesses of the day were: Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, deputy coroner; Dr. J. Lyman Greene, who pronounced the girl dead; Detective Sergt. Fred Sandberg and Ira M. Gullickson, of the Police Department, who made photographs at the scene; Policeman R. L. Eubanks and B. R. White, of the Fifth Precinct, who were at the house shortly after the undertaker discovered there had been a murder, and Lieut. Alben C. Kefauver and Sherwood Perry, of the Fire Rescue Squad, who were called to the house when the girl's body was discovered.

Assistant United States Attorney Richards estimates that the investigation may last into next week, his present plans being to call only ten witnesses a day. There are only five court days and more than 60 witnesses, he said.

CLARA BOW PLEADS FOR CONVICTED AID

Letter From Film Star Begs Mercy for Daisy De Boe, Facing Sentence.

ATTORNEY WINS DELAY

Los Angeles, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Clara Bow made a last minute plea today for mercy for her former confidante, Daisy De Boe, as the young woman began a fight against her conviction for the theft of $825 from the actress and obtained a delay of sentence.

In a letter written in her own hand on Sunday the actress told District Attorney Buron Fitts, "I find myself unable to avoid letting you know that it is my hope that mercy will be shown to Daisy De Boe."

It was delivered a few minutes before court opened and turned over to Deputy District Attorney David Clark, who prosecuted Miss De Boe.

The plea drew an answer from Miss De Boe, spoken with sharpness. Her face was lined with worry and the collapse of her mother in court a few moments before had unnerved her.

Criticizes Former Employer.

"Clara's ways are not my ways. I would rather not coment on anything Miss Bow does. It's nice enough for her to write the letter but it must be remembered that if Clara Bow had thought a little more before she started all this, it would not have happened."

The actress wrote she would not have demanded prosecution of her former secretary "if she had not threatened to blackmail me."

W. I. Gilbert, the actress' attorney, testified during the trial that Miss De Boe came to him and tried to collect $125,000 for the return of the "it" girl's love letters. Miss De Boe later denied this.

Miss De Boe, convicted on 1 of 35 counts of grand theft last Friday after a jury had deliberated nearly 49 hours, changed her counsel for her fight to escape a possible term of one to ten years.

Sentence Is Delayed.

As court opened, Nathan O. Freedman, announced William Bierne would take his place. Bierne obtained a delay of sentence until next Monday by entering a motion for a new trial and requesting a delay o. arguments until he could familiarize himself with the testimony. He said he did not believe Miss De Boe would apply for probation.

His motion was based mainly on allegations that the verdict, reached by compromise, did not represent a fair opinion of all jurors.

The courtroom was filled with a curious throng. Miss De Boe, dressed in a brown and white ensemble, sat with a jail matron. The cheerful demeanor which she carried throughout the trial was gone and she appeared tired and depressed.

In a front row her mother, Mrs. Ida De Boe, watched her daughter closely and as Miss De Boe was led back to her cell, Mrs. De Boe cried and collapsed. Friends revived her.

INDIAN NATIONALIST ARRIVES

Arthur Ellis, Post Staff Photographer.

James Briggs, president of the India Independence League of the District, greets H. T. Muzumdar, M. A., Ph. D., of New York, representative of the Indian Nationalist movement, upon the latter's arrival with a small band of followers at Union Station last night. Muzumdar participated in Gandhi's famous march to the sea and came to Washington to join the India Independence League in celebration of the first anniversary of the Indian Declaration of Independence.

Gandhi Spirited Out.

Poona, India (Tuesday), Jan. 27 (A.P.).—India's mystic agitator for Swaraj, Mahatma Gandhi, was spirited out of Yeroda Prison's gaunt walls in a remarkable midnight drama, and astounded his British warders by assuring them he soon would be back.

It lacked one hour of 12 o'clock when he was hustled out the back gate of the penitentiary and placed in a motor car, which sped through the darkness of the Poona hills and deposited him on a Bombay-bound train at a point 10 miles distant.

"I expect to be back here within two months. I am not at all happy at the thought of entering again the whirlpool of life in the outside world, with its strife, suffering, sorrow and sordidness. I can not bear the thought of enjoying my individual liberty while tens of thousands of my brothers and sisters remain in jail."

Release Unconditional.

The viceroy's release of Gandhi and members of the working committee of the All-India National Congress was unconditional, but it did not apply to thousands of minor political prisoners.

Thus andhi's statement was taken to indicate he intends to use the British failure to reltase all political prisoners as a weapon against the Ramsay MacDonald government in the approaching peace conversations. If they are not freed, so prison officials inferred, the leader will cause his own arrest again.

When the order first was issued it was believed Gandhi might refuse his freedom for this reason, but the famous emancipator of the common people left peacefully enough, although he appeared somewhat glum over his release which, as he put it, the British government "forced" upon him.

Desire to Stay Sincere.

So reluctant did Gandhi appear to abandon the quiet prison life he had led for more than eight months that the warders constantly had to remind him that if he failed to pack his books, spinning wheels, letters and other effects he would be late for the automobile and train.

"Oh, you needn't worry," he replied, "I'll be ready."

Those familiar with penal history said that perhaps never before has a prisoner of such prominence as Gandhi actually expressed sorrow at leaving jail.

"Although he is one of the world's greatest living figures," said a prison official, "this remarkable man apparently is sincere in his desire to live behind prison walls.

Was Found Eccentric.

"But in this instance I am sorry we can not grant the request. Although he was our star boarder we are not particularly sorry to lose him. He was too eccentric."

So Gandhi went out, and the 320,000,000 unlettered toilers of India whom he hopes to liberate from British rule were deep in slumber, as the motor car raced to the railway connection.

A crescent moon and millions of stars, shedding their effulcence on the forbidding gray walls of the penitentiary, gave a striking setting to the event which was dramatic in itself.

And before the big prison clock pealed out midnight Gandhi was on a train clicking the rails toward Bombay. With him was Mrs. Sarojini Maidu, poetess and India's greatest woman orator, who was released at the same time after serving part of a six months' term.

Secrecy Maintained.

Thus the curtain was drawn on the first act of a great drama, which will demonstrate whether Gandhi is to bring peace or further strife to a land distracted by turmoil, bitterness and profound economic depression.

One of Gandhi's last requests to the authorities was that he be saved from the mob of adorers who undoubtedly would assail his path by the thousands when he was liberated. Thus for this reason the departure was made in secrecy.

Wife, Wed 43 Years, Asks $50 Allowance

Mrs. Bettie Petrola, 62 years old, who was married 43 years ago, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to compel her husband, Vincent Petrola, a retired Marine, to pay her $50 a month instead of $30 a month she is now receiving. The woman makes the request in a petition for maintenance filed through Attorneys E. K. Prender and George W. Smith.

Mrs. Petrola says that when she returned June 15 last from a visit to a married daughter she found her husband had changed the locks on the doors and refused to permit her to enter. The Petrolas were married August 17, 1887, and have six adult children.

$2,000 Damages Given For Fatal Car Mishap

A District Supreme Court jury before Justice Wendell P. Stafford yesterday awarded Mrs. Roberta V. Corby, administratrix of the estate of Warren M. Stearns, a verdict of $2,000 against McGuire & Rolfe, Inc. The company was sued for $10,000 damages, the maximum for death in the District.

Stearns was struck and killed by an automobile belonging to the company last March 22 on Rittenhouse street northwest. Attorneys Alvin Newmyer and Maurice Grudd appeared for the plaintiff.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

THE implication of events over the past week-end is that Washington, of a sudden, has become the center of interest for the New York home office executives of more than one of our principal purveyors of the dancing gelatins. The visiting firemen, without exception, have exuded optimism by the quart—optimism, I said—and have left singing "Here Comes the Sun," "Happy Days Are Here Again" or some other theme song appropriate to their mood of the moment.

Sunday, to get down to cases, Michael J. Cullen, Loew's local panjandrum, was awakened in the middle of the night, at 11 a. m., by a violent ringing of the phone to announce the arrival in his midst of E. A. Schiller, vice president of Loew's, Inc.; J. R. Vogel, general manager, and Louis K. Sidney, in charge of stage productions, on a secret tour of inspection. Mr. Cullen, you may be sure, was much chagrined by these tidings, his advance tip of the cryptic mission having been that Nick Schenck, president, and Oscar Doob, director of publicity, also were on the junket.

After having made sure that the Palace and Columbia still occupied their traditional sites on F street, the trio of metropolitan moguls spread out like a fan and quickly covered every first-run house of consequence in the downtown sector with a view to sizing up and cataloguing their opposition. What with Jannings and Dietrich on one side, and "Other Men's Women," with Lillian Shaw and other first-rate acts on the other, et cetera, and so forth, they found plenty.

They did not, however, drop any hint as to a possible new theater in town—not even the mysterious one for which ground plans have been drawn to occupy the old Sterling Hotel site, at Thirteenth, E and Pennsylvania avenue—nor did they intimate any radical change in either managerial or stage policies. Thus the Allan Rogers situation remains in status quo, doubt and controversy.

The itinerant big shots did, on the other hand, disclose a considerable list of red-hot attractions which, through the exigencies of booking, have jammed up until they will have to be run off, at one or the other of the Loew houses within the next eight weeks. Without any attempt to indicate in which house they will play, or the date, these include Ronald Colman in "Devil May Care;" Greta Garbo, in "Inspiration;" Douglas Fairbanks and Bebe Daniels, in "Reaching for the Moon;" Mary Pickford in "Kiki;" Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moor, in "New Moon;" Buster Keaton and Charlotte Greenwood, in "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," and Joan Crawford, in both "Paid" and "Dance, Fools, Dance."

And at such prices!

Mike Cullen, by the way, has run a very handsome specimen of common cold into a fair attack of grip and was confined to his home yesterday.

Close on the heels of the Loew crew came Victor Mansfield Shapiro, West Coast publicity director for Fox, who arrived in the Capital yesterday at 7 a. m., screened "The Seas Beneath," a John Ford production, starring George O'Brien, supported by Warren Hymer, for officials of the Navy Department at 9 and at noon, along with Hardie Meakin, outfumbled me for a luncheon check at the Press Club—a swell trick, when you can do it. Back to New York on the Congressional at 4.

Vic is an old friend who from close contact with the boys on the lots perceives a great change in the present viewpoint and output of those making the pictures for his concern. The pessimism, the uncertainty and the need for caution precipitated by the stock market crash and ensuing industrial depression have passed. There is a new note of cheerfulness, enthusiasm and unquenchable optimism everywhere apparent in the Fox organization that is making itself felt in the spirit and temper of the company's new pictures, according to this energetic young publicist who has just traded places with Glendon Allvine for a period of six months—Shapiro coming East, Allvine going West.

In the course of a long conversation about a little bit of everything, these are the Fox pictures for which Mr. Shapiro advised me to advise you to keep your eye peeled: "Girls Demand Excitement," with John Wayne, Virginia Cherrill (Chaplin's leading woman in "City Lights") and Marguerite Churchill; Victor McLaglen in "Not Exactly Gentlemen," with Lew Cody and Fay Wray; "Men On Call," a Coast Guard story, with Edmund Lowe, Warren Hymer, Bill Harrigan and Mae Clarke, and "Fair Warning," starring George O'Brien.

Coming right behind these are Ann Harding in "East Lynne," with Clive Brook and Conrad Nagel; "The Seas Beneath"; Will Rogers in "The Connecticut Yankee," which, I am assured, is the greatest thing he has ever done on the stage, in the films or in print; Charles Farrell and his new teammate, Elissa Landi, hailed as another Dietrich, in "Body and Soul"; Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe in "Women of All Nations," with Greta Nissen and El Brendel—nuff sed—Thomas Meighan and Dorothy Jordan in "Young Sinners"; Warner Baxter and Joan Bennett in "Doctors' Wives," and Edmund Lowe and Jeanette MacDonald in "More Than a Kiss."

It looks like a particularly prolific late winter unless the New York boys have merely been chattering about a lot of bloomers that flower in the spring, tra-la, and have nothing to do with the case!

As long as we are at it, "Cimarron," coming to the RKO-Keith Theater February 7, is a picture not to be missed by any judicious lover of the cinema at its best. Those who viewed it at either of the preview showings last Friday night, I think, will corroborate the statement that it is by far the biggest and best thing Radio Pictures has ever achieved, or even attempted.

While a great deal, no doubt, will be said here about "Cimarron" between now and February 7, the picture will not be formally reviewed until that week. I will go so far as to say, though, that there are three performances among the many excellent ones in which the film abounds that will astonish even the most erudite and observant picturegoers. Foremost is the surprisingly fine portrayal offered by Richard Dix in the role of Yancey Cravat, the figure who epitomizes the character and the life of the Oklahoma pioneer. I would not have believed Dix capable of so finely sustained a characterization if I had not seen it with my own eyes. Every one else at Congressional showing seemed of the same opinion.

The other two jobs that impressed me most because they were least expected are contributed by George E. Stone and Roscoe Ates. Stone has usually been cast as a minor gangster, or tough bozo of one sort or another, and Ates in nothing more than bits when stuttering has been required. He has stammer his way to many a laugh in pictures in which his part was so small that his name has not even appeared among the listed players. In "Cimarron" he appears as Jess Rickey and does a splendid piece of work. George Stone is cast as Sol Levy, who, in the four decades of the story, rises from young pack vendor to department store millionaire, and limns a bit of portraiture that places him among the genuinely competent character actors of the screen.

Incidentally, three players who have a great deal to do with the success of "Little Caesar," now running at the Metropolitan, are almost as conspicuously cast in "Cimarron"—all right, call it "Cinnamon," if you like! They are George Stone, Stanley Fields and William Collier, jr.

And if you attend the Rialto this week, you will discover that the signature number used by Amos 'n' Andy in their nightly broadcasts is the love theme for Lillian Gish and Henry B. Walthall in the musical score of "The Birth of a Nation."

In case you have wondered, it was Milton Davis, organist at the Earle, who presided at the console during the congressional preview of "Cimarron" Friday night and played for an unbroken period of 45 minutes, waiting for Vice President Curtis to put in an appearance.

They are screening "Under the Roofs of Paris" at the Rialto tonight—or "Sous Les Toits de Paris," if you prefer, although I don't know why you should.

Is there no end to this midnight gayety?

Hooper Coyne, Baltimore, Leaves $18,000 for His Friends, Relatives.

Baltimore, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A million-dollar fortune built on a $25 loan has been given to charity in the will of Hooper Coyne, who died January 12 at his winter home in New Orleans. The will was filed today in orphans' court in Baltimore, where Mr. Coyne made his fortune in the baking powder business.

Beneficiaries under the will include the Salvation Army, of Montgomery, Ala. The will provides that after $10,000 has been distributed among friends the balance of the estate is to go to charity. He was born in Montgomery. After cremation, his ashes were interred there. The Montgomery Salvation Army is one of three charities to receive the bulk of the estate, the others are the Salvation Army of Baltimore and the Volunteers of America.

Eight thousand dollars in annuities for relatives are also provided in the instrument and following the death of the relatives this money will go to the three charities.

Aiello Is Chosen To Lead Holy Nam

Other Officers Are Reelected at January Meeting of Diocese.

Caesar L. Aiello was reelected president of the Washington section, Baltimore Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies, at the January quarterly meeting held yesterday at St. Theresa's Church, Twelfth and V streets southeast. Other officers reelected are Patrick J. Haltigan, vice president; Francis A. McCann, secretary; John J. Curtin, treasurer, and James J. Galvin, marshal.

John F. McCarran, president of the union, said that the organization of which he is head, added 5,000 names to its membership during the past year.

Speeches were given by Col. William L. Peake, superintendent of the District Jail; the Right Rev. Eugene B. Connelly, the Rev. J. J. Durkin, the Rev. C. J. Sullivan, the Rev. James J. Buckley, the Rev. Dennis C. Keenan and the Rev. J. J. Clark. Representatives of 37 parishes attended the rally.

Card of Belgian Attache Is Held

The District registration card of an attache of the Belgian Embassy here, taken from a man accused of reckless driving through Falls Church, Va., Sunday, was being held last night by Mayor L. P. Daniels, of Falls Church, pending establishment of the identity of the owner.

The card, bearing the name of "Haetaulsheede, Viscount de Lantsheers," was taken from the alleged reckless driver by Town Sergt. Walter Mitchell. Mitchell said the man refused to return to the mayor's office with it, claiming "diplomatic immunity."

Mayor Daniels said he would not surrender the registration certificate until the owner makes a formal application for its return.

FRANKLIN G. TINGLEY DEAD AT HIS HOME

WAS NATIVE OF INDIANA

Funeral services for Franklin G. Tingley, chief of the Marine Division of the United States Weather Bureau, who died yesterday morning at his home in Hyattsville, Md., following a brief illness, will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock from the Pinkney Memorial Church at Hyattsville. The Rev. Clyde Brown will officiate. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery here.

Mr. Tingley was born near Marion, Ind., the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Tingley. His father was a former newspaperman and agriculturist. Mr. Tingley graduated from Purdue University in 1894 with the degree of bachelor of civil engineering. He was a member of the Indiana Theta Chapter of Phi Delta Theta, national social fraternity, and the American Society of Engineers.

Entering the Government service in 1898, Mr. Tingley became chief of the marine division at the Weather Bureau. He took over this department when it was only a small unit, and under his direction it grew in importance and efficiency. He had made his home in Hyattsville since 1901.

For many years Mr. Tingley had been active in church and philanthropic work. He was a member of the vestry of Pinkney Memorial Protestant Church, of Hyattsville, and at one time was superintendent and held other offices of the church. He was formerly treasurer of the Prince Georges County Red Cross. Mr. Tingley was 60 years old.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Grace Fuller Tingley; a son, Egbert F. Tingley; a brother, E. M. Tingley, of Oak Park, Ill., and a sister, Mrs. Flora T. Bogue, of near Wabash, Ind.

Property Owners To Vote on Bonds

Falls Church Election on Water Main Flotation Set for Feb. 25.

A special election of resident freehold property owners of Falls Church, Va., on the town's proposed $125,000 water bond issue, was called last night in a resolution adopted by the Falls Church Town Council.

The election, to be held February 25, was ordered in response to a petition signed by 209 freehold property owners. A similar election was held January 19, but it was declared invalid due to participation of less than 50 cent of those eligible to vote. The council will post a list of names eligible in various places throughout the town before the election and on February 18 will hear any protests that may be offered.

One-half of the town already is served by mains connected with the Arlington County water system, and the election will put up to the residents the proposal to serve the remaining half.

FORMER SENATOR DECLARED SUICIDE

to 1928 Edwards was known as "the wettest of the wet," but his arguments against the prohibition law were social in origin. He did not drink, although his political career was sharply punctuated with definite opinions on the rights of others to do so.

His stalwart opposition to prohibition brought him mention from wet Democrats as a possible nominee of the Democratic party for President in 1924.

Edwards was in ill health and had been a sufferer from cancer for a long time. He had severed his connections with banking and politics, the latter as a result of disagreement with Frank Hague, Mayor of Jersey City and once his warm friend.

This morning Baumgarten communicated with the Edwards Kensington avenue apartment and was told "The senator is sleeping." A maid was asked to knock loudly at his door. She received no response and called another tenant. The door was broken in to gain entry.

Edwards was found dead on his bed with a wound in the right temple. Physicians said his last moments had been spent in agony, as the bullet took a downward course to the chin instead of penetrating the brain. The revolver was near the body.

Col. Edward I. Edwards, jr., who had talked with his father on the telephone the day before and learned he was ill, arrived at the moment the body was discovered to visit his father. Miss Edwards had spent the week-end on Long Island.

The former senator had been greatly affected by the death of his wife a year ago and deaths of two brothers, William D. and David. The latter's death a few months ago caused him to be extremely melancholy, friends said.

Policeman Injured In Making Arrest

Man Subdued and Held on Charges of Drunkenness Assault, Threats.

Policeman Hugh F. Cornwell, of the Fourteenth Precinct, was injured late Sunday night while he was arresting James M. Fitzgerald, 34 years old, of Wisconsin avenue northwest, near Upton street, who is alleged to have been creating a disturbance in an apartment house on Woodley road northwest, near Thirty-seventh street.

Cornwell said he was called to the apartment, where Fitzgerald is alleged to have been threatening Miss Victorie Wallace, 24 years old, with violence. Fitzgerald struck the officer in the face and threw him against a door, with injury to his shoulder resulting, he stated. The officer succeeded in subduing the man, who was removed to the precinct and charged with assault, drunkenness and threats.

ATTENDANCE RECORD FOR CAR SHOW SEEN

Throng Last Night Largest Since Exhibit Opened, Officials Report.

CHASSIS DRAW INTEREST

With crowds at the automobile show at the Auditorium growing in both afternoon and evening sessions, and with last night's throng the largest since the opening of the exhibition last Saturday, officials of the Washington Automotive Trade Association see early confirmation of their prediction that the 1931 show will establish new high attendance figures.

It was pointed out last night both by Fred L. Haller, chairman of the show committee, and Richard J. Murphy, show manager, that the stream of visitors passing through the doors of the Auditorium has been mounting steadily, and that a preliminary check indicates attendance to be ahead of 1930, which was the best previous year on record.

Yesterday's and last night's crowds at the show evidenced particular interest in the many stripped chassis and working models on display. In number, variety and educational value these features of the show are greater than heretofore, with the result that they have been drawing an especially large measure of attention. These added attractions are to be found on both the Auditorium and exhibition hall floors of the building. In all instances experts are on hand to explain their workings.

According to Mr. Murphy, many comments are being heard regarding the unique values being offered this year. He says that visitors are talking enthusiastically of the splendidly improved appearance of the new cars, their manifold mechanical changes and of the amazingly low prices placed upon them.

Each day this week, until the closing on Saturday, the show will be open from 10:30 a. m. until 10:30 p. m. Orchestral music is played from the stage of the Auditorium and carried to both floors by means of amplifying devices.

Tonight Raphael Semmes, a member of the association show committee, will address the audience of station WRC on the subject of the new cars, with particular reference to their remarkable new qualities of acceleration.

Radio Firm Files Bill in U. S. Court

Injunction Is Sought by De Forest Corporation in Trade Row.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Charging violation of the Sherman antitrust act, the DeForest Radio Corporation filed a bill in United States District Court against the Radio Corporation of America today, alleging conspiracy in restraint of trade.

The bill particularly mentions the "superheterodyne" circuit as the basis for the charges. It alleges that many radio set manufacturers are "coerced, intimidated or compelled" by the R. C. A. to become licensors of the R. C. A. patents.

The bill asks that R. C. A. be enjoined from using the patents to the injury of the plaintiff, from unfair competition, from intimidation and compulsion by threat or patent infringement suit, and from forcing breach of contract between radio set manufacturers and other concerns, particularly customers of the plaintiff.

A temporary injunction covering the same restrictions and damages also was asked. The suit was filed by Charles G. Munn, president of the DeForest corporation, through counsel.

Rye Hits Lowest Price In 37 Years on Board

Chicago, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Rye today hit the lowest price in 37 years on the board of trade.

The year's crop of rye in the United States was 50,234,000 bushels, compared to 41,911,000 bushels in 1929. This was not a discouraging prospect, but Germany, the largest consumer of rye in the world, and a large importer, also harvested a bountiful crop, and Russia reported an ample rye harvest.

Prices have fallen to approximately one-third of those quoted a year ago. Rye for delivery in March sold in Chicago today at 37⅞ cents a bushel, a price not quoted since 1894.

U. S. Gold Stock Held Bigger Than 4 Nations

London, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, today told Parliament that the United States has a larger stock of monetary gold than the combined amounts held by France, the United Kingdom, Germany and Spain.

Expressed in pounds sterling, the figures for gold holdings as given by Mr. Snowden were: United States, 945,700,000; France, 436,600,000; United Kingdom, 144,543,000; Germany, 108,500,000, and Spain, 96,700,000.

MORTGAGE BANKERS FILE BANKRUPT PLEA

Thus, when the company moved into its present imposing building, at 727 Fifteenth street northwest, in 1908, it was really established as mortgage bankers, serving thousands of persons in Washington and all over the world in investment matters.

Running parallel with this service to small investors was the part which the firm played in the development of the city, for through the means of its real estate financing, thousands of homes and many of the attractive buildings now adorning the city were made possible.

During the last decade alone the following are only a few of the outstanding structures which have had their original financing through this company: Edmonds Building, Department of Justice Building, Securities Building, Wardman Park Hotel, Carlton Hotel, Hay-Adams House, Lombardy Apartment, Hill Building, the La Salle-Dulin & Martin Buildings, Shoreham Building and the Broadmoor Apartment.

The firm was organized by George W. F. Swartzell, Clarence P. Rheem, Alexander T. Hensey and Luther A. Swartzell. Present officers include Luther A. Swartzell, president; Edmund D. Rheem, son of the founder, first vice president; J. Newton Brewer, second vice president; John H. Holmead, treasurer; George F. Hunt, secretary; Harry T. Domer, general counsel.

Doomed Man Arranges For Letters in 1951

Canon City, Colo., Jan. 26 (A.P.). The postman will deliver a letter each month for twenty years to the aged mother of John Walker, convicted bank robber-slayer, even though the wayward son is to be hanged next Friday night.

Walker, following his conviction of the murder of Coral A. Hickman Eads, Colorado deputy sheriff, was insistent his mother not be allowed to visit him. He obtained the promise of his sisters that the mother, Mrs. Julia Rhodes, 71, of Joplin, Mo., would be told he was serving a 20-year term in the State prison here.

PITTS PLEA IS FILED FOR HABEAS CORPUS

TRIAL COURT ATTACKED

G. Bryan Pitts, convicted former chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., was sent back to jail yesterday, while Justice Frederick L. Siddons debated the merits of his habeas corpus petition on which he hopes to gain his freedom.

Pitts, who with two other former officials of the company, was convicted by a District Supreme Court jury on charges of conspiracy to embezzle $5,000,000 and destroy records of the concern, in his petition attacked the citizenship of one of the jurors and also the right of the court to try him.

Attorney T. Morris Wampler, appearing for Pitts, however, told the Court at the outset that he had decided not to question the citizenship of Miss Mildred Robertson, the juror. Instead, he directed his entire attention toward the attack on the court.

The attorney declared that his client had been tried before Justice William Hitz while his branch of the tribunal was sitting as a criminal court and not as a United States district court. He also pointed out that the indictment on which the trial was held had been amended when the Government filed a bill of particulars.

Pitts has been denied bond pending an appeal and his attorney argued that the points presented to the court should entitle his client to give bail.

Justice Siddons then instructed Mr. Wampler to file a brief today and granted Government counsel three days in which to file an answer. No action was taken yesterday on Pitts' motion for a new trial on virtually identical grounds.

LEROY BRADY FACES JURY IN BOMB CASE

the jury on behalf of the State. He said he would prove that the Bradys had a proper mechanical knowledge to construct the bomb. Magruder spoke for the defense in which he termed LeRoy Brady a man of unquestioned character. He claimed that the material used in the bomb was of common variety and could not be termed like that which Herman used in his garage work.

As was expected LeRoy asked for a jury trial and Herman a hearing befor the court. Judge Moss ordered Herman kept out of the courtroom while LeRoy's trial is underway.

Three members of the Hall family, the mother, father and brother of Naomi Hall, victim of the explosion which killed her, testified that the victim and Herman Hall were legally married and that they had lived together up to the time of the bombing.

Mrs. Nora Hall, the victim's mother, stated that the two had gone together ever since their first school days and that Herman Brady was her first and only boy friend. She stated that Herman visited the home every other day besides Saturday and Sunday and was home Christmas Eve, 1929, helping trim the tree.

She reiterated the story told by her husband and son of the tragedy, stating that Leslie Hall, brought a package from the home of a neighbor on New Year's Day and gave it to his sister with the remark that it was "another Christmas present."

Mrs. Herman Brady, in the presence of her family, untied the bundle, she said, and opened the lid, to be greeted with an explosion.

Mrs. Buckley, neighbor of the Halls, who owned a home directly across from the Halls, testified that the name of the Hall family was unknown to her when she received the bundle directed to Naomi Hall, and she kept it from December 29 to January 1, when it was given to Leslie Hall, who, she found, was the brother of the girl. Two companions of Leslie Hall produced further evidence concerning the package as Everett Windsor and Stuart Carneal were placed on the stand. Young Windsor related that he was the newsboy who had first seen the bundle on Mrs. Buckley's front porch on Sunday morning, December 29.

The most graphic description of the explosion was given by Nathan Lee Augustine, a resident of Seat Pleasant, whose home, he stated, was 700 feet from the Hall residence. Mr. Augustine testified that he was working on his car at the time of the bombing and heard the noise which, he said, sounded like a small shotgun. He paid no attention to it until told of the accident, when he went to the home to find Mrs. Hall, derobed and injured, and Leslie Hall, with his eyes shedding blood, on the rear porch.

Going inside, he stated that he immediately detected the odor of sulphur and black powder. He saw in the front room a large oblong, double hole in the center of the floor, the furniture entirely demolished and Mrs. Brady and the children of the household lying about in various stages of injury. He stated, however, that at the time every one was alive, their heart beats being plainly noticed.

Edward Herman Smith, jr., who, with two or three other youths, all residents of Maryland Park, had visited the scene of the accident a few days later and entered the house when detectives were off guard, stated that he found a piece of tubing and the cap, part of a bomb, which articles were produced as exhibits.

Long Capone Plea Halts Prosecution

Government Has Not Yet Had Time to Read All Its 419 Pages.

Chicago, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Ralph Capone's brief appealing his conviction for income tax violations is so long the Government hasn't had time to read it all yet.

The prosecution was granted a continuance to February 10, after the judge was informed that the Government's reply brief was not ready, due to the fact that the brief expert, Assistant Attorney General Alfred Page, had not had time to go over the Capone document.

Capone's appeal brief contained 419 pages, and Government officials said it was the largest ever filed in the Chicago office. He is under sentence of three years.

Claire Windsor's Dresses Stolen.

Los Angeles, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Claire Windsor, one-time film star, is planning on some extensive shopping. A burglar entered her home last night and stole eight dresses, which, she said, were worth $2,000.

Brokers Watch Television Test of Stock Quotations

Experiment Is Conducted in Chicago Seeking to Simplify Reception of Market Prices by Busy Dealers Without Leaving Offices.

Chicago, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A few few blocks from the financial hum of La Salle street, men who make the wheels of Chicago's markets rotate attentively watched an experiment today to simplify things for those who dabble in stocks.

These brokers attended the premier television broadcast of stock quotations over Television Station W9XAP in a test conducted by the Chicago Daily News under direction of Clem F. Wade, president of the Western Television Co.

An announcer was flashed on the slide, and he spoke to the audience, prepairng them for the joy or sorrow to come.

The ticker tape was broadcast in silence by means of special apparatus rigged up in the control room. In its reception, the tape resembled that which runs across the top of bulletin boards in brokerage offices and stock exchanges.

The words were black against a reddish-brown background, and could be seen from a distance of 25 feet.

Fred Hathaway, radio technician, in explaining the procedure, said he believed that today's broadcast could be received within a radius of 150 miles by those having television reception sets.

At the present state of development, he said, a broker could sit comfortably in his office, smoke a stogie and watch the tape flicker across a television set at his elbow.

$500 Fine Imposed On Lewis Affirmed

Springfield Ill., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A $500 fine imposed on John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, on a contempt of court charge, was affirmed today by the State appelate court.

Circuit Judge Charles G. Briggle, of Sangamon County, had held Lewis and his associates guilty of contempt for violating an injunction restraining them from interfering with the Illinois district headed by Harry Fishwick.

"The only question before this court," the opinion stated, "is whether there was a violation of the temporary injunction. That there was such a violation is not only proved, but admitted."

ALEXANDRIA PLANT DISCUSSES MERGER

Baltimore Firm as Result May Transfer Mechanics to Virginia City.

ZONE MEETING DAY SET

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A new industry will shortly come to Alexandria, provided the action of the board of directors of the Aresto Co., engineers, of Baltimore, is confirmed by the stockholders at a meeting to be held next Monday, according to an announcement here today.

The Aresto Co., engaged in the manufacture of flame arrestors, non-explosive tanks, automatic shut-off valves, devices and systems for the safe use of hazardous liquids and gases, plans to come to Alexandria and merge with the American Pump & Valve Co., whose plant is on Merchant street.

The corporation, which will result from the merger, will issue $30,000 three-year mortgage bonds, $170,000 five-year 7 per cent debentures, and 60,000 shares of common stock with no par value. It is announced that of this 60,000 shares of common stock, 5,900 shares will be issued to the present stockholders of the Emerson Pump & Valve Co.; 1,700 shares reserved for possible issue as a bonus with the sale of the debenturees; 25,791 shares issued in exchange for class A common stock of the Aresto Co., at the rate of share for share; 4,185.1 shares issued for class B stock in the Aresto Co., at the rate of one share for ten shares of the class B stock, and 17,000 shares will be reserved for the conversion of the debentures.

Upon the completion of the merger and the sale of the debentures there will be 37,756.1 shares of common stock outstanding. Should all of the debentures be converted before maturity there will be 54,756.1 shares of this stock outstanding, the balance to be kept in the treasury for future financing.

It is said if the merger shall take place a large number of skilled mechanics will be employed at the plant here. The Emerson company is headed by John W. Childress, president and manager, of Washington, with Lambert D. Sullivan, of Alexandria, secretary.

It is announced that the directors of the Aresto Co. recommended the merger with the Emerson company after a most careful study of the situation and the needs of the company, and that the company, by this merger, will acquire ideal manufacturing facilities, adequate financial connections and will add to its present personnel of capable and energetic executives.

The local zoning commission will hereafter meet each Wednesday afternoon in the City Council chamber to approve applications for repairs and other improvements to buildings generally, it was announced yesterday.

Under the terms of an ordinance recently adopted by the City Council the issuing of such permits must continue with the Zoning Commission until that body completes its task, which it is expected will not be before June. Heretofore all applications for such permits were submitted to the office of City Engineer E. C. Dunn and, in most cases, were immediately granted. It will now be necessary for applicants to wait several days for the approval of their applications.

Applications for permits will be made to the office of the city engineer, as in the past, and the city engineer will refer them to the Zoning Commission for approval.

The new members of the Alexandria police force assumed their duties at midnight last night, having completed the physical examination required yesterday afternoon. They are George R. Murphy, 28, 1825 Duke street; Joseph P. Butler, 27, 134 Lloyd avenue, and Frank A. Stover, 28, 617 North Columbus street.

The annual inspection of the city jail was made yesterday by Dr. Samuel B. Moore, John D. Normoyle and the Rev. Edgar Carpenter, a committee named for that purpose recently by Judge William P. Woolls, of the Corporation Court. The committee will submit its report to Judge Woolls.

J. W. Howard, manager of the Virginia Public Service Co., will be the speaker at the luncheon of the Rotary Club at 12:30 o'clock today, in the George Mason Hotel. His talk will be on phases of the electrical industry.

The free chest clinics by the city health department which were discontinued just prior to the holiday season will be resumed beginning tomorrow afternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock, at the health office, for white persons, and on Thursday at the same hours for Negroes. These clinics are conducted under the auspices of the State and city health departments together with the Anti-tuberculosis Society.

The city police department has begun a campaign against traffic violations, and as a result there were seven traffic cases before the Police Court yesterday morning, five charged with speeding, one with wrong parking and an out-of-town resident with having no permit. Fines ranged from $5 to $10.

$50 Wrist Watch Stolen.

A wrist watch worth $50 was yesterday stolen from the home of Ada Sutherland, of Ninth street southeast, near O street, she told police.

Gloth Wins Review From Supreme Court

Richmond, Va., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The State Supreme Court today consented to review the case of William C. Gloth, Commonwealth attorney for Arlington County, who was ordered by the Arlington circuit court to pay $7,000 in back alimony before proceeding with his cross bill for absolute divorce from his wife.

The wife, Marjorie Schneider Gloth, charged abandonment in her suit for separation in 1926. Gloth charged infidelity in his divorce bill two years later, after Mrs. Gloth had shot and seriously wounded him in an encounter at the home of her mother.

VIRGINIA DAIRY MEN TO CONVENE TODAY

Two Groups to Meet This Week, Sessions Being in Charlottesville.

CONTESTS WILL BE HELD

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The Virginia Dairy Products Association will be convened here in convention tomorrow. Following its conclusion Wednesday, the Virginia Dairymen's Association will begin a two-day session on Thursday.

Plans for both meetings have been designed to outline programs for the year that was expected to be a difficult one for the industry as the result of the recent drought.

Members of the Dairy Products Association represent most of the manufacturers of dairy products throughout the State. Two hundred and fifty delegates were expected to attend the convention. Officers of the association are: Claude L. Parcell, of Fredericksburg, president; Frank E. Bennie, of Richmond, vice president, and C. L. Stahl, of Charlottesville, secretary-treasurer.

Approximately 450 delegates are expected for the Dairymen's Association meeting, which will be featured with discussions of the problems that are facing the industry. The officers are: J. Belso Beck, of Charlottesville, president; M. D. Rhodes, of Broadway, vice president, and F. A. Buchanan, of Richmond, secretary-treasurer. Mayor Fred L. Watson, of Charlottesville, will deliver the addresses of welcome.

Addresses before the meetings will discuss the present agricultural outlook for Virginia; orderly control of marketing from farm to consumer; raising good calves at low cost; cutting costs of feeding, and the benefits to be derived from the new Virginia milk law.

Other features will be the final competition in the State-wide cream contest and in the creamery butter contest by the Dairy Products Association. The Dairymen's Association will conduct a breeding school.

HYATTSVILLE TO GET REDUCED GAS RATES

President of Company Assures Citizens of Early Cut at Banquet.

OTHER SPEAKERS HEARD

The price of gas is to be lowered in Hyattsville at a very early date, George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., said at the Chamber of Commerce banquet in Hyattsville last night.

Mr. Wood said that he had not had time to study statistics in connection with the Suburban Gas Light Co., which his concern took over last Monday.

For this reasn, he said, he culd not say what the reduction in rates would be. Last night's announcement was the first definite word received by residents of the suburban area, who are served by the suburban gas lines.

Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland, introduced the speakers, who included, besides Mr. Wood, Walter Johnson and Nick Altrock, of the Washington Baseball Club.

Mr. Johnson told of amusing incidents of his early career. William T. Jennings, president of the chamber, made the introductory speech, and the Rev. Clyde Brown pronounced the invocation. Other features of the banquet, which was attended by about 300 people, were a saxaphone solo by Miss Eleanor Owings and other musical numbers.

Montgomery Women To Hear Lucas Speak

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, will address a meeting of the Federation of Republican Women of Montgomery County this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Postoffice Building at Chevy Chase, Md. He will be introduced by Mrs. Helen L. Koch, of Woodside, Md., president of the federation.

A business session of the federation will precede the address at 2 o'clock. It will include election of officers.

Hopewell Church Razed For $60,000 Edifice

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 26.—The Methodist Church at Hopewell, erected some years ago, is being razed so a new place of worship may be erected on the same site at a cost of $60,000.

The last services in the church were held yesterday. Hereafter, until the new church is completed, services will be held in the municipal courtroom.

LUTHERANS GATHER AT ROANOKE TODAY

SPEAKERS ARE NAMED

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The 102d convention of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia will be convened here tomorrow, and continue in session through Friday.

Lutheran churches in Virginia and eastern Tennessee will be represented, as included in the synod. There are approximately 25,000 members and 100 pastors in the various churches of the synod. Two hundred and fifty delegates were expected to attend the sessions, one pastor and one lay delegate being entitled to a vote in the convention.

Convention addresses will be delivered each day at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. These will be in addition to the business sessions. Among the speakers will be the Rev. J. J. Sherer, D. D., of Richmond; the Rev. William Freas, D. D., of New York; the Rev. E. H. Copenhaver, of Marion; the Rev. J. Luther Sieber, D. D., of Roanoke; the Rev. Z. M. Cobe, D. D., of Philadelphia; the Rev. A. M. Huffman, Knoxville, Tenn., and the Rev. J. P. Miller, D. D., of Wytheville.

Ministers who will conduct devotional services are the Rev. Paul L. Royer, of Bluefield; the Rev. B. A. Barringer, of Rural Retreat; the Rev. M. J. Kluttz, of Waynesboro; the Rev. P. E. Shealy, of Woodstock; the Rev. Hugh J. Ryhne, of Marion; the Rev. A. B. Ballentine, of Timberville, and the Rev. R. Homer Anderson, of Roanoke.

Officers of the synod are: Dr. J. J. Sherer, of Richmond, president; the Rev. R. Homer Anderson, of Roanoke, superintendent; the Rev. C. W. Cassell, of Luray, secretary; Dr. A. B. Greiner, of Rural Retreat, treasurer; Harry E. Pugh, of Richmond, statistician, and W. T. Stauffer, of Newport News, clerk.

Driver Owens Held In Auto Fatality

Miss Reese, Passenger in His Car, Will Be Buried in East Brady, Pa.

James Owens, 27, of K street near Sixteenth northwest, was held for action of the Howard County, Maryland, grand jury following an inquest in Baltimore yesterday into the death of Miss Irene Reese, fatally injured Sunday in an auto crash near Laurel. Owens was driver of the car in which Miss Reese was a passenger.

Owens was only slightly hurt in the accident in which three machines figured. One got away and has not yet been traced. Driving the other car was Dennis Lady, of St. Petersburg, Fla., who was not injured. His father, Byrd G. Lady, and a woman, Mrs. Agnes Lindsay, of Hartford, Conn., who were in the car, were treated for lacerations.

Miss Rose Pollard, 24, of Kennedy street near Fourteenth, and Gordon Willis, of Essex, Md., who were riding with Owens and Miss Reese, suffered hurts which are not serious. Miss Reese, who made her home on Kennedy street, was secretary and research worker for the White House conference on child health. Her body will be buried in East Brady, Pa., her birthplace.

COUNTY TO DISCUSS DROUGHT CAMPAIGN

$3,600 QUOTA PLANNED

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205

The Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross will hold a county-wide meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the National Guard Armory at Kensington to discuss plans for collecting the county quota of the Red Cross $10,000,000 drought-relief fund. Plans for local relief also will be discussed.

It is hoped that the $3,600 quota of Montgomery can be raised this week. The county quota is much smaller than it otherwise would be because it is located in the drought-stricken area.

Mrs. Mina Church Brann, of Cabin John, chairman of the county chapter, will preside at the meeting. Frank B. Severance, of Gaithersburg, is chairman of the disaster relief committee of the local chapter. Miss Margaret F. Ansdell, Red Cross county nutrition expert, who has temporarily assumed case work for the period of the drought work, will explain the needs of the county. It is expected that about 2,000 families will require relief according to a survey made by Mr. Severance and O. W. Anderson, county agricultural agent.

Mayor J. Roger Spates and members of the Rockville town council met in executive session last night to discuss a program of improvement for the town which is to be submitted to the members of the board of county commissioners and the county delegation to the Maryland General Assembly.

The council hopes to have a coordinated program which will aid in bringing the development of Rockville to a point commensurate with its importance as the seat of one of the most important counties in Maryland. The county officials suggested at a joint meeting that specific projects which are wanted by Rockville should be itemized and presented in order that they could be studied.

The program will be presented to the legislators at an early date, according to Mayor Spates, who is leading a campaign to revivify the civic spirit of the town and to advertise the community and its social and economic advantages.

Establishment of a farm woman's market at Bethesda is being planned by the Montgomery County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs, according to Mrs. James D. King, of Germantown, president. A conference is to be held Friday between a committee of the council and extension service officials at the University of Maryland.

Definite plans will not be worked out until after the conference, but it is expected to have a market at which everything produced by the farm wife can be sold. It is expected that the prices will be much lower than in other retail sales agencies. A strict standard will be maintained to insure the quality of the products.

Members of the committee are Mrs. King (chairman), Mr. and Mrs. Windsor W. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Potter, Mrs. John Darby, Mrs. George W. Stone, Mrs. Julian B. Waters, Mrs. Eugene W. Scott, Mrs. Arthur L. Smith, Mrs. Benjamin P. Whalen and Preston L. Snyder.

Extension service officials who will take part in the conference are Miss Venia M. Kellar, State home demonstration agent; Miss Edith Turner, assistant State home demonstration agent; Miss Helen Shelby, clothing specialist, and Miss Margaret McPheeters, food specialist.

The Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs and the Montgomery County Farm Bureau are understood to be interested in the movement, and about 300 women from the suburban area of the county have signified their intention of dealing with the establishment.

James D. King, of Germantown, has been elected president of the newly organized Montgomery County Milk Producers Association, which will function as the county organization of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association. Other officers are Windsor W. Hodges, of Comus, vice president, and Otto W. Anderson, of Rockville, secretary.

L. R. Sabine, of Laytonsville; J. Vinson Peter, of Rockville; James D. King, of Germantown, and Windsor W. Hodges, of Comus, were elected Montgomery County members of the general board of the bi-State organization.

A mass meeting will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Silver Spring Firehouse under the auspices of the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department, at which representatives of each of the Silver Spring civic organizations are expected to be present.

Plans for the department and prospective legislation necessary to carry them out will be discussed. The civic representatives also will be given an opportunity to examine the new $8,000 pumper engine, which is being tested by the department.

The new system of teaching which is being used in Montgomery schools was described to the Garrett Park Citizens Association at a meeting in the Garrett Park School by Mrs. Henry T. Norson and Miss King, teachers at the school. The citizens association voted $30 for the purchase of additional equipment for the school. Mrs. Gladys Edmonds is chairman of the association's school committee.

Capt. L. L. Dye, chairman of the public utilities committee, reported that $3,400 was expended for streets in the town last year and that an appropriation of $2,500 has been made for further road work this year. A like amount probably will be appropriated next year, after which the road tax will be discontinued.

The association voted appreciation for the gift of a piano to the community chapel and 80 books for the school library, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis W. Call, for the lighting of the community Christmas tree by R. L. Harrison and the gift of a stove to the chapel by Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Plank. Other committee chairmen who reported were: W. M. Plank, safety; Sheldon Akers, sanitation; C. W. Renshawe, membership; Miss Edith Rucker, social; Richard Akers, laws and legislation; Frank Rapee, sports and recreation; Mrs. William C. Beck, publicity. Officers of the association are: S. H. Ingberg, president; William C. Beck, vice president; Miss Marian Carter, secretary; L. F. Wilkinson, treasurer.

Officers Halt Youths Digging Out of Jail Cell

Elkton, Md., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Sheriff Albert Buckworth and several deputies spent the early morning hours today watching with interest two youths convicted of automobile theft as they tried to dig their way out of the county jail.

After the pair had dug a large hole in the floor of their cell with an iron pipe they had wrenched from the wall the officers called a halt.

The two, Michael Erosso and Arthur Patton, Hartford, Conn., were arrested two weeks ago. They were sentenced to six months each.

$5,000 DRUG CACHE DISCOVERED IN CELL

TRAFFIC COUNT PLACED

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 26.—A. O. Jones and Eugene Maddox, arrested here for operating an automobile with 1930 license plates, were taken to Roanoke today to face charges of Harrison narcotic act violations after officers found large quantities of morphine and Heroin in a cell they had occupied at police headquarters.

Deputy United States Commissioner C. E. Gentry and Detective L. C. Rocchiccoili, Roanoke, who came for the men, said the narcotics, contained in paper sacks and tin boxes, was worth $5,000 at retail prices. They said Jones and Maddox had long been suspected of complicity in a drug-peddling ring operating between New York, Philadelphia and Roanoke. The men were arrested here over the week-end on the automobile charge.

They explained they were broke, but had their license plates in Roanoke. Chief of Police C. W. Hollis confiscated the car until they returned with the license. They left headquarters with no baggage, but were seen boarding a motor bus with two suit cases. They were taken off the bus at Woodstock, Va., and brought back. Search of their baggage brought out the morphine and heroin and also hypodermic needles, sterilized cotton and syringes.

Other packages of drugs were later found hidden in a cell. Neither would make a statement. Roanoke officers said Jones and Maddox were believed to be members of a large narcotic ring operating in Eastern States.

A SPLENDID opportunity for the people of Washington to see the new Ford cars and trucks — to examine their many special features — to get a clear picture of the reasons why the new Ford is a value far beyond the price.

See the distinctive new Victoria and the many other standard and de luxe body types. You will find among them the particular type for your particular use. All are available in a choice of colors. All combine an unusual degree of good performance and economy.

The same wide selection is apparent also in the Ford trucks and commercial units. These include the Natural Wood Panel Delivery, the Town Car Delivery, the De Luxe Panel Delivery, 157" Panel Delivery, the De Luxe Police Patrol, ambulance, funeral coach and service car.

Interesting Talking Picture: "A Trip Through the Ford Plant"

This feature alone is well worth a visit. The photography is excellent, the subject intensely interesting. It brings to you right here in Washington industrial scenes which yearly bring thousands of people from all over the world to the Ford plant.

You will see the conversion of Ford-owned raw materials into iron and steel — the development of the metal into vital mechanical parts — the final assembly of all into the now familiar Model A. When you've seen and heard how efficiency and economy and craftsmanship have been put into volume production, you will realize how so much value can be given without increase in price.

POLITICS AND VETERANS' RELIEF.

Cash payment of veterans' certificates has been thrust as a definite issue into the political arena. More than 50 bills have been introduced in the Senate and House proposing all varieties of settlements, with no practical means of financing them. Hearings are being held before the Senate finance committee. The House ways and means committee will begin hearings this week.

Indorsement of the "principle of immediate cash retirement" by the executive committee of the American Legion has added to the scramble of certain representatives and senators who are anxious to have their names connected with a measure that finds favor with the veterans. In view of the opposition of the Treasury and the practical difficulties of financing an immediate cash settlement some Democratic legislators think they see an opportunity of making a political issue of the matter at the expense of the administration.

Most of the bills introduced on this subject are poorly drawn. Three Senate bills would authorize payment of the face value of the certificates at a cost of $3,412,000,000. Since these certificates do not mature for fifteen years or more the effect would be to add $1,670,000,000 to the cost of veterans' compensation. All veterans would take advantage of this settlement, and the paid-up endowment policies which Congress gave them for protection of themselves and families would be dissipated. The Garner bill, which is being pushed in the House, would involve so much administrative work that relief might not become available before the emergency passed.

A measure by Senator Dill provides for optional payment of the present value of certificates to veterans, which would cost about $1,707,500,000. Another bill by Senator Vandenburg would increase the average loan value of the certificates from $216 to $300. Under the latter measure veterans would retain an equity in their certificates and their families would still be protected in event of their death. But apparently neither of these measures will satisfy the veterans' organizations and members of Congress who favor cash payments.

The greatest danger seems to be that Congress, in order to please the soldier vote, may dissipate a valuable asset belonging to the veterans and put an unwarranted burden on the taxpayers. With supply bills awaiting for action it seems too much to hope that Congress can enact a satisfactory veterans' relief measure at this session. Some of the most vociferous of the supposed friends of the veterans are only playing politics.

RAILROAD RATEMAKING.

It is not surprising that the Association of Railway Executives should oppose the Interstate Commerce Commission's suggested amendment to the Howell bill providing for the repeal of the limitations of earnings and recapture clauses of the interstate commerce act. The Howell bill was introduced following the Supreme Court's O'Fallon ruling for the purpose of giving the commission authority to fix earnings according to the principles used in the valuation of the St. Louis & O'Fallon property. The commission, in its suggested amendment, proposes that it be allowed to consider general conditions in industry and trade as a factor in making valuations, but the railway executives seemingly are of the opinion that the proposal constitutes another effort to evade by legislation that part of the court ruling which sustained their contention that present cost of reproduction must be considered a factor in the making of rates.

The commission proposes in suggesting the repeal of the recapture and limitation of earnings clauses that "the present and prospective transportation needs of the country, the necessity, in the public interest, that the carriers shall be able to establish and maintain a credit sufficient to attract the capital required to meet these transportation needs," and "the necessity in the public interest, that the carriers shall furnish transportation service to shippers and travelers at the lowest rates consistent with adequate service and the meeting of the transportation needs" be considered factors in the making of rates. On the surface this would appear to constitute a wise revision of the act. Under it the commission could take into consideration the business cycle, adjusting rates from time to time to permit the roads not only to earn an adequate return but even to permit them to build up cash reserves against leaner years while, at the same time, it could prevent exploitation of shippers and travelers.

On the other hand, such an amendment would invest the commission with greater discretionary powers than Congress has seen fit to invest in any other agency of Government. While it is true that under the present law few of the roads are able to earn up to the established "fair rate of return," and equally true that a new fair rate of return established according to prevailing conditions might prove too large or too small, and therefore unfair either to the public or the carrier, still the investing of the commission with too great discretionary power might end in disaster. With a flexible formula such as is proposed the commission might be forever altering rates of return to meet passing conditions, so that the roads never would know what their future income would be, while shippers would never know what future freight rates would be.

The railway executives fear that the commission's present standardized system of making valuations might be perpetuated. Since the Supreme Court already has ruled that the standardized system is, in effect, unconstitutional, it would seem that the roads have little reason to fear that it will be perpetuated no matter what kind of legislation may be approved by Congress. But the dangers involved in granting the commission too wide latitude in the making of rates are real.

NO PLACE FOR AMERICANS

One of the fundamental weaknesses in the Communist program of industrialization in Russia is its dependence upon foreign technicians. Stalin has been able to mobilize labor armies, but he has not been able to develop a class of engineers and executives capable of directing the Soviet's program. It is now admitted that 13,000 additional foreign engineers, technicians and skilled workmen will be needed to carry out the so-called five-year plan during 1931.

There are many reasons why the reds have failed to develop engineering talent among the Russian people. The professional classes and even the more intelligent peasants have been killed off or exiled. Russia has been left with vast herds of workmen—for they have been reduced to the status of cattle—and with no executive or directing talent.

Efforts to train engineers and other experts essential to the modern industrial system have been futile. In the rush to communize Russia insufficient time is allowed for the training of experts. Three-year courses are crowded into a few months. Russian engineers are incompetent.

But there is a more significant reason for the failure of the native engineers. They are snooped upon and hampered by Communist agents. If they make a mistake they face charges of sabotage and counter-revolution, which may be punished by death. No Russian engineer is willing to take the responsibility of directing an important project. This fact suggests that so long as communism continues in operation in Russia it will be dependent upon foreigners for technical assistance.

Soviet officials look to the United States to supply a considerable number of these engineers. In spite of all the propaganda which the Soviet government directs against America, this country is the first to which it turns for skilled technicians. The reds offer unusual inducements to turn men of this type from the service of capitalism to the service of communism.

Americans who accept such positions are contributing directly to the industrial war against their own country. They are promoting the cause of the red revolution.

WAYSIDE HORRORS.

Organized outdoor advertisers of Maryland have risen to defend themselves against the antibillboard campaign which is now sweeping through Washington and vicinity. In the first place, they seem to sympathize with efforts to rid the highways of cards and posters which are tacked on fences, trees, barns, &c. They are of the opinion that 90 per cent of such signs are erected in violation of law, and that if these were removed practically all of the complaint against outdoor advertising would be eliminated.

The complaint of the outdoor advertisers that this movement is directed against billboards regardless of whether or not they destroy natural beauty, and that other eyesores on the highways escape condemnation, is not accurate. There can be no complaint against billboards in their proper place. One expects to see outdoor advertisements in an industrial section, but when whole landscapes of natural beauty are turned into advertising horrors the public revolts.

The present campaign in Washington is to rid the approaches to the city of unsightly construction of all kinds. The public has no quarrel with anybody who does not abuse its rights. Let the industry correct its own abuses and it will meet with no further opposition.

GETTING THEIR WIRES CROSSED.

The advocates of cancellation of Europe's war debts to the United States are getting their arguments badly crossed. The statement by Albert H. Wiggin in behalf of the international bankers seems to have been a signal for all the other internationalists to unloose their propaganda. It is needless to say that they would be more effective if they spoke one at a time, so that the contradictions in their logic would not be so obvious.

K. C. Goodenough, one of London's foremost bankers, had the misfortune last week to build up a magnificent argument for cancellation of these debts and then to sweep it all away with one inadvertent statement. Such a cancellation, he said, would be of incalculable value to American export trade because it would create solvent customers for American products. But he admits that Britain would not be directly benefited, because she collects from her debtors more than she pays to the United States. Mr. Goodenough might explain how Britain would be able to purchase more American goods if her debt to America were cancelled.

It is especially intriguing to find the People's Lobby, of which Prof. John Dewey is president, taking the wind out of the sails which Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler had flung to the breeze. Here are two kindred souls at odds. What shall it profit a nation, shouts Dr. Butler, if it shall collect its debts and lose trade? The poor and the unemployed must not be taxed to make a present of $11,500,000,000 to Europe, answers the People's Lobby. Of course Prof. Dewey's lobby is in favor of giving such a present, providing it is taken from the incomes of the wealthy.

Dr. Butler's sweeping gaze takes in only international trade and good will. Why should he worry about the American citizens who would have to furnish the cash for payment of Europe's war debts? Prof. Dewey keeps his ear a little closer to the ground. Let the gesture be made at the expense of the wealthy. Is it not the capitalist who benefits from extension of international trade? Why saddle an additional burden upon the humble taxpayer for the benefit of "the interests?" In effect, Prof. Dewey exposes the propaganda of his brother internationalist as a mean attempt to swindle the downtrodden masses for the benefit of wealthy exporters.

Out of these contradictions and absurdities the people may be expected to more firmly resolve that they will not be deceived by bankers who prate of "good business" and professors who try to play politics astride the Atlantic.

Senator Howell adopts the novel theory that the eighteenth amendment is the only part of the Constitution that applies to the District of Columbia. It takes a Nebraska legislator to make these discoveries.

A restaurant chef gauges the time required for boiling eggs by the traffic lights outside his window. That makes it tough on the fellow who likes 'em soft-boiled.

District Attorney Rover may be flattered by being asked to rule upon the Senate rules, but what about overruling the Attorney General and the President?

CONDITIONS IN ARKANSAS

By C. F. BYRNS,
In Little Rock Dispatch to the New York Times.

The people of Arkansas have lost a crop by drought. They have lost some of their funds through bank failures. They have lost business through the general depression. But they have not lost their nerve, their balance, nor their faith in the future.

The end of the second week of the legislative session finds the State highway program going full speed ahead, with $2,500,000 in construction contracts already awarded. It finds the Legislature considering a county road building program, recommended by Gov. Harvey Parnell, which is second in size and importance only to the $100,000,000 Martineau program of State highways launched four years ago.

It finds a plan for reorganizing the State government before the senate, and practically certain to be referred to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment for a vote in November, 1932.

It finds a flood of measures designed to improve bank and insurance laws, afford temporary tax relief, or provide funds for loans to farmers.

But it finds, too, a Legislature with its feet on the ground and its desire to do something to please the folks back home somewhat cooled by the conservative advice of Gov. Parnell in his inaugural message, to avoid fantastic schemes to cure economic ills by legislative palliatives.

The people of Arkansas are fully conscious of the need which exists among some of its citizens. They appreciate the sympathetic interest of those who in their efforts to help have used the unfortunate and rather trivial incident at England three weeks ago as a horrible example in their drive for relief funds. They know the England incident, unimportant in itself, could have happened in any one of 21 States which are receiving aid from the American Red Cross because of drought. They feel just a bit resentful that this incident has been used to make the name of the State the symbol of want and destitution and misery, leading the parade of the supplicants for help.

Help is needed in Arkansas. No sensible citizen would deny that or minimize it. But the people of Arkansas take comfort in the fact that "if winter comes, can spring be far behind?" and spring will bring a remedy for much of the State's unemployment difficulty, if the Federal drought loan fund functions nearly as well as its sponsors think it will.

Thousands of Arkansas farmers are usually unemployed during the winter. They live on the surplus of the last year, and wait for planting time. This year drought has cut off the surplus of products. Bank failures in the central, southern and eastern sections have tied up funds of many individuals, and general depression has hampered industry. This combination of circumstances has justified the plea for aid from the American Red Cross and from the Federal Government. But Arkansas people know that their temporary plight is no fair yardstick with which to measure their capacities or their future achievements, so they are going ahead, speeding up State highway construction work, with a total of $27,000,000 of State funds, in addition to Federal aid, in sight for this year and next, and a county road program now under consideration which will mean the spending of $20,000,000 in five years, beginning in 1933, in permanent county roads.

Gov. Parnell has made the farm-to-market road program and State government reorganization the principal objectives of his second elective term. His county highway program is based upon a bond issue of $3,000,000 a year for each of five years, financed by a 1-cent increase in the gasoline tax, from the present 5 cents to 6 cents, effective in January, 1933. It provides a highway board in each of the 75 counties, with a primary county highway system on which the State will aid in much the same manner as the Federal Government now aids the States. Its prospects of adoption look bright.

Arkansas is down in the valley just now, where the going is rough. But with the help of a generous people it will get over the hard spots, and its people are confident that the path ahead leads upward toward the peaks.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

REMINISCENCE.

I little understood back then
The gossiping of older men,
Their seeming fancy for the past,
Their thoughts forever backward cast
In reminiscence seemed to be
Intolerable talk to me.

I had no love for pleasures fled,
My youthful eyes were turned ahead;
Tomorrow was the day I sought,
So far my yesterdays seemed naught.
What was to happen gripped me more
Than all that I had known before.

But older men seemed quite content
To live again the years they'd spent.
The joys they'd known; the trials borne,
The nights it had been theirs to mourn,
As if no pleasure they could find
To equal those they'd left behind.

And now like them, I, too, am gray,
Like them I cling to yesterday,
Like them in reminiscence I
Relive the years long traveled by;
And no doubt bore my youngster too,
By telling what we used to do.

Whether He Works for Bread or for the Money to Buy Bread, His Hands Get the Same Kind of Corns.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IF anything big is happening in the world, you must understand it or lose step with your times.

If you would understand Ivan, the poor man of Russia, you must understand that he is striving, by means of a strange short-cut never tried before, to gain the simple comforts and advantages you have taken for granted all your life.

A few years ago he had no ambition, for ambition was useless. All that he earned, above the needs of bare existence, was taken by the nobles, the czar and the church. And hopelessness taught him to hate work and to do as little as he could.

When the revolution came and turned his world upside down, his new masters—who ruled him in the name of liberty—had first of all to overcome his aversion to work.

Here was a bad situation! Masters determined to rebuild a nation and Ivan unwilling to turn a hand.

It isn't man's nature to love toil for its own sake. He must have an incentive. And Ivan's new masters, being shrewd men with knowledge of human nature, soon found the spur to quicken his steps.

They couldn't bribe him with money, for they were determined to abolish private property. The private business man was to be taxed and handicapped until he gave up. But money is nothing in itself. Men can't eat it or wear it. They desire it only because it affords security and power and distinction.

Knowing these things, Ivan's new masters pledged him security. They would always have a job for him, care for him in sickness and pension him in old age.

And as an incentive to do his best, they offered him a way to win power and privilege and disinction—the things that inspire men to covet wealth in other lands.

A new nobility was established. If Ivan worked hard and accomplished much, he was called a "hero of labor" or given the "banner of the red label flag." Then his picture appeared in the papers; crowds stared at him; he was given the best house; he enjoyed privileges coveted by his neighbors. And he could win higher and higher offices—that is, more and more power—by proving himself worthy.

The soviet has not adjusted human nature to itself; it has adjusted itself to human nature.

It merely has new words for old things.

One ruling class was replaced by another; one nobility was slain and another established; money was shorn of power, but men were given opportunity to win the power without the money.

Russia hasn't changed human nature. And Ivan must stand or fall by his own efforts, despite fine new words that cushion hard old facts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Soft Coal Soot Destroying Beauty of Washington and Injuring People's Health.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is high time that a rebellion, battle, or whatever strong movement you choose to name, be taken against the outrageousness of the soft coal nuisance. This is not a manufacturing community like Pittsburgh, where the financial standing of the city depends on the smokestacks.

Thousands of visitors come to Washington to see the sights and are made "sights" themselves with smuts on their noses, smuts on their clothes, smuts in their bathtubs, soot in their very food and every building, street doorway and window covered with a gloomy pall of coal dirt. This much for the looks of the thing; but how about what is far more important, the health of the residents of this city? Scientists have proven that this sooty atmosphere which we people of the Capital of the United States inhale for nine months in the year, is one of the worst possible things for the mucous membrane which lines the nose, throat and lungs. Thousands of tiny particles of this soot form a coating which adheres to the lining of the lungs.

Whenever a movement is made in Washington to abate a nuisance we are told by the tender-hearted gentlemen who "sit in the seats of the mighty" that it will work a hardship on somebody.

Let us stop talking about what a beautiful and splendid city Washington will be when the new white buildings are completed, unless we are going to rise up in righteous wrath and fight this abomination to its extinction.

FLORENCE S. AUGUSTE.

Parents Can Stop Drinking by Children if They Wish.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article in your paper entitled "Parents Making Whisky For Children" is, to my mind, the explanation of the situation that exists today.

As the mother of two high school children who know nothing about the use of strong drink, I should like to lay the blame where it belongs, namely to the parents of the children who claim they can not stop drinking among their children.

These parents remember the days of the saloon just as I do, but many of our children know nothing about it. What kind of parents are these who say that they can not stop drinking among their own children? Either they drink themselves and so are lawbreakers and encourage their children to be such, or they are so spineless that they can not control their children.

Any child who is being supported by his parents can be controlled if the parents are at all deserving of that relationship.

If not, and, unfortunately, many are not, the children would be far better off in schools or institutions where authority is recognized.

A MOTHER.

A Former Cadet Comes to the Defense of the High School Corps and the R. O. T. C. Units.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me to supplement the protest against the attitude Dr. Tucker P. Smith has shown in reference to the High School Cadets and the R. O. T. C. units.

Permit me to say that military training is neither a waste of time nor harmful to its participants. Those who have actually visited the above-named organizations at drill time would undoubtedly learn for themselves that they do not "merely carry a gun on their shoulders and do squads right or left," as Dr. Smith declared the other night at the Friends Meeting House.

The High School Cadets and the R. O. T. C. units have gained high esteem by all who have attended their annual competitive drills, and will continue to do so in spite of the very few who are against them.

As a former cadet I can personally vouch that these organizations teach their members cleanliness, neatness, obedience, courage, determination and courtesy. These are attributes needed by the successful men in the business world. ANDREA P. SCKOPPEGLIA.

None but Total Abstainers Should Have Automobile Permits, Says Mrs. Kirk.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Evidently Mr. Atterbury does not set a very high value on that "jewel," consistency. He is dripping wet in the dining car, but a strict prohibitionist in the engine cab. Nevertheless, he has furnished the prohibition cause with its best illustration.

Let any form of authority, national, State or municipal, honestly enforce Mr. Atterbury's rule. Let such authority declare that none but total abstainers obtain a permit to "step on the gas," and there would be a quick drop in the number of fatalities.

No drinking man should be intrusted with an engine on the streets. Mr. Atterbury has shown the way.

ELIZABETH KIRK.

Praises "Up to the States" Editorial on Prohibition Question.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read your editorial, "It's Up to the States," and I consider it the fairest and most constructive utterance on this question which I have ever read in your paper. I wish all true Americans could have the privilege of reading this editorial. It is a distinct contribution to the question at issue.

Poor Teamwork on This Eleven.

My boy, Billy, says he never knew poorer teamwork on any eleven.

PORTUGAL MAY QUIT LEAGUE OF NATIONS

INEQUALITY IS CHARGED

Geneva, Jan. 26 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—An implied threat of secession from membership in the League of Nations is contained in a memorandum just received at the league secretariat from Portugal. The note, copies of which are being sent to all members of the league, formally renews a previous protest against the system under which nonpermanent members of the league council are elected. Lisbon suggests amendment of the covenant to permit addition of another nonpermanent seat on the council, increasing the council membership from 14 to 15.

Recalling that Portugal received 36 of 51 votes cast at last September's elections, yet did not secure a council seat, the memorandum points out the impossibility of nearly a dozen league members ever entering the council. Lisbon pledges herself never to become a candidate again until the evil is remedied. The Portuguese memorandum says that amendment of the covenant is imperative if the league system is to be saved "from a defect so grave that it will certainly lead the league into a new crisis as soon as the states excluded from the council become convinced of the uselessness of their complaints against a veritable denial of justice."

In revealing the inequality of the political and geographical groupings under which nonpermanent council seats are now rotated, Foreign Minister Branco points out that eleven countries—among them Portugal, Belgium, Greece, Switzerland, Hungary, Bulgaria, Austria and the Baltic States—are permanently deprived of representation on the council.

The Portuguese note quotes former Foreign Minister Fitzgerald, of the Irish Free State, who refused to permit the Free State to become a candidate for a council seat as a member of the British Dominion group as proof that the league assembly has already been divided into a hierarchy of geographical groups revolving in a fixed political orbit.

Portugal's protest is taken extremely seriously in league circles, and it is believed that the reform demanded will be instituted rather than permit defections from the league.

Fish Scores Press In Red Quiz Views

Cities of Nation Blinded to Menace of Radicals, New Yorker Says.

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The metropolitan areas of the nation, particularly New York City, were described today as blinded to the menace of communism in an address by Representative Hamilton Fish to the Women's National Republican Club.

He charged the newspapers displayed an unfair attitude toward the congressional committee for investigating communistic activities in the United States, which he headed.

"I am not disturbed because the editorial writers do not understand the facts," he said. "I have been in politics too long to be much worried by criticism of the press. But I must say I dislike being criticized by Republican newspapers."

Representative Fish said he first became interested in the subject more than a year ago when requested to "oppose recognition of Russia" in a debate. Later, he said, when he learned there was no governmental investigation of communism, he introduced a resolution in Congress that resulted in the naming of his committee.

Officers Named By Welfare Body

Jewish Federation Elects Sundlun to Office of President.

Arthur J. Sundlun was elected president of the Jewish Welfare Federation at a meeting held yesterday at the Hebrew Home for the Aged. Other officers chosen at the meeting were Norman Fischer, first vice president Morris Garfinkle, second vice presiden; Mrs. Louis Kronheimer, secretary, and Paul Himmelfarb, treasurer.

Maj. Julius I. Peyser, retiring president, was given a vote of thanks for his work. Oscar Leonard, executive director, presented a report of the auditor covering examination of books of all agencies in the federation. The report was ordered forwarded to the Community Chest.

Mrs. Charles Goldsmith appealed to members of the federation for immediate enlistment in the work of the Community Chest, of which the federation is a member agency.

Poor Health May Compel Aimee McPherson to Retire

Reunion of Evangelist With Mother Denied by Temple Manager.

Los Angeles, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—F. C. Winters, business manager of Angelus Temple, indicated today that Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist and cofounder of the temple with her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, may retire from its pastorate because of poor health.

Rumors at the temple that Mrs. McPherson's trip East last week to an announced destination signalized her retirement were answered in an announcement by Winters, which read:

"The temple board realizes Mrs. McPherson's health is very poor and we do not want her, nor expect her, to appear except upon those occasions when she is physically able."

Friends said Mrs. McPherson had contemplated relinquishing her work for some time.

Winters' statement followed an announcement that Miss Mae Waldron, secretary to the evangelist, had resigned. Miss Waldron, denying a breach existed between them, said, "The move was simply in accordance with plans we have been making for several years."

Another breach in relations has come between Mrs. McPherson and Mae Waldron.

Mr. Winters said today Miss Waldron resigned last Thursday as secretary of the evangelist and vice president of the Echo Park Evangelical Association, one of Mrs. McPherson's enterprises. The resignation was accepted before the evangelist left last week for a vacation in the East.

AIMEE SEMPLE M'PHERSON

Roberta Star Semple, 19-year-old daughter of Mrs. McPherson, has replaced Miss Waldron, Winters said, but he offered no reason for the change.

Rumors the action might bring about a reunion of Mrs. McPherson and her mother were denied at the temple. When the two split last August Mrs. Kennedy blamed Miss Waldron and demanded that Mrs. McPherson discharge her. She refused.

MRS. BRUCE, FLIER, FORCED TO DESCEND

ON TRIP AROUND WORLD

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Officials of a Baltimore airport were informed tonight that Mrs. Mildred Bruce, British aviatrix, flying from Pittsburgh to Baltimore, had been forced down in a field near Tappahannock, Va. The report said she was uninjured and the plane undamaged.

The report reached the field of the Glenn L. Martin Co. from C. D. Brosman, pilot of a plane that accompanied Mrs. Bruce. She was forced to land, he said, after her supply of fuel was exhausted and she had lost her way.

The English woman, who is making a trip around the world by plane and steamship, left Pittsburgh this afternoon at 2:05 accompanied by two planes. One of these experienced motor trouble and was forced to turn back.

Brosman reported they had encountered bad weather and poor visibility and were finally compelled to land in a farmer's field approximately 40 miles south of Fredericksburg, Va.

After the arrival of darkness and the fact that the plane of the aviatrix was unreported, a message was received from a mail pilot, who had flown from Pittsburgh to Newark during the afternoon. He said Mrs. Bruce followed him as far as Gettysburg, where their routes divided.

He said he understood she was supplied with maps and had intended to fly to Baltimore, following the Lincoln highway and the railroad tracks.

Hawks to Leave Today On Hop to Fort Worth

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Frank M. Hawks, speed flier, will leave the North Beach Airport at 4 a. m. tomorrow for Texas, where he will join Will Rogers for their Red Cross tour.

Hawks will fly the airplane of David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aviation, and, by special permission, Mrs. Hawks will accompany him. Regulations prohibit women from riding in Navy aircraft. Hawks expects to reach Fort Worth tomorrow night. The following day he will join Rogers at Abilene, Tex.

SUIT CITES PLEDGE TO LILLIAN RUSSELL

CHILD SUES FOR ESTATE

Pittsburgh, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Testimony that Alexander P. Moore, former newspaper publisher and Ambassador to Spain, promised Lillian Russell he would provide for her daughter was given today in a hearing on Dorothy Russell O'Reilly Calvit's claim to half of the estate Moore left when he died last year.

Mrs. Calvit, the only child of the famous singer and actress, bases her claim on the promise she alleges Moore made to Miss Russell, whom he married in 1912. In his will Moore left Mrs. Calvit $1,000 of the estate the executors have valued at $575,646.

The first witness at the hearing in orphans' court was Miss Marie Coombe, of Pittsburgh, who said she was employed as a nurse for Mrs. Calvit in 1917. She testified Moore had told his wife she "needn't worry about her daughter, as he would take care of her in life and leave her a portion of the estate at his death.

Only two witnesses were heard before the hearing was adjourned until February 4 because of the illness of Bessie Clayton, former stage celebrity, of New York, who was to be the plaintiff's star witness.

The second witness was Mrs. Anna Newhause, a nurse, of Pittsburgh. She said she heard a conversation between Moore and his wife while the latter's daughter was ill in 1919 and 1920.

Mrs. Newhause quoted Mrs. Moore as saying, "I hope she is given as good care after I'm gone," and Moore replying "No use of you worring about that. I will take care of her, I promise you."

Mrs. Coombe testified on direct examination that Mrs. Moore was worried and wanted to return to the stage to earn money for her daughter. It was at that time, she said, that Moore said he would care for the daughter. The witness testified there was no exact amount promised.

KAISER, AT 72, BUSY MAN WITH STUDIES

Exile Spends Much Time in Denying "War Guilt" of Fatherland.

LETTERS ARE ANSWERED

Doorn, Holland, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—As he enters his seventy-third year tomorrow, Wilhelm II, former Emperor of Germany, can look back upon an active twelve months during which he has devoted much time to his favorite studies along four lines—aviation, theology, archeology and the so-called "war guilt" question.

Although he never has ridden in an airship, the former German ruler has followed the progress of aviation with keen interest and is familiar with all phases of aeronautics. He watches every ocean flight closely and he is personally acquainted with some of the famous fliers of today.

With advancing years the former monarch is studying religion more and more. As head of the Evangelical Church he used to preach upon occasions during services on the high seas. Now he preaches in a modest way daily, expounding the Scripture lessons to the members of his household during the morning devotional exercises.

In connection with the "war guilt" question the former kaiser is bent upon proving to the world that Germany was not responsible for the war. With this in view he conducts a large correspondence with historians in numerous countries. Every statement made by a serious investigator, which he considers erroneous, he challenges and tries to disprove.

Spanish Artist Pricks Ultra Modern Writers

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Jose Iturbi, Spain's greatest pianist, today indulged in a little gentle spoofing at the expense of ultra modern musical composers.

"I have heard," he said, "That some of them use chemical formulae in their musings. It is a pretty idea. I wonder if they could write a piece and call it the symphony of the beefsteak? And, if they did, what? Suppose you call a chemical composition a beefsteak? It is not, you must admit, a very appetizing dinner, nor can a chemical composition make a musical concert."

Airman Risks Life In Testing Device

Felixstone, Suffolk, Eng., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Squadron Leader Goodwin, of the royal air force, today risked his life in a successful demonstration of a device to remove some of the element of danger in landing an airplane.

His plane was equipped with rubber balloons and bottles of compressed air. When he opened special doors in the fuselage the balloons were automatically inflated and pushed out under the wings.

The plane almost sank in the sea when he brought it down, but the mechanism worked and the ship rose to float safely on the waves. Goodwin was not hurt.

Labor Census Criticized.

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The United States labor census of 1930 was criticized as incomplete and unsatisfactory today by Dean Elmer Pancoast, of Goucher College, Baltimore, at the opening session of a two-day conference on unemployment under the auspices of the Religious Education Association of the middle Atlantic area.

POLITICS AND VETERANS' RELIEF.

Cash payment of veterans' certificates has been thrust as a definite issue into the political arena. More than 50 bills have been introduced in the Senate and House proposing all varieties of settlements, with no practical means of financing them. Hearings are being held before the Senate finance committee. The House ways and means committee will begin hearings this week.

Indorsement of the "principle of immediate cash retirement" by the executive committee of the American Legion has added to the scramble of certain representatives and senators who are anxious to have their names connected with a measure that finds favor with the veterans. In view of the opposition of the Treasury and the practical difficulties of financing an immediate cash settlement some Democratic legislators think they see an opportunity of making a political issue of the matter at the expense of the administration.

Most of the bills introduced on this subject are poorly drawn. Three Senate bills would authorize payment of the face value of the certificates at a cost of $3,412,000,000. Since these certificates do not mature for fifteen years or more the effect would be to add $1,670,000,000 to the cost of veterans' compensation. All veterans would take advantage of this settlement, and the paid-up endowment policies which Congress gave them for protection of themselves and families would be dissipated. The Garner bill, which is being pushed in the House, would involve so much administrative work that relief might not become available before the emergency passed.

A measure by Senator Dill provides for optional payment of the present value of certificates to veterans, which would cost about $1,707,500,000. Another bill by Senator Vandenburg would increase the average loan value of the certificates from $216 to $300. Under the latter measure veterans would retain an equity in their certificates and their families would still be protected in event of their death. But apparently neither of these measures will satisfy the veterans' organizations and members of Congress who favor cash payments.

The greatest danger seems to be that Congress, in order to please the soldier vote, may dissipate a valuable asset belonging to the veterans and put an unwarranted burden on the taxpayers. With supply bills awaiting for action it seems too much to hope that Congress can enact a satisfactory veterans' relief measure at this session. Some of the most vociferous of the supposed friends of the veterans are only playing politics.

RAILROAD RATEMAKING.

It is not surprising that the Association of Railway Executives should oppose the Interstate Commerce Commission's suggested amendment to the Howell bill providing for the repeal of the limitations of earnings and recapture clauses of the interstate commerce act. The Howell bill was introduced following the Supreme Court's O'Fallon ruling for the purpose of giving the commission authority to fix earnings according to the principles used in the valuation of the St. Louis & O'Fallon property. The commission, in its suggested amendment, proposes that it be allowed to consider general conditions in industry and trade as a factor in making valuations, but the railway executives seemingly are of the opinion that the proposal constitutes another effort to evade by legislation that part of the court ruling which sustained their contention that present cost of reproduction must be considered a factor in the making of rates.

The commission proposes in suggesting the repeal of the recapture and limitation of earnings clauses that "the present and prospective transportation needs of the country, the necessity, in the public interest, that the carriers shall be able to establish and maintain a credit sufficient to attract the capital required to meet these transportation needs," and "the necessity in the public interest, that the carriers shall furnish transportation service to shippers and travelers at the lowest rates consistent with adequate service and the meeting of the transportation needs" be considered factors in the making of rates. On the surface this would appear to constitute a wise revision of the act. Under it the commission could take into consideration the business cycle, adjusting rates from time to time to permit the roads not only to earn an adequate return but even to permit them to build up cash reserves against leaner years while, at the same time, it could prevent exploitation of shippers and travelers.

On the other hand, such an amendment would invest the commission with greater discretionary powers than Congress has seen fit to invest in any other agency of Government. While it is true that under the present law few of the roads are able to earn up to the established "fair rate of return," and equally true that a new fair rate of return established according to prevailing conditions might prove too large or too small, and therefore unfair either to the public or the carrier, still the investing of the commission with too great discretionary power might end in disaster. With a flexible formula such as is proposed the commission might be forever altering rates of return to meet passing conditions, so that the roads never would know what their future income would be, while shippers would never know what future freight rates would be.

The railway executives fear that the commission's present standardized system of making valuations might be perpetuated. Since the Supreme Court already has ruled that the standardized system is, in effect, unconstitutional, it would seem that the roads have little reason to fear that it will be perpetuated no matter what kind of legislation may be approved by Congress. But the dangers involved in granting the commission too wide latitude in the making of rates are real.

NO PLACE FOR AMERICANS

One of the fundamental weaknesses in the Communist program of industrialization in Russia is its dependence upon foreign technicians. Stalin has been able to mobilize labor armies, but he has not been able to develop a class of engineers and executives capable of directing the Soviet's program. It is now admitted that 13,000 additional foreign engineers, technicians and skilled workmen will be needed to carry out the so-called five-year plan during 1931.

There are many reasons why the reds have failed to develop engineering talent among the Russian people. The professional classes and even the more intelligent peasants have been killed off or exiled. Russia has been left with vast herds of workmen—for they have been reduced to the status of cattle—and with no executive or directing talent.

Efforts to train engineers and other experts essential to the modern industrial system have been futile. In the rush to communize Russia insufficient time is allowed for the training of experts. Three-year courses are crowded into a few months. Russian engineers are incompetent.

But there is a more significant reason for the failure of the native engineers. They are snooped upon and hampered by Communist agents. If they make a mistake they face charges of sabotage and counter-revolution, which may be punished by death. No Russian engineer is willing to take the responsibility of directing an important project. This fact suggests that so long as communism continues in operation in Russia it will be dependent upon foreigners for technical assistance.

Soviet officials look to the United States to supply a considerable number of these engineers. In spite of all the propaganda which the Soviet government directs against America, this country is the first to which it turns for skilled technicians. The reds offer unusual inducements to turn men of this type from the service of capitalism to the service of communism.

Americans who accept such positions are contributing directly to the industrial war against their own country. They are promoting the cause of the red revolution.

WAYSIDE HORRORS.

Organized outdoor advertisers of Maryland have risen to defend themselves against the antibillboard campaign which is now sweeping through Washington and vicinity. In the first place, they seem to sympathize with efforts to rid the highways of cards and posters which are tacked on fences, trees, barns, &c. They are of the opinion that 90 per cent of such signs are erected in violation of law, and that if these were removed practically all of the complaint against outdoor advertising would be eliminated.

The complaint of the outdoor advertisers that this movement is directed against billboards regardless of whether or not they destroy natural beauty, and that other eyesores on the highways escape condemnation, is not accurate. There can be no complaint against billboards in their proper place. One expects to see outdoor advertisements in an industrial section, but when whole landscapes of natural beauty are turned into advertising horrors the public revolts.

The present campaign in Washington is to rid the approaches to the city of unsightly construction of all kinds. The public has no quarrel with anybody who does not abuse its rights. Let the industry correct its own abuses and it will meet with no further opposition.

GETTING THEIR WIRES CROSSED.

The advocates of cancellation of Europe's war debts to the United States are getting their arguments badly crossed. The statement by Albert H. Wiggin in behalf of the international bankers seems to have been a signal for all the other internationalists to unloose their propaganda. It is needless to say that they would be more effective if they spoke one at a time, so that the contradictions in their logic would not be so obvious.

K. C. Goodenough, one of London's foremost bankers, had the misfortune last week to build up a magnificent argument for cancellation of these debts and then to sweep it all away with one inadvertent statement. Such a cancellation, he said, would be of incalculable value to American export trade because it would create solvent customers for American products. But he admits that Britain would not be directly benefited, because she collects from her debtors more than she pays to the United States. Mr. Goodenough might explain how Britain would be able to purchase more American goods if her debt to America were cancelled.

It is especially intriguing to find the People's Lobby, of which Prof. John Dewey is president, taking the wind out of the sails which Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler had flung to the breeze. Here are two kindred souls at odds. What shall it profit a nation, shouts Dr. Butler, if it shall collect its debts and lose trade? The poor and the unemployed must not be taxed to make a present of $11,500,000,000 to Europe, answers the People's Lobby. Of course Prof. Dewey's lobby is in favor of giving such a present, providing it is taken from the incomes of the wealthy.

Dr. Butler's sweeping gaze takes in only international trade and good will. Why should he worry about the American citizens who would have to furnish the cash for payment of Europe's war debts? Prof. Dewey keeps his ear a little closer to the ground. Let the gesture be made at the expense of the wealthy. Is it not the capitalist who benefits from extension of international trade? Why saddle an additional burden upon the humble taxpayer for the benefit of "the interests?" In effect, Prof. Dewey exposes the propaganda of his brother internationalist as a mean attempt to swindle the downtrodden masses for the benefit of wealthy exporters.

Out of these contradictions and absurdities the people may be expected to more firmly resolve that they will not be deceived by bankers who prate of "good business" and professors who try to play politics astride the Atlantic.

Senator Howell adopts the novel theory that the eighteenth amendment is the only part of the Constitution that applies to the District of Columbia. It takes a Nebraska legislator to make these discoveries.

A restaurant chef gauges the time required for boiling eggs by the traffic lights outside his window. That makes it tough on the fellow who likes 'em soft-boiled.

District Attorney Rover may be flattered by being asked to rule upon the Senate rules, but what about overruling the Attorney General and the President?

CONDITIONS IN ARKANSAS

By C. F. BYRNS,
In Little Rock Dispatch to the New York Times.

The people of Arkansas have lost a crop by drought. They have lost some of their funds through bank failures. They have lost business through the general depression. But they have not lost their nerve, their balance, nor their faith in the future.

The end of the second week of the legislative session finds the State highway program going full speed ahead, with $2,500,000 in construction contracts already awarded. It finds the Legislature considering a county road building program, recommended by Gov. Harvey Parnell, which is second in size and importance only to the $100,000,000 Martineau program of State highways launched four years ago.

It finds a plan for reorganizing the State government before the senate, and practically certain to be referred to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment for a vote in November, 1932.

It finds a flood of measures designed to improve bank and insurance laws, afford temporary tax relief, or provide funds for loans to farmers.

But it finds, too, a Legislature with its feet on the ground and its desire to do something to please the folks back home somewhat cooled by the conservative advice of Gov. Parnell in his inaugural message, to avoid fantastic schemes to cure economic ills by legislative palliatives.

The people of Arkansas are fully conscious of the need which exists among some of its citizens. They appreciate the sympathetic interest of those who in their efforts to help have used the unfortunate and rather trivial incident at England three weeks ago as a horrible example in their drive for relief funds. They know the England incident, unimportant in itself, could have happened in any one of 21 States which are receiving aid from the American Red Cross because of drought. They feel just a bit resentful that this incident has been used to make the name of the State the symbol of want and destitution and misery, leading the parade of the supplicants for help.

Help is needed in Arkansas. No sensible citizen would deny that or minimize it. But the people of Arkansas take comfort in the fact that "if winter comes, can spring be far behind?" and spring will bring a remedy for much of the State's unemployment difficulty, if the Federal drought loan fund functions nearly as well as its sponsors think it will.

Thousands of Arkansas farmers are usually unemployed during the winter. They live on the surplus of the last year, and wait for planting time. This year drought has cut off the surplus of products. Bank failures in the central, southern and eastern sections have tied up funds of many individuals, and general depression has hampered industry. This combination of circumstances has justified the plea for aid from the American Red Cross and from the Federal Government. But Arkansas people know that their temporary plight is no fair yardstick with which to measure their capacities or their future achievements, so they are going ahead, speeding up State highway construction work, with a total of $27,000,000 of State funds, in addition to Federal aid, in sight for this year and next, and a county road program now under consideration which will mean the spending of $20,000,000 in five years, beginning in 1933, in permanent county roads.

Gov. Parnell has made the farm-to-market road program and State government reorganization the principal objectives of his second elective term. His county highway program is based upon a bond issue of $3,000,000 a year for each of five years, financed by a 1-cent increase in the gasoline tax, from the present 5 cents to 6 cents, effective in January, 1933. It provides a highway board in each of the 75 counties, with a primary county highway system on which the State will aid in much the same manner as the Federal Government now aids the States. Its prospects of adoption look bright.

Arkansas is down in the valley just now, where the going is rough. But with the help of a generous people it will get over the hard spots, and its people are confident that the path ahead leads upward toward the peaks.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

REMINISCENCE.

I little understood back then
The gossiping of older men.
Their seeming fancy for the past,
Their thoughts forever backward cast
In reminiscence seemed to be
Intolerable talk to me.

I had no love for pleasures fled,
My youthful eyes were turned ahead;
Tomorrow was the day I sought,
So far my yesterdays seemed naught.
What was to happen gripped me more
Than all that I had known before.

But older men seemed quite content
To live again the years they'd spent.
The joys they'd known; the trials borne,
The nights it had been theirs to mourn,
As if no pleasure they could find
To equal those they'd left behind.

And now like them, I, too, am gray,
Like them I cling to yesterday,
Like them in reminiscene I
Relive the years long traveled by;
And no doubt bore my youngster too,
By telling what we used to do.

Whether He Works for Bread or for the Money to Buy Bread, His Hands Get the Same Kind of Corns.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IF anything big is happening in the world, you must understand it or lose step with your times.

If you would understand Ivan, the poor man of Russia, you must understand that he is striving, by means of a strange short-cut never tried before, to gain the simple comforts and advantages you have taken for granted all your life.

A few years ago he had no ambition, for ambition was useless. All that he earned, above the needs of bare existence, was taken by the nobles, the czar and the church. And hopelessness taught him to hate work and to do as little as he could.

When the revolution came and turned his world upside down, his new masters—who ruled him in the name of liberty—had first of all to overcome his aversion to work.

Here was a bad situation! Masters determined to rebuild a nation and Ivan unwilling to turn a hand.

It isn't man's nature to love toil for its own sake. He must have an incentive. And Ivan's new masters, being shrewd men with knowledge of human nature, soon found the spur to quicken his steps.

They couldn't bribe him with money, for they were determined to abolish private property. The private business man was to be taxed and handicapped until he gave up. But money is nothing in itself. Men can't eat it or wear it. They desire it only because it affords security and power and distinction.

Knowing these things, Ivan's new masters pledged him security. They would always have a job for him, care for him in sickness and pension him in old age.

And as an incentive to do his best, they offered him a way to win power and privilege and disinction—the things that inspire men to covet wealth in other lands.

A new nobility was established. If Ivan worked hard and accomplished much, he was called a "hero of labor" or given the "banner of the red label flag." Then his picture appeared in the papers; crowds stared at him; he was given the best house; he enjoyed privileges coveted by his neighbors. And he could win higher and higher offices—that is, more and more power—by proving himself worthy.

The soviet has not adjusted human nature to itself; it has adjusted itself to human nature.

It merely has new words for old things.

One ruling class was replaced by another; one nobility was slain and another established; money was shorn of power, but men were given opportunity to win the power without the money.

Russia hasn't changed human nature. And Ivan must stand or fall by his own efforts, despite fine new words that cushion hard old facts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is high time that a rebellion, battle, or whatever strong movement you choose to name, be taken against the outrageousness of the soft coal nuisance. This is not a manufacturing community like Pittsburgh, where the financial standing of the city depends on the smokestacks.

Thousands of visitors come to Washington to see the sights and are made "sights" themselves with smuts on their noses, smuts on their clothes, smuts in their bathtubs, soot in their very food and every building, street doorway and window covered with a gloomy pall of coal dirt. This much for the looks of the thing; but how about what is far more important, the health of the residents of this city? Scientists have proven that this sooty atmosphere which we people of the Capital of the United States inhale for nine months in the year, is one of the worst possible things for the mucous membrane which lines the nose, throat and lungs. Thousands of tiny particles of this soot form a coating which adheres to the lining of the lungs.

Whenever a movement is made in Washington to abate a nuisance we are told by the tender-hearted gentlemen who "sit in the seats of the mighty" that it will work a hardship on somebody.

Let us stop talking about what a beautiful and splendid city Washington will be when the new white buildings are completed, unless we are going to rise up in righteous wrath and fight this abomination to its extinction.

FLORENCE S. AUGUSTE.

Parents Can Stop Drinking by Children if They Wish.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article in your paper entitled "Parents Making Whisky For Children" is, to my mind, the explanation of the situation that exists today.

As the mother of two high school children who know nothing about the use of strong drink, I should like to lay the blame where it belongs, namely to the parents of the children who claim they can not stop drinking among their children.

These parents remember the days of the saloon just as I do, but many of our children know nothing about it. What kind of parents are these who say that they can not stop drinking among their own children? Either they drink themselves and so are lawbreakers and encourage their children to be such, or they are so spineless that they can not control their children.

Any child who is being supported by his parents can be controlled if the parents are at all deserving of that relationship.

If not, and, unfortunately, many are not, the children would be far better off in schools or institutions where authority is recognized.

A MOTHER.

A Former Cadet Comes to the Defense of the High School Corps and the R. O. T. C. Units.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me to supplement the protest against the attitude Dr. Tucker P. Smith has shown in reference to the High School Cadets and the R. O. T. C. units.

Permit me to say that military training is neither a waste of time nor harmful to its participants. Those who have actually visited the above-named organizations at drill time would undoubtedly learn for themselves that they do not "merely carry a gun on their shoulders and do squads right or left," as Dr. Smith declared the other night at the Friends Meeting House.

The High School Cadets and the R. O. T. C. units have gained high esteem by all who have attended their annual competitive drills, and will continue to do so in spite of the very few who are against them.

As a former cadet I can personally vouch that these organizations teach their members cleanliness, neatness, obedience, courage, determination and courtesy. These are attributes needed by the successful men in the business world. ANDREA P. SCKOPPEGLIA.

None but Total Abstainers Should Have Automobile Permits, Says Mrs. Kirk.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Evidently Mr. Atterbury does not set a very high value on that "jewel," consistency. He is dripping wet in the dining car, but a strict prohibitionist in the engine cab. Nevertheless, he has furnished the prohibition cause with its best illustration.

Let any form of authority, national, State or municipal, honestly enforce Mr. Atterbury's rule. Let such authority declare that none but total abstainers obtain a permit to "step on the gas," and there would be a quick drop in the number of fatalities.

No drinking man should be intrusted with an engine on the streets. Mr. Atterbury has shown the way.

ELIZABETH KIRK.

Praises "Up to the States" Editorial on Prohibition Question.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read your editorial, "It's Up to the States," and I consider it the fairest and most constructive utterance on this question which I have ever read in your paper. I wish all true Americans could have the privilege of reading this editorial. It is a distinct contribution to the question at issue.

Poor Teamwork on This Eleven.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Far be it from me to insinuate that the Wickersham commission report is a poor half million dollars' worth; albeit I know I could have discovered the same difference of opinion in my own family for a smaller sum. My boy, Billy, says he never knew poorer teamwork on any eleven.

PORTUGAL MAY QUIT LEAGUE OF NATIONS

INEQUALITY IS CHARGED

Geneva, Jan. 26 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—An implied threat of secession from membership in the League of Nations is contained in a memorandum just received at the league secretariat from Portugal. The note, copies of which are being sent to all members of the league, formally renews a previous protest against the system under which nonpermanent members of the league council are elected. Lisbon suggests amendment of the covenant to permit addition of another nonpermanent seat on the council, increasing the council membership from 14 to 15.

Recalling that Portugal received 36 of 51 votes cast at last September's elections, yet did not secure a council seat, the memorandum points out the impossibility of nearly a dozen league members ever entering the council. Lisbon pledges herself never to become a candidate again until the evil is remedied. The Portuguese memorandum says that amendment of the covenant is imperative if the league system is to be saved "from a defect so grave that it will certainly lead the league into a new crisis as soon as the states excluded from the council become convinced of the uselessness of their complaints against a veritable denial of justice."

In revealing the inequality of the political and geographical groupings under which nonpermanent council seats are now rotated, Foreign Minister Branco points out that eleven countries—among them Portugal, Belgium, Greece, Switzerland, Hungary, Bulgaria, Austria and the Baltic States—are permanently deprived of representation on the council.

The Portuguese note quotes former Foreign Minister Fitzgerald, of the Irish Free State, who refused to permit the Free State to become a candidate for a council seat as a member of the British Dominion group as proof that the league assembly has already been divided into a hierarchy of geographical groups revolving in a fixed political orbit.

Portugal's protest is taken extremely seriously in league circles, and it is believed that the reform demanded will be instituted rather than permit defections from the league.

Fish Scores Press In Red Quiz Views

Cities of Nation Blinded to Menace of Radicals, New Yorker Says.

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The metropolitan areas of the nation, particularly New York City, were described today as blinded to the menace of communism in an address by Representative Hamilton Fish to the Women's National Republican Club.

He charged the newspapers displayed an unfair attitude toward the congressional committee for investigating communistic activities in the United States, which he headed.

"I am not disturbed because the editorial writers do not understand the facts," he said. "I have been in politics too long to be much worried by criticism of the press. But I must say I dislike being criticized by Republican newspapers."

Representative Fish said he first became interested in the subject more than a year ago when requested to "oppose recognition of Russia" in a debate. Later, he said, when he learned there was no governmental investigation of communism, he introduced a resolution in Congress that resulted in the naming of his committee.

Officers Named By Welfare Body

Jewish Federation Elects Sundlun to Office of President.

Arthur J. Sundlun was elected president of the Jewish Welfare Federation at a meeting held yesterday at the Hebrew Home for the Aged. Other officers chosen at the meeting were Norman Fischer, first vice president Morris Garfinkle, second vice presiden; Mrs. Louis Kronheimer, secretary, and Paul Himmelfarb, treasurer.

Maj. Julius I. Peyser, retiring president, was given a vote of thanks for his work. Oscar Leonard, executive director, presented a report of the auditor covering examination of books of all agencies in the federation. The report was ordered forwarded to the Community Chest.

Mrs. Charles Goldsmith appealed to members of the federation for immediate enlistment in the work of the Community Chest, of which the federation is a member agency.

Fifi Dorsay on Way To Canal Against Will

Saturday night she went to San Pedro and boarded the Dutch steamer Drechtdyk to bid some friends adieu. The steamer sailed and some time later, when she went to the deck, she saw the ocean where the gangplank had been. Her next stop is Cristobal, Canal Zone.

ARTHRITIS

Many physicians have found Mountain Valley Mineral Water of Hot Springs, Arkansas, a valuable adjunct in treating certain forms of Arthritis. This is only what may be expected from a study of this famous water's known effect on the system—gentle, regular elimination of trouble-making waste products by all four natural channels—a considerable control over the uric acid and acid-toxin content of the tissues—an aid in the restoration of mineral deficiencies due to faulty dietary. Poor Health May Compel Aimee McPherson to Retire

Reunion of Evangelist With Mother Denied by Temple Manager.

Los Angeles, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—F. C. Winters, business manager of Angelus Temple, indicated today that Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist and cofounder of the temple with her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, may retire from its pastorate because of poor health.

Rumors at the temple that Mrs. McPherson's trip East last week to an announced destination signalized her retirement were answered in an announcement by Winters, which read:

"The temple board realizes Mrs. McPherson's health is very poor and we do not want her, nor expect her, to appear except upon those occasions when she is physically able."

Friends said Mrs. McPherson had contemplated relinquishing her work for some time.

Winters' statement followed an announcement that Miss Mae Waldron, secretary to the evangelist, had resigned. Miss Waldron, denying a breach existed between them, said, "The move was simply in accordance with plans we have been making for several years."

Another breach in relations has come between Mrs. McPherson and Mae Waldron.

Mr. Winters said today Miss Waldron resigned last Thursday as secretary of the evangelist and vice president of the Echo Park Evangelical Association, one of Mrs. McPherson's enterprises. The resignation was accepted before the evangelist left last week for a vacation in the East.

AIMEE SEMPLE M'PHERSON

Roberta Star Semple, 19-year-old daughter of Mrs. McPherson, has replaced Miss Waldron, Winters said, but he offered no reason for the change.

Rumors the action might bring about a reunion of Mrs. McPherson and her mother were denied at the temple. When the two split last August Mrs. Kennedy blamed Miss Waldron and demanded that Mrs. McPherson discharge her. She refused.

MRS. BRUCE, FLIER, FORCED TO DESCEND

ON TRIP AROUND WORLD

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Officials of a Baltimore airport were informed tonight that Mrs. Mildred Bruce, British aviatrix, flying from Pittsburgh to Baltimore, had been forced down in a field near Tappahannock, Va. The report said she was uninjured and the plane undamaged.

The report reached the field of the Glenn L. Martin Co. from C. D. Brosman, pilot of a plane that accompanied Mrs. Bruce. She was forced to land, he said, after her supply of fuel was exhausted and she had lost her way.

The English woman, who is making a trip around the world by plane and steamship, left Pittsburgh this afternoon at 2:05 accompanied by two planes. One of these experienced motor trouble and was forced to turn back.

Brosman reported they had encountered bad weather and poor visibility and were finally compelled to land in a farmer's field approximately 40 miles south of Fredericksburg, Va.

After the arrival of darkness and the fact that the plane of the aviatrix was unreported, a message was received from a mail pilot, who had flown from Pittsburgh to Newark during the afternoon. He said Mrs. Bruce followed him as far as Gettysburg, where their routes divided.

He said he understood she was supplied with maps and had intended to fly to Baltimore, following the Lincoln highway and the railroad tracks.

Hawks to Leave Today On Hop to Fort Worth

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Frank M. Hawks, speed flier, will leave the North Beach Airport at 4 a. m. tomorrow for Texas, where he will join Will Rogers for their Red Cross tour.

Hawks will fly the airplane of David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aviation, and, by special permission, Mrs. Hawks will accompany him. Regulations prohibit women from riding in Navy aircraft. Hawks expects to reach Fort Worth tomorrow night. The following day he will join Rogers at Abilene, Tex.

SUIT CITES PLEDGE TO LILLIAN RUSSELL

CHILD SUES FOR ESTATE

Pittsburgh, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Testimony that Alexander P. Moore, former newspaper publisher and Ambassador to Spain, promised Lillian Russell he would provide for her daughter was given today in a hearing on Dorothy Russell O'Reilly Calvit's claim to half of the estate Moore left when he died last year.

Mrs. Calvit, the only child of the famous singer and actress, bases her claim on the promise she alleges Moore made to Miss Russell, whom he married in 1912. In his will Moore left Mrs. Calvit $1,000 of the estate the executors have valued at $575,046.

The first witness at the hearing in orphans' court was Miss Marie Coombe, of Pittsburgh, who said she was employed as a nurse for Mrs. Calvit in 1917. She testified Moore had told his wife she "needn't worry about her daughter, as he would take care of her in life and leave her a portion of the estate at his death.

Only two witnesses were heard before the hearing was adjourned until February 4 because of the illness of Bessie Clayton, former stage celebrity, of New York, who was to be the plaintiff's star witness.

The second witness was Mrs. Anna Newhause, a nurse, of Pittsburgh. She said she heard a conversation between Moore and his wife while the latter's daughter was ill in 1919 and 1920.

Mrs. Newhause quoted Mrs. Moore as saying, "I hope she is given as good care after I'm gone," and Moore replying "No use of you worring about that. I will take care of her, I promise you."

Mrs. Coombe testified on direct examination that Mrs. Moore was worried and wanted to return to the stage to earn money for her daughter. It was at that time, she said, that Moore said he would care for the daughter. The witness testified there was no exact amount promised.

13 Lives Lost as Vessel Sinks Off Spanish Coast

LETTERS ARE ANSWERED

Doorn, Holland, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—As he enters his seventy-third year tomorrow, Wilhelm II, former Emperor of Germany, can look back upon an active twelve months during which he has devoted much time to his favorite studies along four lines—aviation, theology, archeology and the so-called "war guilt" question.

Although he never has ridden in an airship, the former German ruler has followed the progress of aviation with keen interest and is familiar with all phases of aeronautics. He watches every ocean flight closely and he is personally acquainted with some of the famous fliers of today.

With advancing years the former monarch is studying religion more and more. As head of the Evangelical Church he used to preach upon occasions during services on the high seas. Now he preaches in a modest way daily, expounding the Scripture lessons to the members of his household during the morning devotional exercises.

In connection with the "war guilt" question the former kaiser is bent upon proving to the world that Germany was not responsible for the war. With this in view he conducts a large correspondence with historians in numerous countries. Every statement made by a serious investigator, which he considers erroneous, he challenges and tries to disprove.

Spanish Artist Pricks Ultra Modern Writers

"I have heard," he said, "That some of them use chemical formulae in their musings. It is a pretty idea. I wonder if they could write a piece and call it the symphony of the beefsteak? And, if they did, what? Suppose you call a chemical composition a beefsteak? It is not, you must admit, a very appetizing dinner, nor can a chemical composition make a musical concert."

Airman Risks Life In Testing Device

Felixstone, Suffolk, Eng., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Squadron Leader Goodwin, of the royal air force, today risked his life in a successful demonstration of a device to remove some of the element of danger in landing an airplane.

His plane was equipped with rubber balloons and bottles of compressed air. When he opened special doors in the fuselage the balloons were automatically inflated and pushed out under the wings.

The plane almost sank in the sea when he brought it down, but the mechanism worked and the ship rose to float safely on the waves. Goodwin was not hurt.

Labor Census Criticized.

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The United States labor census of 1930 was criticized as incomplete and unsatisfactory today by Dean Elinor Pancoast, of Goucher College, Baltimore, at the opening session of a two-day conference on unemployment under the auspices of the Religious Education Association of the middle Atlantic area.

DEATH TAKES HEAD OF CITIZENS' GROUP

WAS FEDERAL WORKER

Christopher Lehmkuhl, president of the Petworth Citizens Association, and popularly known as the "Mayor of Petworth," died Sunday at his home, 716 Upshur street northwest, following an illness of several months. He was 52 years old.

Mr. Lehmkuhl was a native of New York City. He attended school there until the death of his father, when his family moved to West Hoboken, N. J. He went to school in that city until he was 14 years old, when it became necessary to seek employment, and he obtained a position as a plate printer with Tiffany & Co. He served in that position until 1902, when he came to Washington and secured an appointment in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. He had been employed at the bureau for 28 years.

Was Friend of Labor.

For many years Mr. Lemhkuhl had been closely identified with organized labor. He was a member of the executive committees of New York and Washington Printing Locals. He became affiliated with the Democratic party workers in New York and New Jersey, and attended the Democratic convention in Indianapolis as a member of the Hearst Democratic Club committtee.

At the time of his death Mr. Lehmkuhl was serving his third consecutive term as president of the Petworth Citizens Association. He had been prominently associated with community work in that vicinity for more than 18 years. He was a member of the Petworth Methodist Episcopal Church.

Active Welfare Worker.

For a number of years he had been active in social welfare work, and was captain of Region 3, Section 16, of the Community Chest.

Surviving Mr. Lehmkuhl are his widow, Mrs. Catherine Lehmkuhl; a son, William Lehmkuhl, and two sisters, Miss Dora Lehmkuhl and Miss Annie Lehmkuhl.

Funeral services will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at his late residence. The body will be placed on a train at midnight for Union City, N. J., where additional services will be held tomorrow. Interment will be on Thursday in Middle Village, Long Island.

Assistant Professor Is Named at G. W. U.

Wilfred Phelps Thomas, a graduate of Williams College, has been appointed assistant professor of romance languages at George Washington University, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Prof. Ralph Baxter Foster. He will resume his duties with the opening of the second semester, February 4.

In addition to the degree of bachelor of arts and master of arts, received at Williams, Prof. Thomas holds a degree of doctor of philosophy from Johns Hopkins University. He is a veteran of the World War, serving in France with the Seventy-Seventh Division. He later returned to France, receiving a degree from the University of Montpelier.

EARLY HOUSE ACTION ON RELIEF FORECAST

warned the committee that assumption by the Federal Government of the responsibility of furnishing money for the Red Cross would close private sources of charity revenue.

Chairman Wood explained at the outset of the hearings, which were thrown open at the demand of the Democrats, that the purpose was to obtain "to the fullest possible extent all facts" regarding the necessity for the appropriation.

Surg. Gen. Cumming and Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army Engineers, are to testify today, with John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, to conclude the hearings tomorrow.

The $25,000,000 appropriation was attached to the Interior Department annual supply bill by the Senate. It is opposed by President Hoover, who is president of the Red Cross. Administration followers in the House have been called upon to oppose passage.

Representative Hastings (Democrat), Oklahoma, elicited from Secretary Hyde, Mr. MacDonald and W. C. Warburton, chief of the Agriculture extension service, the fact that they had not data as to unemployment conditions in metropolitan areas and States.

They pointed out, however, that under the $116,000,000 employment emergency fund and the $45,000,000 drought relief fund employment would be furnished, and credit eased in different sections of the country.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Mr. Cramton pointed out that if there were 5,000,000 men unemployed, and they with their families would account for 20,000,000 persons, at the rate of $2,000,000 a day the $25,000,000 would last but twelve and one-half days. Mr. Byrns said that if that was the case, it would last longer than the $10,000,000 sought by the Red Cross.

Mr. Hastings charged the investigation had gone far afield, and asserted the testimony should be on actual unemployment and destitute conditions.

Arkansas Authorities Keep Communist Jailed

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Frank Brown, admitted Communist, who was arrested here Saturday on charges of attempting to incite a riot among unemployed and drought-stricken farmers, remained in prison today as authorities awaited information regarding his status as a citizen of the United States.

Dominick Zini, Little Rock restaurant operator, arrested with Brown on similar charges, was released under $2,500 bond today. Prosecuting Attorney Carl E. Bailey said he had verified Zini's claim that he is a naturalized citizen of the United States.

Curiosity "Sold"

Tight Credit After Drought Reason Farmers Need Aid

Bank Failures Lead to Situation Where Owner of 80-Acre Tract Worth More Than $3,000 Is Unable to Borrow $200.

By J. C. STARK.

Harrisburg, Ark., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Lack of credit is intensifying distress in the Arkansas drought sections.

Bank failures have swept the State—more than 100 closing in the last three months. Those still operating already have more farm paper than they want.

The result is that in some instances owners of small farms have been driven to the Red Cross for food for their families.

Marvin Watkins, a lawyer here, told of a farmer who last year bought a farm for $1,500, paying $1,000 in cash. Last summer's blazing sun wiped out his crop. He had nothing but a dilapidated automobile and a little livestock.

He could find no one interested in a second mortgage on his farm nor could he dispose of his car and livestock at any price. He offered to sell these for $20, but could find no buyer. He's on the Red Cross list here for the weekly food rations.

Mr. Watkins told of another case where the farmer had no mortgage on his farm of 80 acres. It was worth from $3,000 to $4,000. The man wanted to borrow $200 to go through the winter, offering 10 per cent interest and a bonus of $10. With the loan secured by a first mortgage on the farm, he could not find any one interested.

Harrisburg had two bank failures after the major flood of 1927, leaving only one in the town of 1,300. This one closed last November, along with the 40 or so others in what is generally called the A. B. Banks Chain, but it reopened a week later with new capital and now is said to be on a sound basis. It is making few loans of any kind.

"We can't do it," said W. S. Martin, assistant cashier. "I made two little loans today, but the only reason I did was for self-protection. The people already owed us, so we took some more security and let them have a little more money."

The loans run from $50 to $300, Martin said. To get this much the farmer must give a first mortgage on his land and also on his next crop. Live stock is not worth anything as security now because there is nothing to feed the stock and many are dying.

Tenant farmers in this section look to the landlords to "furnish" them from one crop to the next. Since the landlords have no credit, the tenants are on charity.

INTERNATIONAL ISSUE SEEN OVER RUM-CRAFT SLAYING

The "one hour's steaming distance" was a principal point in the controversy over the sinking of the I'm Alone, a Canadian vessel, which is now under arbitration.

Cluett was the first Canadian citizen to be killed in the war on rum-runners, although other British nationals have met death and one Frenchman was killed in the I'm Alone affair.

International Problem.

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Complications similar to those in the moot I'm Alone case threatened the United States Government in connection with the seizure of the liquor ship Josephine K. and the killing of her captain by a Coast Guard cutter off Ambrose Light Saturday night.

Louis Halle, engaged by the Josephine K.'s owners, the Liverpool Ship Co., of Halifax, said tonight he would contend before the special board of inquiry, which will sit tomorrow, that the Josephine K. was fired upon well outside the 12-mile limit and that the atatck was unjustifiable.

The commander of the Coast Guard cutter reported the shooting occurred within the 12-mile limit, when the rum runner refused to heed warning shots to stop.

Meanwhile, 21 officers and seamen of the Josephine K. and the barge Brooklyn the tug Dauntless, No. 6, which were seized with the rum runner, were held under bonds ranging from $500 to $7,500 each for hearings February 10.

Held Outside Limit.

Those arraigned were charged with conspiring to import liquor illegally, without payment of duty and in violation of the Federal prohibition and customs laws, into the Southern district of New York.

Robert B. WATTS, Assistant United States Attorney, told the United States Commissioner Cotter there was no doubt about the offense charged. Halle, as counsel for the rum ship owners, and Raymond E. Stefferson and Edmund M. Bourke, representing the crew of the tug, protested, asserting no crime had been committed.

"As I know," said Halle, "after studying the case for 24 hours," the acts complained of did not occur within 10, 12 or 15 miles of the coast, but 4½ miles southeast of Ambrose light, which itself is beyond the mileage limit.

See No Crime.

"It has been decided again and again that unless liquor is actually brought ashore, no crime has been committed by those in the boat at sea.

"In this case, the pursuit began and the shooting occurred without any attempt to haul the barge ashore.

"Then, too, subordinates on board can not conspire with their captain. They were bound to obey his orders. This case is an unfortunate one in which the captain has given all the bail that he could. He has given his life."

Watts contended that the shooting occurred within the 12 mile, or one hour limit and that it had been permissible under customs laws, which require any vessel to heave to when called upon by a Coast Guard boat to do so.

Board Hearing Set.

The board of inquiry which will sit at the Coast Guard station, Staten Island, tomorrow, is composed of Capts. Thomas M. Molloy and John J. Ryan, and Commander Joseph E. Sitka.

Partly disabled by Coast Guard gunfire, the ritish motor boat Temiscouda from St. Johns, Newfoundland, carrying a crew of six and a cargo valued at $75,000, was captured today off Culloden Point, on the north shore of Long Island Sound, and was being brought here tonight. The crew will be arraigned on charges of smuggling.

Two 1-pound shells fired by the CG-288, after the Temiscouda had ignored warning shots, tore through the British boat. One of the shells crashed through a fuel tank above the deec and flooded the craft's engine room with gasoline. The other shell entered the engine room, damaging a switch and preventing full power operation.

Government Is Silent.

Ottawa, Ontario, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Watchful waiting described the attitude tonight of the department of external affairs in respect to the killing of Capt. William P. Cluett by the United States Coast Guard and the seizure of his ship, the Josephine K. Through the Canadian Legation at Washington the department has asked the United States Government for a statement of the facts. Until this statement is received, official comment is withheld.

"The department of external affairs is making inquiries," was the brief statement of Premier R. B. Bennett today. Mr. Bennett is secretary of external affairs as well as prime minister of Canada.

It would not be surprising if the case of the Josephine K. attained almost as much prominence as that of the famous I'm Alone, which has been referred to arbitration. In certain respects the two cases are parallel. Apparently, both vessels were engaged in the liquor business. Both were discovered by the United States Coast Guard vessels. Both were fired upon.

Canadian Is Victim.

In the case of the I'm Alone, the ship was sunk after being chased out to the high seas and raked with gun fire. One man, a citizen of France, was drowned. The vessel was flying the aCnadian flag.

There is one feature of Josephine K case which makes it even more serious than that of the I'm Alone from the Canadian point of view. A Canadian citizen was killed. This brings the matter before the government in a very definite way.

The department of external affairs could not state today when the arbitrators in the I'm Alone case will open their hearings.

No comment was available here on the suggestion that, in the event of difference between the two governments, the Josephine K. case may be referred to the I'm Alone arbitrators.

Autoist Knocked Train Into Ditch, Suit Says

DRY WOMAN WANTS WET'S PROSECUTION

CLUB DINNER INVOLVED

Baltimore, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Federal prosecution of William H. Stayton official of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment was asked today by Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson president of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League because of alleged testimony before a congressional committee that liquor had been served at a dinner at the University Club in Baltimore.

Mrs. Nicholson in a letter to Attorney General Mitchell asked what action had been taken or was contemplated as the result of the testimony she said had been given by Stayton before the Senate judiciary committee about the dinner in the University Club in 1928.

Stayton said today the testimony was a year old and that he knew of no action against him.

"And anyway I wasn't at the dinner myself. But there was a dinner," he said.

Mrs. Nicholson's letter said:

"May I respectfully inquire if any action has been taken by the Department of Justice against Capt. William H. Stayton of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment who testified before the judiciary committee several months ago that at a dinner he and other members of the association arranged at the University Club in Baltimore in 1928 liquor was served costing nearly $100?

"Also that he had distributed packages to friends containing peach brandy and other liquors.

"In view of this flagrant violation of the prohibition law, not having seen, up to the present time, any action taken by your department, the members of my organization are anxious to learn if any action has been taken and if not if any is contemplated."

R. Clifford Black Dead; Prominent as Jeweler

BANDITS GET $19,000 IN STORE GUN FIGHT

MONEY ON WAY TO BANK

Chicago, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A gun battle in a crowded department store resulted today in the wounding of three men as bandits made a successful foray to obtain $19,000 in receipts.

Customers scattered in panic from bullets which whistled along the main floor corridors of a Wieboldt department store on the North Side.

In the fusillade exchange by two policemen and five bandits who commanded them to "hand over the money," Patrolman William Binder, Joseph Andresco, a customer running to shelter, and one of the holdup men were wounded. But meanwhile another of the bandit quintet had seized the packet of money from a guard.

Binder whipped out his pistol and guards had just alighted from an elevator when the holdup men stalked up to them.

"Hand over the money," they said.

Binded whipped out his pistol and fired. The bandits returned the shots. Four of them were retreating, meanwhile, toward an outside doorway. A fifth snatched the money. They backed outside the door and escaped in a sedan, driving northwest.

The money was to have been taken across the street to the Citizens State Bank. Store officials said their receipts were deposited there daily.

Four Are Held as Police Probe Man's Shooting

Police are holding four Negroes while they investigate the shooting early yesterday which seriously injured Harry Hargrave, 24 years old, Negro, who was found with a bullet wound in his back at the home of the wife of Milton Guy, who is under sentence of death in connection with the slaying of Lamar Watson York, a revenue officer, last April.

The home is on Brooks court northwest. Those arrested were Katherine Guy, 28, and Dorothy Dean, 21, both of the Brooks court house, and Sylvester Johnson, 22, of Twelfth street northwest near T street, and Ernest Nelson, 27, of Six-and-a-Half street northwest near M street. They are charged with investigation. Hargrave is in Freedmen's Hospital in serious condition.

BONUS PLAN'S COSTS HELD $3,412,000,000

face value of his certificate today it would have little remaining value.

Each veteran would sacrifice about 50 per cent of the face value of his certificate by surrendering it now, he added.

The actual cash outlay by the Government in order to pay the face value of the certificates today would be $3,145,000,000 after deducting the loans now outstanding, the veterans' head said.

"As this would increase the bonus, every veteran would take advantage of it, would'nt he? Senator Watson (Republican), Indiana, asked.

"It wouldn't be good business if he didn't," Hines replied.

Hines told the committee 3,498,000 certificates have been issued with a face value of $3,528,022,000, or an average of $1,008 each. He added the Government had paid out $101,000,000 in matured certificates, leaving 3,397,973 outstantling today with a face value of $3,426,768,507.

Hines estimated that if the bill introduced by Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, to pay only the present value of the certificates were enacted only half of the veterans would take advantage of it, and the cost would therefore be $800,000,000.

Deducting loans outstanding, this could probably be paid out of the Government's sinking fund which now amounts to about $700,000,000, he said.

Meantime, Senator Connally (Democrat), Texas, introduced a companion measure to the bill introduced in the House by Garner.

Advocates of about 50 different bills proposing cash payments prepared to demand swift action before an open hearing by the House ways and means committee. Chairman Hawley announced the committee will begin consideration of all pending measures on Thursday. Immediately sponsors announced they will resist delay in committee. Hawley said the study would require "at least several days."

On the floor Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, assailed the Republican leaders for so long delaying consideration of bills for cashing veterans certificates.

"The gentleman knows very well the committee is going to report out a bill," interrupted Representative Stafford (Republican), Wisconsin.

Four Drown as Bus Skids.

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Four passengers in an interurban bus running between Fordon and Bydgosz were drowned today when the vehicle skidded in the ice-covered street and toppled into a river. Rescuers chopped off the roof with axes, bringing out eight semiconscious passengers and four bodies.

GIRL, 19, CLEARED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Chemist's Testimony Offered to Refute Claims of Informer.

WHISKY SALE ALLEGED

Alice Duffy, pretty 19-year-old girl, was found not guilty by a Police Court jury yesterday on a charge of possessing liquor in violation of the prohibition law.

The girl, who recently came to Washington from Philadelphia, was arrested ten days ago by the Police Vice Squad at a house on Ninth street northwest near L street. The police operated on a search warrant.

The case was featured by testimony of Dr. L. C. Spear, Treasury Department chemist. A police informer, who testified that he had purchased liquor, identified the pint of liquor he turned over to police raiders as coming from the same gallon jug which police seized as evidence.

Dr. Spear then testified that the pint bottle contained corn whisky and the gallon jug contained gin. The jury was out but a few minutes. Attorneys Harry T. Whelan and William B. O'Connell appeared for the young woman.

Alumni at G. W. U. To Honor 5 Justices

OLD GOLD TAKES DETROIT "IN HIGH."

MOTOR CITY SITS IN ON RIPLEY'S FOUR-BRAND CIGARETTE TEST. YES, O. G. WINS!

Won't somebody . . . some city . . . some section . . . please step up and lick OLD GOLD in one of these four-brand taste-tests . . . just for variety?

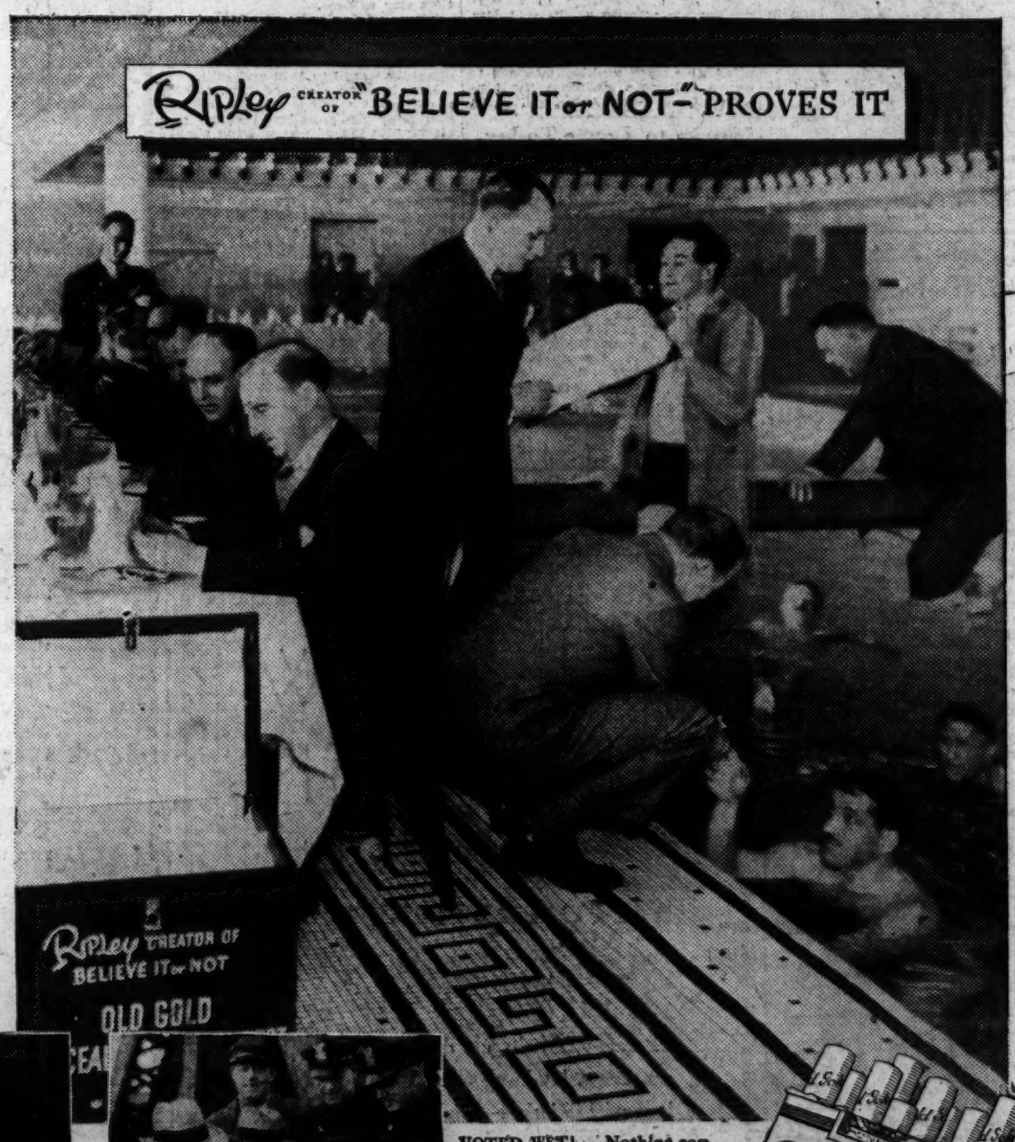
Take Detroit! I took it . . . or rather OLD GOLD did . . . in stride. Greeted the Mayor. Met Detroit Clubmen. Stood in the middle of the International Bridge. Raced all over town, with four leading brands of cigarettes to be sampled by Detroit's busy populace.

And what happened? The same OLD GOLD story! The same OLD GOLD win! This time by a 33% margin!

I tell you this famed throat-ease of OLD GOLD is fact, not fancy. That's why O. G. clicks in every taste-test.

Still . . . it takes an exception to prove a rule. And I am still looking for the group or city that won't pick O. G.

(Signed) Ripley



"BELIEVE IT OR NOT, YOUR HONOR . . ." Ripley acknowledges Mayor-Frank Murphy's cordial welcome to Detroit by presenting him with a copy of his book.

INTERNATIONAL CONCLAVE on cigarette tastes! Ripley getting the vote of United States and Canadian customs men.

VOTED WET! . . . Nothing can stop Ripley when he's tracking down truth. Even the swimmers in Detroit's Athletic Club took the OLD GOLD test.

Mrs. Hoover Is Painted for Girl Scouts

Portrait by Russian of West to Be Hung in New York.

HAVING been commissioned by the Girl Scouts of California to paint Mrs. Hoover's portrait, Gleb Ilyin, whose name as an artist carries considerable prestige on the West Coast, has just completed an oil of the First Lady of the Land and has received high praise from her for his work.

Mr. Ilyin arrived in Washington about the middle of January from San Francisco and begin work on the portrait, the first he has done in the East. He will give a private exhibition of the painting at the Mayflower tomorrow afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Hoover is portrayed in Girl Scout uniform. As she is honorary president of the Scouts, and the painting is a present from the California group to the national organization, it is held particularly appropriate that she should have chosen regulation attire. The portrait will be hung at the headquarters in New York.

Mr. Ilyin is a Russian and his career as an artist began there several years ago. However, like countless thousands, he sought refuge about seven years ago from the Soviets.

He went to Japan and lived there before going to San Francisco, where he is a member of the leading organizations in the world of art, including the famous Bohemian Club. It was through the efforts of influential people there that he was commissioned to paint the portrait of Mrs. Hoover.

All artists aspire to paint the President and the First Lady, and they are painted several times during an administration. Douglas Chandor, well-known British artist, only recently completed an oil of President Hoover. The portrait will be exhibited internationally. It shows the President seated at the head of the Cabinet table in the executive offices of the White House.

Mr. Mellon Entertains Hoovers Tonight.

Assembly Ball Colorful Event; Envoys Attend

Flags of All Nations Help to Make Affair International.

Color and romance, lent by an atmosphere of historic interest, featured the annual Washington International Assembly last night at the Willard, where flags of all nations added the gay touch as a background to numerous boxes reserved for envoys from many lands. With many members of the Diplomatic Corps present and distinguished guests representative of old Washington, the ball combined an aspect of internationalism with one of dignity and charm.

Before a background of palms Mrs. Claude A. Swanson headed the receiving line, with Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong and Mrs. Joseph E. Washington also in the line, all identified with the assembly since its revival several years ago, and all members of the board of governors.

As guests began arriving about 10:30 and the ballroom gradually became a maze of dancers, the many groups of guests were notably significant for their representation of old families in Washington, with a goodly sprinkling of gay young people. Among those who had boxes were the Ambassador of Brazil, Mr. S. Gurgel de Amaral; the Ambassador of France and Mme. Claudel, the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi, the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Andrew W. Mellon; Mr. Stanislaw Massalski, Second Secretary of the Polish Embassy, and Mme. Massalska; Mr. Hubert de Wichfeld, Counselor of the Danish Legation, and Mme. de Wichfeld; Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, Mrs. William Livingston Crounse, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. Henry W. Fitch, Mrs. Freeland Peter and Mrs. Stolkes Halkett, who had with her the Minister of Denmark and Mme. Wadated.

Among those at the ball were the Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander; the Ambassador of Italy and Nobile Donna de Martino; the Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar; the Minister of Finland, Md. L. Astrom; the Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos, the Minister of Venezuela and Senora Maria Teresa de Arcaya, the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. van Royen, the Minister of Bolivia and Mme. de

Mr. Cochran is in the Foreign Service and, with Mrs. Cochran, has just come from his post at Wellington, New Zealand. He has been assigned to duty at the State Department.

Miss Childress Is Engaged to Mr. Tompkins

Marriage to Take Place in May; Mother Returns to City.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Childress announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Adair Lyon Childress, to Mr. Francis Meade Tompkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins, of Washington. The wedding will take place in May, although the day has not been chosen.

The announcement comes as a confirmation of rumors which have made the rounds of the younger set for several weeks. Miss Childress, however, wished to wait for her mother's return from a West Indies cruise before making a formal announcement. Mrs. Childress returned to Washington last night.

Miss Childress has one sister, Miss Charlotte Childress. She made her bow to Capital society two years ago after being graduated from Gunston Hall.

Mr. Tompkins was a student at George Washington University, where he became a member of the Gate and Key Society. He is also a member of two fraternities, Theta Delta Chi and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Mr. Childress, who accompanied Mrs. Childress on the cruise, will return to Washington the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Dale, son and daughter-in-law of Senator and Mrs. Porter H. Dale, will entertain a party of eight this evening at the Kentucky Society dinner given in honor of Irvin S. Cobb at the Willard Hotel.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

TREATMENT OF CHILDREN WITH COLDS.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Babies are frequently the victims of colds in the head, because of their thoughtless exposure to some one suffering from this complaint. All colds are contagious and isolation of the baby from them is necessary if spreading is to be prevented. Infection is usually contracted from the sneezing or coughing of some careless person or by unclean hands and handkerchiefs. Too warm living or sleeping rooms, too heavy clothing, too little outdoor air, or exposure and chilling, or enlarged adenoids help to make young children susceptible. Since many of the contagious diseases begin with sore throat or a running nose, it is important to isolate all babies with colds.

If the mother has a cold, she should make every effort to protect her baby from taking cold from her. She should wash her hands thoroughly before handling the baby or preparing his food. If she is nursing the baby she should cover her mouth and nose with four thicknesses of cheesecloth or surgical gauze while the baby is at the breast or while she is bending over and caring for him.

Colds in the head cause difficulty in breathing. Two or three drops of liquid vaseline in the nose three or four times a day help to keep the passages clear and make breathing easier.

What Today Means to You

AQUARIUS.

IF JANUARY 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The adverse periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m., and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Disappointment and worry will result from the astrological influences in force on January 27, and much will stand in the way of progress in both business and domestic life. It would be well to ruthlessly cut through opposition, as the stars favor new adventure. You can make it a history-making day of your life.

Children born on this January 27 will lack self-confidence and will need the aid of a good education and special training in some pursuit to enable them to carry on in adulthood with ease and efficiency. They will have kindly, sympathetic and sincere natures.

If your birthday falls on a January 27, you are more of an autocrat than a democrat. It is difficult for you to associate with others on an equal footing for any length of time. Such links are either broken through your ambition, love of independence, or desire to lead or guide. You alienate your friends, consciously or unconsciously, through your air of superiority. Partnerships do not favor you. Solo work is almost essential for one of your temperament, if peace and permanency are desired.

You do things quickly and unexpectedly, not always realizing the consequences until it is too late to stop or withdraw. In an emergency, you have all your wits about you. Tact and intelligence are both desirable factors—you possess the latter to a marked degree, but the former, not being a natural gift to you, will have to be acquired. Your conversation shows you to be a scholar, but it reveals that you are not a diplomat. Your words are both keen and cutting.

You stand the best chance of happiness attached to a companion with a passive and receptive temperament. Be you man or woman, you will be "boss." You always aim to be fair and square, and you are very generous to those who are near or dear to you. Those who lean on you, will find you to be a sturdy oak.

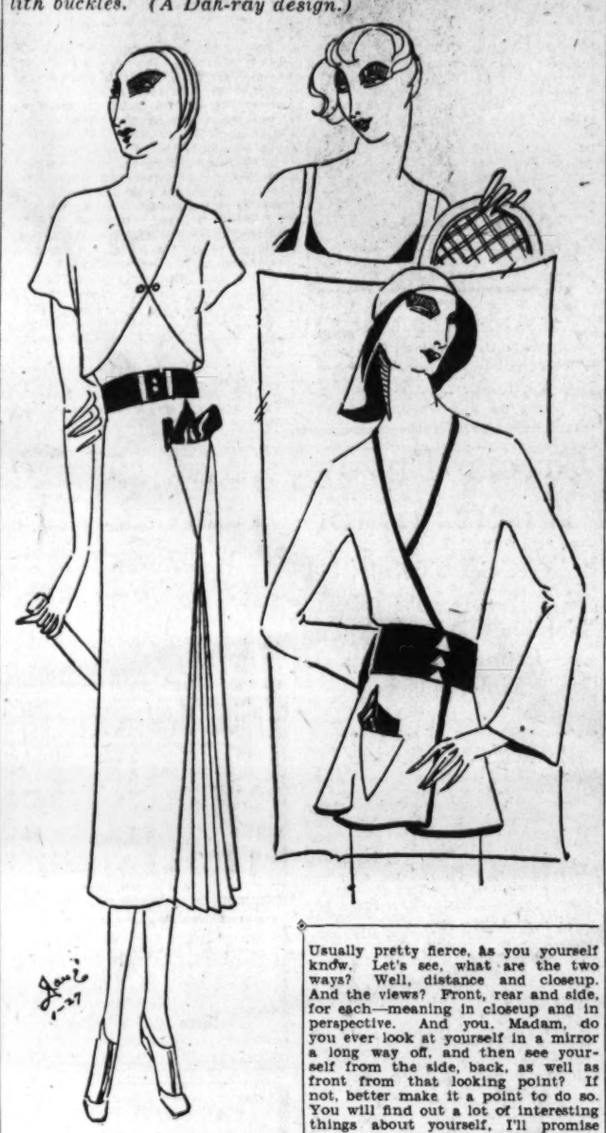
Art Interprets the MODE

Chic in tennis, and practical, too. This white heavy crepe dress is sleeveless for playing, shows a short-sleeved bolero for sauntering, and a smart jacket turns it into a sports outfit for anything at all. Trimmed in blue green and galalith buckles. (A Dah-ray design.)



Paris, Jan. 26.

" • • • to see ourselves as others see us—" especially from the direct rear!

There are two ways that people see you, and both of those ways have three views. Yet the average woman sees herself only one way, and one view. How does that make you out? Usually pretty fierce, as you yourself know. Let's see, what are the two ways? Well, distance and closeup. And the views? Front, rear and side, for each—meaning in closeup and in perspective. And you, Madam, do you ever look at yourself in a mirror a long way off, and then see yourself from the side, back, as well as front from that looking point? If not, better make it a point to do so. You will find out a lot of interesting things about yourself, I'll promise you—not all of them flattering, but all of them correctable.

And then, how about the closeup? Yes, you may think that you know it, but that direct rear view now, have you ever looked it in the face? In relation especially to the way your hat finishes at the back of the neck, the way your suits and belts should end or not end over your hips, &c.

And now, don't pose in the mirror. That's no help—one always tries to look one's best in the mirror to one's self—which is unfair, as it gives one no picture at all of how one really looks to the world in off moments.

How about being fair to yourself for once, and unfair to the rest? Fair to yourself by looking at yourself in mirrors in all the ways that others see you, and if you must be unfair to some one, then be unfair to the world in correcting the faults of posture, carriage and grace that you see in these closeups and long distance mirrors!

• • • •

Now how do you like the tennis dress I have designed for you today? Doesn't it fill a multitude of summer needs? There it is, first of all, a smart tennis dress with a side-front pleated arrangement for freedom which is repeated in the back, a green leather belt and matching handkerchief, and little insets of the same green holding the shoulder straps in place. Then there is a short-sleeved bolero which slips on and makes a smart sports dress of the tennis dress—one for any summer resort, any affair other than tennis. And, a white flannel or serge jacket, lined in the matching green, belted and pocketed, which makes of the whole just the smartest sports outfit you ever, ever saw! She wears a white panama hat with this, lined in green straw. And underneath are white pants, actually, with pleated godets in each side, that match the dress—they're for actual tennis playing, you see. Is it nice?

• • • •

You could even wear the gay 90's waistlet with this, and be comfortable playing tennis! For this little waistlet gives you a normal and slim waistline without any sacrifice to freedom, such as girdles and corsets that hug the hips only do. Wear it with or without a girdle, and be assured of a slim waistline and comfort. And send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, that tells you how to make it, and even make it yourself—if you don't want to turn the leaflet over to your corsetiere.

• • • •

There are always interesting ideas and suggestions and helpful hints in Dare's weekly fashion letter which always appears in the big Sunday Washington Post.

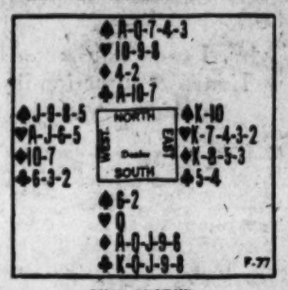
WORK ON BRIDGE

HOW TO HANDLE A MINOR.



TWO-SUITER.

With the above hand at Auction Bridge the bidding would run: South one Diamond, West pass, North one Spade, East pass, South two Clubs.

At Contract Bridge South probably would bid two Diamonds as his hand contains four high-card tricks and two low-card tricks with Diamonds the trump; West would pass, North would bid two Spades, East would pass, and South would bid three Clubs to show the other half of his two-suiter. Then North would bid four Clubs to show strength as well as a preference, and South would make the game bid of five Clubs.

If South started with the artificial two-Club bid, although his hand is a bit weak for that declaration, North would answer with two Spades, South to show the first of his two declarations, and his dislike for Spades, would bid three Diamonds and North then would know that his choice was to be between Diamonds and Clubs. He could bid three Spades to emphasize his Spade strength, and bid five Clubs after South bid four; or North could bid four Clubs immediately after the three Diamonds, and then South would bid five. It would make no difference; five Clubs would be the contract and South would be the Declarer because of his original two-Club bid.

In the play, with three suits bid by the declaring side, West would open with the Ace of Hearts; following with another Heart which South would trump. South then would have to display some skill to make his contract of five, because he might lose a Spade and a Diamond, in addition to one Heart.

As his Diamonds and Spades are the same length, but the Diamonds stronger, Declarer should try to make up the Diamond suit; and to do it he should lead a trump honor, overtake it with dummy's Ace, then a Diamond and a finesse which succeeds, followed by the Nine of trumps won by dummy's Ten. Then a second Diamond finesse, and when that succeeds the insurance play of a small Diamond for North to ruff. A Heart then would be led, ruffed by South, and the last adverse trump drawn.

South then would cash his two winning Diamonds and refuse the Spade finesse on the twelfth trick if it should be possible at that stage of the game that East had a Spade and a Heart.

Wives of Tomorrow

—FRANCES M'DONALD—

YOUTHFUL TRAGEDY.

DEAR Frances McDonald: How can I make my home happier?

I have a darling baby girl, although I am a girl only two years out of high school. I am a real home girl, very neat about myself, home and baby, but my husband does not care for me. He loves the baby very dearly, but is very mean to me. I love affection, but he does not. In fact, we have entirely different ideas on every subject. However, I would do just anything to make our life more happy or even peaceful.

You see we did not marry for love, or rather, he did not. I loved him. But he only married me because of baby. He keeps telling me the only reason I ever got him was for her sake. It nearly kills me. And now he just worships her. But it does not make him forgive me. He says the reason he hates me is that it is all my fault that he did not get the girl he really loved.

Is it all my fault? I can not feel it is, especially as he never even told me there was any other girl. But I never argue this with him, as I feel too awful when he brings it up. Is all my life to be like this? We separated once for two months, but he asked me to come back and I love him, so I came.

But the minute anything goes wrong he calls me all sorts of things and says he might have known what kind I was. Then I feel desperate. He has his things all packed now to leave again. He is an only child, and his own father left him when he was only 2 years old. His mother's folks raised him and he is terribly spoiled. My folks hate him and would take me back any time. They did before. But I feel that I certainly want my baby and feel she is entitled to have him, too, as he loves her so dearly, and no one could be better than he is to her. Isn't she entitled to that? Have I a right to take it from her just because I can have no share of his love?

If there is anything on earth that I can do to make him different or to make him forgive me or respect me, I would be so grateful for the advice. WAITING.

No one has ever discovered a way to turn an ape into a man. The thing that differentiates the two is present or it is not. If it is present we have a man. If it is lacking we have an ape. And nothing can be done about it. And that's that so far as "changing" him is concerned. With regard to your own existence, here are several considerations that should render it more bearable. In the first place, you are in no way responsible for the fact that he was a weakling. Any more than he is responsible for the fact that you were. And he proclaims himself doubly the weakling when he blames you for his own misdeeds, and their inevitable consequences. Secondly, he never loved any other girl and never will love any one but himself. If you will think of these facts the next time he is abusing you, it may help, especially if you will bear in mind at the moment that he should really be dwelling in a tree and eating cocoanuts, instead of holding forth on the law and the moralities to any human being.

As a matter of fact, you should be free of this creature. And it is going to be the beginning of better things for you when you summon the strength to be free of him. As your child grows older it is going to be detrimental to her character for her to be reared in the atmosphere of strife, and you deserve a better fate yourself, so plan for it.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE give me a list of plants shrubs or trees which will attract birds of many sorts to stay with us long into the fall and some perhaps to remain throughout the winter. I want plants which will provide them with needed protection and food such as seeds or berries. MRS. ELLIOTT H. L.

Among the deciduous shrubs, spice bush, Siberian red osier, sweet pepperbush, panicled dogwood, snowberry, black haw and Siebold's virburnum. Among the evergree trees, Japanese holly, red cedar and ground savin. Among the evergreen shrubs, Japanese yews, Canadian yews, evergreen thorn and Himalayan quince berry. Among the deciduous trees, European alder, European bird cherry, scarlet thorn, sweet magnolia, smooth, sumac and European mountain ash. All the above varieties will attract birds and afford them food and shelter.

Does the pachysandra terminalis form flowers; also, is it true that this plant will live in shade? DOROTHY M. K.

This low-growing, attractive little evergreen shrub will thrive in dense shade. It has glossy green leaves and spikes of greenish-white flowers in May or June. It is the best-known ground-cover plant.

There is a Chinese rose which is sometimes used for bank draping, but which is also beautiful enough to use in the shrubbery border or for an individual group in a conspicuous place on the lawn. This variety bears single flowers and is a mass of yellow flowers in May. Can you tell me the name of the rose in question from the above description? I am anxious to purchase twenty of these plants, but, being compelled to order them by mail, must have the proper name before placing the order. A REGULAR READER.

I am sure you refer to the rosa-hugonis.

Please tell me if it is possible to propagate the sansevieria from small pieces of the leaf by merely sticking the pieces in a sandy loam. MARIE T. Y.

Yes, this is an easy way to propagate these plants.

Please tell me when to repot my fancy-leaved caladiums. They have been resting since October. RUTH P. L.

They may be repotted about March 1, in fairly rich soil. Keep in mind the fact that good drainage is important. Water sparingly at first, but when the pots are filled with roots give a great deal. Liquid manure about twice a week is very beneficial. Shade the leaves from the midday sun, otherwise give all the light possible.

Please tell me whether it is possible that the grayish appearance of the leaves of two of my plants is caused by red spiders. I can not find any insects. MRS. WILLIAM G. T.

Yes. Red spiders are minute and unless very bad are hardly seen. Better begin to syringe the affected plants with cold water. Make syringing a daily routine treatment.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

YOUR NAME

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Daw" (also written "Dawe," "Dawes" and "Daws") has come down to us from two quite different sources. In many cases it is a diminutive form of "David." "David" is ultimately of Hebrew origin, and means "beloved." Not infrequently "Daw" was first given as a nickname to persons whose habits were thought to resemble those of the small crow called the jackdaw. In early days the daw was one of the several birds which were popularly accepted as symbols of stupidity. A certain Johannes Dawe is mentioned in an English document of the year 1379.

The family name "Brock" is the modern form of the old English "broc," meaning "the badger." It was generally given as a nickname to persons whose features or habits were thought to resemble those of that animal. However, in a few cases it has become confused with "Brook." The Hundred Rolls mentions a certain Gilbert le Brok and a Walter le Broc.

The family name "Brockway" has come down to us from two English sources. It may mean "the road near the brook" or "the road frequented by badgers." In either case it indicates the place of residence of the persons who were first so called.

The family name "Rademacher" is of German origin and means "one who makes wheels." Its common low German form is "Rademaker." The English equivalent of this name is the rather frequently found "Wheeler," while its Dutch form is "Raemakers." It may be observed that in the Dutch language the letter "s" is added to names which denote trades and occupations.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Interrupting.

Parental response to this sort of behavior varies all the way from resignedly permitting the child to dominate the conversation, to a summary silencing and punishment.

Most parents employ both methods inconsistently, thereby allowing the inconvenient habit to grow, and developing also undesirable attitudes in the child's relation to authority.

It is so easy to cope effectively with the child's natural tendency to interrupt adult conversation that it is too bad that he is so frequently allowed to make a nuisance of himself.

When your child starts to interrupt, take time to tell him you will listen to what he has to say in a moment. Then be sure to keep your word.

Usually this simple device is sufficient. If it is not, it indicates that the child has been receiving insufficient attention at other times, or that he has been trained to expect adult attention instead of learning to become absorbed in his own play.

Be sure that your child has first claim upon you at some time during each day.

Take the trouble to spend a certain time each day playing with him, reading to him, or just chatting intimately, letting him feel all the while that there is nothing else you would rather do at the moment.

Help him to develop the capacity for playing by himself. Give him the right sort of play materials and play opportunities, so that he will acquire a degree of self-sufficiency. This should relieve him of the need for your constant attention, and prevent him from being jealous when you turn it elsewhere.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXIV.

"Mr. [Secretary of War] Garrison told me today," Gen. Wood wrote in his diary of July 25, 1913, "he had made his best endeavors in the Cabinet to point out the inevitable trend of the policy being adopted * * * in effect asking Huerta to step down and out and never to be a candidate again, and he did not see how Huerta could play the game otherwise than by opposing us and becoming a Mexican popular hero. Very much discouraged over the situation. He states that his opinion does not carry much weight, as it is against Mr. Bryan's announced policy."

Late in 1913 a new figure came on the stage of Mexico. Venustiano Carranza, governor of the state of Coahuil, erect and bearded, initiated a counter revolution in defense of the constitution. With Pancho Villa, a picturesque bandit, abysmally ignorant, of violent temper and brutal instincts, but not without a certain coarse magnetism, he bedeviled the Mexican problem in Washington and on the border.

Talk Begins to Appear Futile.

"The present situation can not go on indefinitely," Wood wrote in his diary on October 15. "We are liable to be called upon to do something besides talk before long."

That, indeed, seemed likely, but what form that something might take he sought in vain to discover. A thick fog seemed to lie over the administration. Wood begged the Secretary of War in an official memorandum, in view of the obvious probability of intervention, to give him at least two weeks' notice in advance of any formal announcement of armed action. Transports, he pointed out, must be assembled, supplies sent to the port of embarkation and troops mobilized. Given no notice, there must be delay, and delay means preparation to resist, the destruction of bridges and railroads, the loss of lives and property. But the Secretary of War himself was in the dark. John Bassett More, counselor of the State Department, told Wood that he was not kept informed regarding the plans of the department.

Wood called on Daniels and found him also at sea. Thereupon, he went to see Bryan. If any one knew anything about the foreign policy of the United States it would presumably be the Secretary of State. He asked Bryan what the situation was and what might be expected.

Bryan looked vague. "I don't understand."

Doesn't Know Own Policy.

"In order to know what to prepare for, Mr. Secretary, I merely would like to know what your policy is in regard to Mexico."

"Search me," answered the Secretary.

An atmosphere of amiable sentimentalism dominated the national counsels. Orders even went to the troops on the border to reply only to firing from the other side which could be proved to be "malicious." The orders were dark concerning the authority which was to analyze the motives of the Mexicans. Gen. Hugh L. Scott decided bluntly that, following a warning, any fire which endangered American lives might be described as malicious—"judging by the only means at hand, viz, in the results."

Americans who believe that armed intervention was among the probabilities read with a thrill of horror of the sanction by the American Government of the exportation of arms which might be leveled against American troops. The administration rightly was reluctant to intervene by force, but the border was a powder magazine and any day some reckless hand might touch it off. The Secretary of State himself, in fact, in his naivete, almost precipitated the war he was so anxious at any price to avoid. When an American consul in northern Mexico telegraphed for troops to save an American ranch foreman from execution at the hands of Huerta's troops Bryan telephoned Garrison to send a detachment over the border. This meant, obviously, an invasion of Mexico and therefore war. Garrison turned over to Wood the task of explaining to the Secretary of State that Mexico could not be invaded without specific instructions from the President.

Lind Gives Opportunists Aid.

In Mexico City John Lind, the blueeyed envoy of an administration which had spoken hard words of the "dollar diplomacy" of its predecessors, contributed a happy thought to the orgy of opportunism.

"Yesterday the Assistant Secretary stopped in my office on his way back from the State Department," Wood wrote in his diary, March 27, 1914, and said he had read a dispatch from Mr. Lind to this effect:

"That Lind was of the opinion that the battle at Torreon was going to be in favor of the Constitutionalists. That he, Lind, wanted authority to send for the bankers who are negotiating the loan with Huerta and tell them in effect that if they went in with Huerta that they must remember they had made their bed and would have to lie on it. Whereas, if they declined to make the loan, he, Lind, wanted authority to tell them that in case Huerta made any reprisals or attempted to confiscate their property, put undue pressure on them, that the United States would exercise whatever force was necessary to prevent this.

"The whole tone of the dispatch was of a character which indicated that Lind was doing all he could to embarrass Huerta and consulting with others to this end. The Assistant Secretary said the dispatch was of such a character that he thought it would justify the hanging of Lind by Huerta if the contents were known. In other words, that Lind was conspiring within the territory of the republic for the overthrow of its nominal president. He ended his dispatch: 'Advise you to strike while the iron is hot.' I presume by this he meant to allow him to go ahead with this plan for the further embarrassment of the Huerta administration."

Recruiting Is Sought.

Wood, meanwhile, bombarded the Secretary of War in vain with memoranda asking permission to recruit the Army up to the strength allowed by law. Garrison was sympathetic, but helpless. From Pershing, marooned at the Presidio, Wood received an appeal for a chance to get into whatever might develop. After the active work he had always had to be set off to one side as a mere onlooker did not seem to him, he wrote, to comport with the position of a wide awake brigade commander.

Early in April the situation in Mexico became acute. A boat's crew of American bluejackets, landing at Tampico for supplies, was arrested by an overzealous Mexican colonel. His superior promptly released them, clapped the colonel into jail and sent an apology to the American admiral, Henry T. Mayo, in command of the naval squadron, echoed soon by an expression of regret from Huerta. But the admiral's dander was up. He demanded a delegation of official apologists and a salute of 21 guns to the American flag. President Wilson, who had let the murder of American citizens go unatoned, had was becoming sensitive to the attacks on his policy, supported the admiral with a vigor which made the public blink. Huerta refused to fire the salute. Intervention appeared imminent.

Wood was designated to command the expedition southward.

In the evening of April 20 Gen. Wood was called to the White House. Garrison was there already, with Daniels and Bryan, an admiral or two and the egregious Mr. Lind.

Vera Cruz Plans Formulated.

"The President desired to see us to ascertain the best way of making reprisals at Tampico. Mr. Bryan came out rather strongly in his true colors when he said that reprisals in the way of occupying the town and taking the gunboats would really be to assist the Constitutionalists, as we did not intend to hold the town eventually, and while he wanted to do this he did not want it to be (done in a way) which could be interpreted as helping the Constitutionalists; or, as he said in conclusion: 'I want to help them, but I do not want it to appear as helping them.' This statement, I think, is indicative of the general policy which has actuated him. He seemed to have no conception of conditions among the Constitutionalists. About an hour was used up in this discussion. Finally decided to leave the method of procedure at Tampico to be determined by Admiral Fletcher after report was received from him.

"It was also decided to occupy some time tomorrow morning the port of Vera Cruz. Lind suggested that we occupy only the custom house and not the city; the military absurdity of this was too apparent to require much discussion. The Navy were very doubtful as to the method of procedure; Admiral Fiske and Admiral Blue pointed out with great earnestness the danger to their cruisers if they went into the Panuco River from the field guns of the Mexicans; Admiral Blue stating that the projectiles would go through the cruisers from side to side. It was then timidly suggested by Secretary Daniels that possibly a destroyer might go up the river. At this Admiral Fiske almost had a fit. He said: 'Why, a destroyer costs almost a million dollars, and these hard steel-jacketed bullets which we have now would go right through the side into the boilers.' This dreadful picture seemed to appall everybody, and the destroyers withdrawn from discussion.

Tinclads Yet Unperforated.

"I then ventured to draw attention to the fact that the four little Mexican tinclads had been there for a year, subject to the fire of the Carranza field guns and had not been perforated, and hinted at the possibility of sacrificing a ship like the Dolphin if such a sacrifice were really necessary to accomplish a great object. Also pointed out the fact, in which John Lind joined, that the whole miserable little town with its little tin fortifications—nothing but old field guns behind a ramp on the hill—were under the fire of the fleet at the relatively short range of a few miles.

"The Navy contended that the depth of water in the river was not sufficient to take our ships in. Mr. Garrison, who was listenting with considerable amusement to all this talk, looked over our monograph and found that the water was 30 feet deep on the average for about nine miles and 25 feet for fourteen miles more. In other words, there is plenty of water for any of our light draft cruisers to go in. It was finally decided that Tampico was to be left until tomorrow * * * but that the custom house at Vera Cruz must be occupied because a German ship carrying 15,000,000 rounds of ammunition and 200 machine guns is due to arrive tomorrow morning. The President finally asked all of us individually if we did not think this ought to be done, and we all agreed it should be done."

The seizure of the custom house at Vera Cruz startled the country and the death of eighteen Marines in the process appalled the President, for Lind had made him believe that the custom house could be seized without casualities. The loss oppressed him. In detail his policy toward Mexico appeared a hopeless welter of inconsistency and indecision and cant, but it had a fundamental principle in the President's conviction that a war upon the weak and distracted nation even for its own good would be ignoble and must be avoided at any cost. There was a middle course between ineffective meddling and armed intervention; but he was temperamentally, perhaps, unfitted to follow it. The situation remained suspended in a haze of presidential self-questioning.

Disliked Pershing; Aided Him.

Wood, himself preparing to go to the border, remembered Pershing's appeal for a place at the front. He did not like Pershing. He thought him harsh and lacking in constructive imagination; he resented, moreover, certain acts of Pershing as governor of the Moro Province, which seemed to indicate that Pershing was undoing much of Wood's own work among the Morros, and felt bitter about Pershings' rather cavalier treatment of the men who had distinguished themselves during Wood's regime. But Pershing was an able soldier. Wood ordered him with his brigade to El Paso.

Wood went to the White House, bringing McCoy, laden with maps and reports, to discuss the plan of invasion. McCoy, in the outer office, remembering what he had heard of other councils of war, expected to be sent for after an hour's general discussion and to pass the rest of the night in the development of strategy, but Wood returned from the President's study in five minutes with the word that McCoy's maps and data would not be needed. Wilson had been horrified at the thought of making any plans. Planning would not be neutral.

The press, sensing indecision, became impatient. The Administration, indeed, was running to and fro, divided in council, distracted, without leadership.

More Troops Frowned Upon.

"The President's idea is that no more troops are to be sent down lest it appear that we are really going to make war," Wood wrote in his diary.

"Papers full of a rumor of a rupture in the Cabinet, Lane, William B. Wilson and others standing with Garrison against the Daniels-Brown crowd. * * * Bryan very flabby and wobbly, without knowledge of what he is going to do. Said there was no use in getting ready; that that would only make the other fellow get more ready, then we would have to do more," &c.

Pershing on the border, impatient for the great opportunity, appealed to Wood once more to give him his chance if war with Mexico came. Might he not lead a brigade of infantry under Wood? Or Cavalry? Wood would need cavalry, and the chief of staff knew his, Pershing's, bent as a cavalry leader. There was another possibility, Pershing wrote. Might he not go as Wood's chief of staff? No one, he pointed out, had a higher regard for Wood's ability than he, Pershing; no one, therefore, would serve him more loyally wherever he was placed.

But there was no war after all. Mediation by Argentina, Brazil and Chile failed of its ostensible purpose, but succeeded brilliantly in dampening for the moment the public demand for definite action in Mexico and gave Carranza time to advance on Mexico City. Carranza drove Huerta from power. The American troops were withdrawn from Vera Cruz, the flag remained unsaluted, the Mexican problem remained unsolved. Everything was as it had been, except the Mexicans' respect for the Americans had become contempt and that the American people were a little less jealous of their national prestige.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD—One of movieland's most important but least known accessorial businesses is that of plastic surgery.

Close-ups, enlarging one's face 12 times, bring out blemishes and irregularities that no quantity of make-up can hide.

Several stars have had their noses straightened or built up, their ears pinned back or their entire faces altered.

The late Valentino was among the first to have his ears made less floppy.

BEBE DANIELS

One of the half-dozen Hollywood surgeons who devote almost full time to face remodeling asserted that a majority of the women over 30 in pictures have had their faces lifted. He was not speaking for publication.

Great secrecy usually surrounds facial operations. Vivienne Segal was the first, I believe, to have pictures taken before and after having her nose modified. The change gave her another year in pictures.

Gamble On Outcome

Unless the patient tell, facial transformations seldom become known. If something goes wrong, of course, the details usually come out in court. But I am assured that for every plastic scandal there are a hundred successful cases.

In the last four or five years nearly 2,000 plastic operations have been performed in Hollywood alone. Stars or prominent featured players were patients in only a small percentage of these cases. Numerous extras and small part players, believing their careers were hampered by facial malformations, resorted to surgery.

Fannie Brice, whose nose was not too large for the stage, had it reduced when she tried out in pictures. Bebe Daniels also has had hers "corrected." Two famous fighters, Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, had their battered noses rebuilt when they temporarily went before the cameras. Victor McLaglen and Paul Lukas have had minor nasal alterations.

Too Late.

Almost immediately after being made a flattering radio broadcast offer, El Brandel found that down in the middle of the wherefores and whereases of his film contract was a paragraph in which his company retained all radio and television rights to his talents.

The clause is in all the newer contracts.

Mrs. Dimock was hostess to a party of 42 young people in compliment to Miss Moira Archbold, subdebutante daughter of Mrs. Anne Archbold, and Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose had guests dining with her before the ball.

Mrs. J. Thompson Wailes also entertained at dinner at the Willard preceding the ball.

Mrs. Theodore P. Noyes entertained a small company at luncheon yesterday in the crystal room of the Willard.

3 States Will Honor Alabama Ball as Guests.

Three States will lend support to the annual ball of the Alabama Society at the Willard on February 8, when Georgia, Mississippi and Tennessee will send many guests to the event. Mr. Thomas W. Cain is in charge of activities. The dancing will be from 9 until 1 o'clock. During the 20 minutes intermission the Arlington Glee Club, under the direction of Mme. Vicarino, will give a concert.

Vacation Planned At Palm Beach.

Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, jr., accompanied by their two children, Hamilton 3d and Elizabeth, will leave the last of the week for Palm Beach, where they will spend several weeks.

Mrs. Fish observed two days at home this season, January 6 and January 13.

The engagement of Miss Lois Abbott Worrall, daughter of Mrs. Walter L. Worrall, of New York and Mount Kisco, N. Y., to Mr. Dudley Baldwin Bonsal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bonsal, of Washington, has been announced. Both Miss Worrall and Mr. Bonsal have many friends in Washington.

Mr. Bonsal is a graduate of Dartmouth College and Harvard Law School.

His bride-to-be attended the Walker School at Simsbury, Conn., and is an active member of the New York Junior League.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Mary Katherine Shoemaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Shoemaker, and Mr. Thomas Newton DeLashmutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. DeLashmutt, of Arlington, were married last evening by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, in the chapel of the Mount Vernon Seminary for Girls.

Mr. Basil DeLashmutt was best man for his brother, Mrs. Lee Hauser was matron of honor and Miss Nancy DeLashmutt, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. William O'Brien, Mrs. Robert Newly, Mrs. James Lemon, Mrs. Eugene Casey Miss Grace Harris and Miss Ellen Buell.

Sisterhood's President Takes Post Tomorrow

Mrs. Louis Kalichstein, president of the Sisterhood of the Congregation and Talmus Torah B'nai Israel, will be installed, with other officers of the group, at exercises tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the synagogue, Fourteenth and Emerson streets northwest.

Others who will take office include Mrs. Morris Wittlin, vice president; Mrs. John Krupshaw, recording secretary; Mrs. I. Kaplan, financial secretary, and Mrs. William Rosendorf, treasurer. Mrs. Herman Hollander will be guest speaker. The installation committee is headed by Mrs. L. I. Bellen, dramatic teacher for the Sunday school.

Janney School Pupils To Present Pageant

A historical pageant, written and staged by the fifth grade pupils of the Janney School, will be presented in the assembly hall at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Such characters as Marco Polo and Columbus will appear in the play, which will depict some of the outstanding exploration events in history. All the costumes and scenery were made by the pupils, under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Ruth Webb. The children who are presenting the play won the note book contest of the National Forestry Association last fall.

Attempt to Break Own Swimming Mark Fails

San Francisco, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, Chicago, who sought to break her own record of 86 hours and 16 minutes of continuous swimming, failed by 8 hours and 45 minutes today, when she stopped her "swimathon" at the Crystal Palace Baths.

Mrs. Huddleston stopped after swimming 77 hours and 31 minutes.

Boys' Band to Entertain Shutins at Institutions

The boys' band and the entertainment committee of the Washington Lodge, B. P. O. E., No. 15, will give a series of minstrel shows and band concerts for the shut-ins at a number of institutions and hospitals during February and March.

The schedule of entertainments is as follows: February 2, Home for the Aged, Blue Plains, Va., at 7:30 o'clock; February 5, Home for Incurables, 7:30 o'clock; February 12, St. Elizabeths Hospital, 7:30 o'clock; February 13, District Jail, 8 o'clock; February 19, Mount Alto Hospital, 7:30 o'clock, and March 6, Lorton Reformatory, Lorton, Va.

Black Lace Jacket Smart in Capital

Black lace jackets, worn with black or colored gowns, are the smart thing here for informal Sunday night suppers or afternoon teas.

Mrs. Edward Tracy Clark combines a black lace jacket with red taffeta gown. The short sleeves of the jacket are edged with black fur. The skirt of the dress is in puffed pannier effect. A corsage bouquet, red slippers and pendant earrings of onyx and pearl complete this striking outfit.

Polish House Votes Aid to Jews.

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The lower house of the Polish Diet today passed, by an overwhelming majority, a measure designed to abolish certain restrictions against Jews that have remained as a legacy of Russian domination.

MILLIONS IN SPECIAL TAXES

Buyers of fire insurance indirectly but actually contribute a vast sum—approximately 30 million dollars annually—in taxes, most of which are of a special nature and in addition to the regular taxes borne by insurance companies. Such taxes are a burden upon the premium of the policyholder, notwithstanding they are collected from the companies.

The original purpose of taxes on the premiums paid by policyholders was to maintain state supervision of the business. However, such supervision now uses but a few cents of each dollar so collected. The balance goes into the general funds of the states.

Add to the Cost of Insurance

These special and regular state taxes are factors in the cost of insurance. The opinion of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has been expressed as follows:

". . . Special state taxes now levied on policyholders through insurance companies should not be considered as a source of general revenue, but should be reduced to the total in each state which will adequately support such state's departmental supervision . . ."

Leading Hospitals make it a point to specify Kotex

WHY do you suppose our outstanding hospitals, staffed by world-famous surgeons, make it a point to specify Kotex? There's more than one reason!

In the first place, it is hygienically safe. In the second place, it is amazingly absorbent—and that is vital for all surgical purposes. Actually—think of this—Kotex is five times as absorbent as the finest surgical cotton! Each one of its delicate layers is a quick, complete absorbent in itself.

Adjustable—that's important

These layers of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding can be removed, readjusted to individual needs. That makes a lot of difference not only to hospitals but to you.

Because it is so absorbent and because it absorbs scientifically (not just in one concentrated area, but all over) Kotex naturally stays soft. Another thing—it can be worn on either side with equal protection—both sides are absorbent.

Hospitals need the best. So do you. Safety, security, good health demand it. Why should you be content with anything else when you can buy Kotex everywhere?—at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

You ask for it by name. Simply specify Kotex.

Kotex Company, Chicago.

KOTEX IS SOFT...
1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
4—Disposable, instantly, completely.
Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

NAVY TRAINING MEN TO OPERATE TALKIES

Several Classes Preparing in Anticipation of Installation on Ships.

TO BROADWAYIZE DECKS

In anticipation of installation of sound motion picture equipment aboard vessels of the Navy, scheduled for this spring, two classes of enlisted men are undergoing instruction in operating the talking pictures aboard ship.

The Navy Department has contracted for 250 sets of sound movie equipment at a cost of $870,000. Practically all vessels of the fleet will be fitted with the sound apparatus, as well as all of the Army transports and several ships of the Coast Guard, under the Navy's contract. No submarines will receive the equipment.

Two Classes Training.

For the training of the movie operators, the Navy has established two schools, known as the sound motion picture technicians' schools, one at the New York Navy Yard, the other at the San Diego Naval Training Station. In each of the classes assembled at these schools are 30 men. Thirty-two more are to be trained in sound picture operation at the Navy Yard at Cavite, Philippine Islands, beginning March 7. They will be used in the Asiatic fleet. Personnel of the Army and Coast Guard will be trained at the Navy's schools, it is said.

Delivery of the 250 equipment sets is to begin about April 15, the entire lot being scheduled for installation before the end of July. At that time, full movie programs can be carried on board ship. For the last year or so, the movies, one of the most popular diversions of the Navy folk, necessarily have been curtailed because of the few silent pictures available. Programs are expected to be cut still more during installation of the new equipment.

After the sound apparatus is installed, this condition will not exist, for under an agreement with the Navy most of the leading motion picture producers will provide sound films at a cost less than that of silent films.

The Navy has been working toward the installation of sound pictures aboard ships since 1929. To develop equipment which would efficiently meet the unusual conditions for sound projections while ships are under way, tests were conducted by the Bureau of Engineering, and later aboard the flagship of the United States fleet, the Texas.

Many technical problems arose, for there was no movie equipment then that could be used on the deck of a moving war vessel and be foulproof against sea air, dampness, shock of gun fire, radio interference and a thousand and one other possibilities. These difficulties have been overcome, it is said, and Uncle Sam's man o' warsmen soon will receive the latest talkies at the time they are shown on Broadway or Main street.

Pilot Lands Plane Damaged in Crash

Ludington Lines Craft Hits Derrick but Is Safely Brought to Earth.

Deftness in handling a giant trimotor plane of the Ludington Lines early yesterday saved the life of Pilot P. V. Tompkins, who negotiated a successful landing at Hoover Field after his ship collided with a derrick on a barge anchored in the river.

Completing a flight from New York with some 2,000 pounds of newspapers aboard, Tompkins' plane struck the derrick as the ship drifted through the heavy fog toward the airport. Although one wing was all but torn away, Tompkins clung to the "stick."

According to attaches of the field, the plane lurched to one side, then dropped to earth. Responding to Tompkins' tug on the controls, it jumped nearly a hundred feet to the field before it sputtered to a stop, still upright. The pilot was unhurt. Damage to the wing and landing gear was estimated at $1,000.

Janitor at Church Granted Probation

Man Charged With Theft of Newspaper and Carrying Hidden Weapon.

William Richards, Negro janitor of the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church, at First and B streets southwest, was placed on probation yesterday by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court, when he appeared on charges of petit larceny in connection with theft of a newspaper from an honor-system rack, and of carrying a concealed weapon.

The Negro was arrested Saturday on D street southwest by Policeman W. C. Curtis, of the Fourth Precinct. At the police station it was found he was carrying a .32-caliber pistol, according to testimony.

Shortly afterward William Johnson, Negro, of Knoxville, Tenn., was arrested on a petit larceny charge in connection with the theft of a newspaper from the same honor-system rack. Judge Schuldt fined him $10.

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.
Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.
Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.
Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists. 15c, 30c and 60c.

TIED SCHOOL FIVES RESUME TENSE SERIES TODAY

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—My knowledge of race horses is limited by the fact that they eat hay, cost money and generally run fourth or worse. Once at Saratoga last summer in a big horse race, I saw a critter by the name of Jim Dandy outrun both Gallant Fox and Whichone, and heard afterward that the book makers were paying off on him at the rate of $101 for every dollar wagered, but this latter is only hearsay, as I was not among those who wagered on him.

The next morning I did meet a man, very jumpy and wild eyed, who said he had been sitting at a table with a party of ladies and gentlemen just before the race and had been the only one in the party who declined to bet $20 on Jim Dandy.

At the close of the day's business the well mannered clerks employed by the bookmakers came around to the same table and presented to each of the ladies and gentlemen there present, with the single exception of this gentleman, a check for $2,020. To be neglected thus had made the gentleman feel very morose, and he had been out all night, going from place to place trying to forget the matter, without success.

ALL BUT ONE GET $2,020 CHECKS

However, I did not feel at all unhappy about this myself, because if I had wagered $20 on Jim Dandy my bookmaker probably would have been the one to jump the fence and go away from there with all haste, and even if he had remained to do the sportsmanlike thing by me, I probably should have wagered the $2,020 back into his treasury before the close of business on the following day.

My idea about wagering on the steeds is to ignore them consistently or break the bank, and in this, I believe I am only a member of the overwhelming majority, for it seems that very little gambling money is ever withdrawn permanently from the general gambling fund.

Once I heard of a party who wagered studiously and cautiously all summer long, starting with a modest stake of about $100 and winding up with a profit of about $3,500, but that would not have been my way of going about it.

My way of doing is brash. I am greedy. Never would I wager on a favorite quoted at 1 to 5 or anything less than 2 to 1. At 1 to 5, my profit, if I won, would be only 20 per cent. Considering the risk involved, it would be much better to put the money into vacant lots in some lively suburb where it would have a chance to double itself in five years, and little or no chance to vanish entirely. Of course, I don't know any place where I can pick up real estate in $10 plots, as the suburbs that I am familiar with are all quoted at about $25 for a No. 2 divot, but I am merely dealing with a theory anyway.

PURCHASE OF LOTS BETTER

Now, my idea of a successful operation on the turf is, roughly, a $10 wager on a 15 to 1 shot, yielding a profit of $150, followed by a wager of $160 on some 10 to 1 horse, which would give me $1,760. This trifle would go right back to the store to purchase chances on some other steed at no less than, say, 8 to 1, and I would then be in a position to commence major operations with a roll of $15,840.

I might then retire for the afternoon to give the mutuel department or the bookmakers a chance to reorganize for further business, but the next afternoon I would return and resume the onslaught, as there is no law but the very fallible law of chance, which says that one cannot select an indefinite number of winners without an error.

My $15,840 would begin to operate against me to a slight extent, because by that time I would have a reputation as a dangerous client, and the moment the operators saw me coming the next p. m. they would erase the 10-to-1 quotations and mark up something modest, say, 5 to 1.

SYSTEM IS NOT NEW ONE

However, I would bet $15,000 at 5 to 1. I would have given the $840 in odd money to the girl at the news stand in the hotel in the morning, she being very pleasant and doubtless deserving. The $15,000 at 5 to 1 would raise the tally to $165,000, and by the close of business this time I would have all the betting money in the place, unless, due to some mishap, I had happened to miss one somewhere.

Now, of course, this is no new plan of action. It is, in fact, a very old and obviously simple formula known as the sucker's dream, and the mutuel departments and bookmakers all have been aware of it for many years.

Golf Thriving In Face of Dull Era

Boom Year Enjoyed Especially on Coast and in East.

"Gentlemen Golfers" Transfer Activities to Public Links.

Has the business depression hit the royal and ancient game of golf? To discover the answer, The Associated Press has surveyed conditions, outlined herewith.

By FOSTER HAILEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Come fair weather or foul, high market or low, John J. Duffer plays golf.

Football, basket ball, intercollegiate sport generally, the stock market, many industries, were in the doldrums during 1930, but not the grand old game the canny Scots popularized.

From wave-kissed Lido on Long Island, swept by North Atlantic breezes, to Pebble Beach on the Monterey Peninsula of California, fringing on the blue Pacific, a constantly increasing army of niblick wielders marched down the months from January to December across an enlarging battlefield of greens and fairways.

There were isolated instances of depression both in course improvement and in the number of players, notably at New Orleans and some places through the Midwest where the drought hit hardest, but, generally speaking, 1930 was a boom year in golf.

280,000 at Seattle Use Public Links.

The year was noted for the large increase of municipal links and the play on them and on existing courses. At Seattle 280,000 golfers used the municipal courses in 1930 as compared to 190,000 in 1929, an increase of almost 50 per cent.

At the seat of the golf royalty—Atlanta, Bobby Jones' home town—73,663 more persons played golf last year than played two years ago, 20,000 of that number playing on the new John White municipal course of nine holes. Work is continued on the new eighteen-hole municipal course, named for the Emperor Jones, and before the summer has waned it will be open for play.

Some localities, among them Boston and Los Angeles, reported a loss in membership among the private clubs, but an increase on the municipal links, indicating that many "gentlemen golfers" had been forced by the exigencies of the business situation to play their golf on a pay as you play plan, but they played, somewhere, the reports indicate.

Seven New Courses In Frisco Area.

"Golf had business depression stymied in northern California during 1930," reported the Associated Press sports editor at San Francisco. To prove his point he listed seven new courses completed in the Frisco area during 1930 at a cost of $555,000, improvement programs on established courses costing $64,000, and the forwarding of plans for three more courses to be built during 1931 and to cost approximately $265,000.

Through the Middle West there was no boom in course building during the year, but there was a large increase in the number of players using public links. Many courses, the grass on which was severely affected by last year's drought, have under way or have planned elaborate sprinkling systems to take care of further emergencies of that character.

Cincinnati reported last season the best in history on its twenty courses, only one club having any appreciable decrease in membership, and most of them reporting increases and an enlarged program of improvements.

East Generally Reports Boom.

Through New England and the East generally the same story was repeated.

"Golf never was more popular," and "the business depression has had little effect," observers reported. From eleven of the leading golf clubs in the Hudson Valley area around Albany came reports that more persons played over their courses last year than ever before.

Wilmington, Del., reported golf booming there, as did Philadelphia. The stimulation in the Quaker City was traced to the National Amateur Tournament at Merion, Pa., where Bobby Jones won his fourth major title of the year. The crowds that followed Jones made up their collec-

MORE than 75 Washington men and women's teams already have entered the United States duckpin championship tournament, which will be held on the Convention Hall alleys February 16 to March 7 next, according to George L. Isemann, secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, sponsor of the affair.

Entries for the national tournament closed last Saturday night, but it will take a week at least for the various local alleys to assemble their entries and submit them to Isemann.

55 Washington Teams In 1930 Event.

Last year 55 Washington teams journeyed to Waterbury, Conn., to participate in the affair. Altogether, Isemann expects around 125 local quintets to take part in the 1931 tournament.

Officials in charge of the national tournament have set a 300 team total participation as their goal. This is almost twice the number of teams which took part in the 1930 Waterbury championships, 166 being represented then.

One of the rules of the event is that a bowler can compete with only one team. Were it not for this fact a total representation of 500 teams easily would be made possible. The rule, however, serves to equalize any so-called advantage local teams would have over those coming, say, from Atlanta, Ga., or Boston, Mass., or any other place outside of Washington, where traveling expenses for team personnel are quite considerable.

Prize Total Largest in Event's History.

The aggregate monetary prize for total for the 1931 tournament is the largest in history, the awards totaling around $5,000. This is quite a jump over the $3,100 which was given in prizes in 1927, the first year of the affair, the $3,200 awarded in 1929, and the $4,000 distributed last year.

Defending their title as newspaper champions of the United States in the tournament will be the Evening Star quintet composed of D. McCarty, R. K. Whitford, F. Carmen, C. Holbrook, J. Ellett and D. H. Burrows.

Resolution Asks Probe Of Georgia Athletics

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—An investigation of the athletic departments of the University of Georgia and the Georgia School of Technology regarding the expenditure of funds was asked today in a resolution introduced in the Georgia House of Representatives.

ONE YEAR AT A TIME.

All the New York Yankees, except four who have hold-over contracts—Babe Ruth, Earl Combs, Tony Lazzeri and Bill Dickey—will be given documents calling for the use of their services for only one year, it is reported. The New York officials are understood to be strongly opposed to signing any papers this year for more than one season.

Magnates See Decrease in Home Runs

29 Games Last Year Won With 15 or More Runs.

By FRANK B. YOUNG.

ALTHOUGH the change in the regulation baseball for the coming season is merely a minor one—the raising of the stitches and use of heavier sewing thread so that a better grip may be had by the pitchers—baseball moguls believe that, as a result of the change, home runs will be slightly diminished and there will not be as many high-scoring games resulting.

Unless one goes over the scores for last season, he does not realize to what extent the American League batters battered the ball, no less than 29 contests seeing the winning team score 15 runs or more. In many games, the scores read like those of basket ball or football battles.

Take the game between the Yankees and Athletics on May 22, for instance, in which 33 runs were made, the New Yorkers winning, 20 to 13. Ten pitchers were punished in this affair. While this contest produced the largest run-total, the Cleveland Indians led in scoring in a single game when, on May 11, they beat the Mackmen, 25 to 7.

25 or More Runs In Eight Games.

These were the only slugfests in which 30 or more runs were scored, but there were 8 others in which 26 or more were registered, while totals of between 20 and 24 were recorded in 31 games and there were 138 other games in which the winning combination scored at least 10 runs.

There were nine battles in which the losing team scored ten runs or more—tough luck when a team can not win with a total of this size. The Nationals lost one of these contests, bowing to the Mackmen, 16 to 11. This game was on the five in which the Johnsons figured in which the victors scored at least fifteen runs. The Tigers took one of these, 15 to1, with the Nats copping in the other three. Two of these victories were at the expense of the Indians, 18 to 6 and 17 to 4, while the world champion Athletic bowed in the other, 16 to 5.

Nats Won 23 Slugfests Against 11 Defeats.

In games in which the victors scored at least ten runs, the Nationals won 28 and lost 11, the Yankees lost 33 and 23, Philadelphia won 22 and lost 13, and the records of the other clubs were: Cleveland, won 21, lost 18; Detroit, won 12, lost 22; St. Louis, won 10, lost 20, and Boston, won 5, lost 10.

Here's the record of games in which the winner scored at least fifteen runs, and the pitchers who were pounded:

Cleveland, 25; Philadelphia, 7: Rommel, Mahaffey, Mahon, Liebhardt.

Boston, 18; Cleveland, 3: Hudlin, Shaute, Miller, Jablonowski. New York, 18; Chicago, 9: Lyons, Braxton, Wehde, Washington, 18; Cleveland, 6: Hudlin, Lawson, Jablonowski.

New York, 17; Cleveland, 10: Pennock vs. Hudlin, Shoffner, Beane. New York, 17; Cleveland, 2: Brown, Jablonowski, Holloway, Gliatto, Cleveland, 17; Boston, 7: Gaston, Smith. Philadelphia, 17; Chicago, 9: Henry, Thomas, Welland, Washington, 17; Cleveland, 4: Beane, Brown, Cleveland, 17; St. Louis, 6: Stewart, Collins, Holshouser.

Detroit, 16; St. Louis, 11: Uhle, Sullivan, Carroll, Sorrell vs. Kimsey, Coffman, Holshouser, Gray, Crowder. Philadelphia, 16; Washington, 11: Earnshaw, Rommel vs. Hadley, Braxton, Thomas, Welland. Washington, 16; Philadelphia, 5: Shores, Rommel, Mahaffey. New York, 16; St. Louis, 4: Blaeholder, Holshouser. Chicago, 16; Boston, 4: Russell, Bushey.

Cleveland, 15; Philadelphia, 9: Quinn, Mahaffey, C. Perkins. Detroit, 15; Washington, 1: Crowder, Liska, Fischer. Philadelphia, 15; New York, 7: Ruffing, Sherid, Johnson, Edwards. Cleveland, 15; Philadelphia, 2: Walberg, Rommel. New York, 15; St. Louis, 0: Kimsey, Stiles. New York, 15; Chicago, 4: Braxton, Thomas. Chicago, 15; New York, 4: Ruffing, Holloway, Gomez, Henderson. Philadelphia, 15; St. Louis, 7: Gray, Kimsey, Stiles. Philadelphia, 15; Chicago, 1: Braxton, Henry, Walsh. Cleveland, 15; St. Louis, 5: Gray, Kimsey. Canzoneri Risks Title Against Farr Tonight

New Orleans, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Tony Canzoneri tomorrow night for the first time will defend his newly earned world's lightweight title when he meets Johnny Farr, of Cleveland, in a 10-round, no decision fight. Unless there is a knockout, no official decision will be made.

Spectator interest also will be claimed by Referee Jack Dempsey.

Dempsey is expected to arrive tomorrow morning from New York, where he has been confined to a hospital with an injured hand.

Farr floored Canzoneri in a previous bout, but this is the first time the pair have met since Tony won the title several months ago by knocking out Al Singer in New York.

Phils Outbid 2 Clubs For Coast Outfielder

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Russell "Buzz" Arlett, heavy hitting outfielder of the Oakland Baseball Club, was sold today to the Philadelphia Nationals. Terms of the cash deal were not announced. Sale of the big flychaser to the Phillies culminated a tri-cornered bidding party for his services. The Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Americans had made offers.

It will be Arlett's first trip to the majors. He started with the Oaks thirteen years ago as a pitcher, but injured his arm and was switched to the outfield ten years ago. As an outfielder, he has been the most consistent hitter in the Pacific Coast League for the last eight years, never falling below .328. His batting averages from 1923 were .330, .328, .344, .382, .351, .365, .374, .361.

Arlett throws right handed, but is a switch hitter. In six seasons he has batted in a total of 854 runs and for the last seven years has scored 110 or more runs. He hit 31 home runs in 1930.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE giant statue of Burma is 40 feet high and is constructed of plaster of Paris, paper and bamboo, and is supported by two tall palm trees. The figure represents a Buddhist Priest and is worshiped during religious ceremonies. The huge image is sometimes used as a temporary resting place for the dead. After the religious ceremony, the figure is disrobed and its clothes given to charity.

Officials of the experimental farm at Agassiz, Canada, attribute the remarkable egg-laying record of the white Leghorn h to plenty of skimmed milk and green feed given the chicken in addition to the usual mash rations and scratch grain.

James Galvin pitched two no-hit games in the same year, 1876, while with St. Louis. In 1880, while with Buffalo (N. L.), he twirled another no-hit game, and his fourth came in 1884, while pitching for the same team against Detroit.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

ALTHOUGH the Olympic games of 1932 are a long way off, plans are going forward steadily at Los Angeles for the meet. The rowing events, from July 30 to August 14, will be held in a beautiful setting at Long Beach, 45 minutes from Los Angeles.

A specially constructed stadium is being prepared with space on the banks of the course for 100,000 spectators and room at the finish for 10,000 more in a reviewing stand.

Arnold Eddy, general manager of athletics at the University of Southern California, is also the hockey coach. He walked into the coaches' office carrying the President Hoover Trophy, emblematic of the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate winter games championship, won recently by Trojan skaters at Yosemite.

"Look at that," said Jones. "And tell me we glorify football.

"My boys played for three months and didn't even get a 2-inch cup. Arnold takes his gang on a week-end vacation and they are back with a cup 3 feet high given by the President of the United States.

"And here I've been studying my game for 25 years while this fellow (with a wink in the direction of Eddy) never saw an ice hockey game until last year and hasn't learned to skate yet."

KNUTE ROCKNE, talking football over a radio hookup from Los Angeles, picked the all-time, everywhere "Rock" back field. He named Morley Drury, former Southern Californian; Elmer Oliphant, formerly of Purdue and Army; Jim Thorpe, the great Indian star of Carlisle, and Ernie Nevers, the Stanford standout who still plays the game.

Drury, from a sick bed in a hospital, heard Rockne charge him with the responsibility of calling the signals. The responsibility, however, might not be so great after all, for with Thorpe, Oliphant and Nevers to carry the ball, it would not make much difference who took it.

Thorpe, "the greatest all-round player of them all," said Rockne, also was listening in and he must have smiled when the great coach nominated him to do the punting until he was tired and then have Drury give him a hand, or a foot.

That back field should be able to advance the ball so well little kicking would be necessary, but even if he had to kick on every play, Jim Thorpe would not get tired.

"Rock" had his joke with his old friend, Pop Warner. Let Rockne tell it.

"I saw Pop last summer and in all our conversations he asked, 'Why don't you get rid of that shift?'

"And then a few weeks ago, I read in the papers that Pop's Stanford team was shifting.

"I telegraphed him, asking what about it.

"He wired back.

"'We are not shifting. I have only switched two men.'"

Head of Iowa U. Is Blamed For Ouster by Legislature

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Dr. Walter A. Jessup, president of the University of Iowa, today was charged by the educational institutions committee of the Iowa House of Representatives with being largely responsible for Iowa's ouster from the Western Athletic Conference.

The assertion was one of twenty charges listed by the committee in a resolution calling for an investigation of the university administration.

The document was filed with the chief clerk this afternoon and will be introduced tomorrow. It follows a request by Gov. Dan Turner for an investigation of the university.

The committee also charged Dr. Jessup with being largely responsible for the disqualification by the big ten conference of twenty of Iowa's athletes. It asserted further that he drove leading members of the medical faculty and other professors from the university.

President Jessup and W. R. Boyd, of the State board of education finance committee, are charged with "conniving" with W. J. McChesney, university treasurer, to favor the bank of which McChesney is president.

Other charges are:

That Rockefeller Foundation medical funds were left in the bank five years without interest; that the bank failed to account for $28,762 interest on these funds, and that the State board of education approved the action of a resolution; that the university administration permitted university building materials and labor to be used privately; that Jessup, Boyd and Charles Dutcher, Iowa City attorney, built up a political machine which dictated appointments to the board of education and prevented the legislature from making the board of education subject to State audit.

21,000 Watch Londos Win From McMillen

A capacity crowd of 21,000 spectators saw Londos wear down his bigger rival with an assortment of headlocks, chanceries and barlocks and finally throw him with a combination headlock and half nelson. The fall came after 56 minutes 54 seconds.

Londos weighed 200 pounds; McMillen, 216.

H. C. Fownes Medalist In Golf at Pinehurst

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Henry C. Fownes 2d, son of the former national amateur champion, William C. Fownes, jr., Pittsburgh, today won the qualifying round of the twenty-seventh annual St. Valentine's Men's Golf Tournament here. His medal score was 78, made up of two 39s.

Another Pittsburgher came in second place, Robert G. Morrison, who is a fellow member of Oakmont Country Club with Fownes. Morrison, with an 81, was 1 stroke better than James T. Hunter, North Adams, Mass., defending champion and 1930 medalist.

Championship pairings for match play: H. C. Fownes 2d and A. B. Jenks, Manchester, N. H.; R. G. Morrison and E. P. Merwin, Stockbridge, Mass.; F. H. Gates, Montclair, N. J., and C. B. S. Marr, Carnoustie, Scotland; James T. Hunter and T. A. Cheatham, Pittsburgh; H. G. Phillips, New York, and H. A. Watson, Asbury Park, N. J.; G. W. Statzell, jr., Philadelphia, and R. G. Elliott, Wilmington, Del.; T. B. Rudel, Chicago, and C. E. Murnan, Boston; W. D. Hystt, Toledo, and H. C. Buckminster, Boston.

Page said today, however, his resignation stipulated his salary be paid from January 1, 1931, to April 1, 1932. Page figured there will be due him $16,750.

In Bloomington, Dr. W. J. Moenkhaus, chairman of the faculty athletic board, said today the board voted to reject the "final agreement" submitted by Page.

NORFOLK SEEKS BOERNER.

Larry Boerner, District of Columbia sandlot veteran, has been offered a 1931 baseball berth with Norfolk, of the Eastern League. Boerner was a rookie pitcher with Norfolk several years ago when that city was in the now defunct Virginia League.

Eastern-Tech Foes as Last Half Opens

Defending Champions Would Avenge Earlier Setback.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Business	2	0	.500
Central	2	0	.500
Eastern	2	0	.500
Tech	2	0	.500
Western	2	0	.500

GAMES TODAY.

Business vs. Western.
Eastern vs. Tech.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE High School Basket Ball teams, after several weeks of furious play in which upsets were as frequent as potshots, find themselves back where they started from today as they face the tape on even terms again. All are in first place, with a battling average of .500. All have reached that stage of the series where the loss of a game dashes all but faint glimmers of the championship.

It promises to be a home stretch packed with interest, and that holds true despite the passing of Bobby Lucas, whose series career ends today when the Business-Western game ends.

Lucas' going looms as an irreparable loss to the Business championship aspirations which have budded of late. Coach Woodworth has named "Sis" Esenstadt to fill the hot shoes of the departing sharpshooter. It is perhaps the most difficult assignment a substitute high school series player ever had.

Western, Alone, Faces Lucas Again.

It is Western's peculiar luck to have been robbed of high school championships in the last few years by the margin of a point or two. That string of breaks remains unbroken today, for Western will be the only team to play Business with Lucas in the second half of the series. If Western comes through today, and it seems to have a very slight edge on paper, then it might be well to look to this outfit as a likely winner.

Western returns to the Tech High court today after a brief and successful tour during which it took the measure of Swavely and Massanutten. Anthony Latona, crack forward, went on a scoring spree during the trek and must be watched today more than ever. Roy Yowell, oft-berated in early season for his inability to fill the shoes of Bob Freeman, last year's Western center, has developed in noteworthy fashion. He is doubtless the best free toss man in the series, making use of a low hard offer which usually hesitates on the forward part of the rim before toppling down through the cords.

Business and Western Improved.

Business and Western are the two most improved teams in the series. Western has a 28-23 win over the Stenogs, rung up on January 9 in the first game of the series. Latona, with 12 points, was mostly responsible for Western's margin. Lucas, in the game, scored 6 points.

Eastern and Tech, favorites to sweep the high school boards clean until Business stepped up and dropped both of them for a long count, clash in the second of the series games this afternoon. Eastern defeated Tech January 9 by the count of 27-23, since then it has been mostly a rocky road of the two favorites. Eastern's other loss came from Central, which is idle today.

If Eastern has a slight edge today it is because of Bill Noonan, whose physical condition makes a whale of a difference in his team's performances. Noonan has completely recovered from his attack of the grippe, and if Saturday night's game between Eastern and Alexandria High can be used as an argument then the big Celt has recovered the shooting eye Eastern needs.

Eastern Has Learned A Few Things.

Eastern is a chastened team over the cocky bunch who routed Tech in the first game of the series. Even Shirley, the guiding genius of the Lincoln Parkers, seems to have toned down considerably.

Whate Tech does today will foreshadow its finish in the league. Tech has the record of three straight titles in its grasp. The team is in good shape. Coach Artie Boyd's new men have come through splendidly. Perhaps the lone drawback has been the guarding emphasis heaped on Exerett Russell, Tech's high scorer last year.

Business will be the only team hit hard by graduation. Western loses Wagner Lawder, manager and substitute guard, while Central must dispense with the service of Fox, substitute forward.

TEMPLE GIRLS WIN.

The Temple cagers proved no match for the Basketers in a Washington Recreation Girls League game played last night on the Calvary M. E. floor, bowing to their opponents, 15 to 45.

Dunham, of the winners, with 26 points, was the outstanding star of the contest. Beall, with 12 points, topped the Tempies.

SUN BEAU CHOICE IN AQUA CALIENTE HANDICAP

Kilmer Racer Future Book Favorite

REGARDLESS of the fact that it is by no means certain that he will start, Sun Beau, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's handicap champion, has been made the favorite at 4 to 1 in the Agua Caliente Handicap future book prices issued from the Coast. The $100,000 race, for which Sun Beau is eligible, will be run next March, and wagering, of course, is on the play or pay basis.

Likewise, Equipoise has been made a 6-to-1 favorite in the future book for the Kentucky Derby. The fact that he has been named for the Derby has recently been confirmed by Trainer Tom Healey, even though the official entries are not yet out.

Mexican Club Fosters Future Book.

Other horses have had prices quoted against them for the derby, but the wagering on the chances of derby horses is a much more involved business than that of betting on the Agua Caliente entrants.

The Agua Caliente Jockey Club has fostered from Mexico a complete list of future book prices, which is revised from time to time.

In contrast to this is the comparatively difficult matter of finding a Kentucky Derby future book, and the further matter of its reliability when one is found.

Of the field of 72 eligibles, no less than 26 are quoted at 100 to 1 or more. Five horses, Brown Sinner, Chariot, Donnay, Enoch and Perfect Play, are quoted at 500 to 1 each and are the outsiders. This seeming liberality is actually borne out by analysis. The chances against starting of any of the five named is about 500 to 1, not to speak of their chances of winning in the event of any of them got to the post. With perfect safety 1,000 to 1 or more could be quoted against them.

The next shortest price after Sun Beau is the 10 to 1 quoted against Pigeon Hole. Challenger II, the English youngster, which won two good races as a juvenile and raced not at all as a 3-year-old, is quoted at the ridiculously short price of 15 to 1, the next longest odds after the 10 to 1 against Pigeon Hole. Lady Broadcast also is notched at 15 to 1.

Challenger II Doubtful Quanity.

Challenger II may be a world beater or her may be just another horse. He never has had a start in America and has not had a race in so long that his condition and ability are entirely matters of opinion.

Lady Broadcast has a good record and merits the price of 20 to 1. She recently has changed hands, however, and whether or not she will be shipped West is doubtful.

Six horses are notched at 20 to 1. They are Caruso, Vanity and Conclave, all owned by W. R. Coe, and Master Stockings, Knight's Call and Lucky Play.

The Coe horses are of course worth the price, but in a future book one must pick the horse and not the entry. Therefore, if Mr. Coe elects to start Conclave and not the other two and a bettor has a wager on Vanity, the money is lost. And it is safe to say that neither Mr. Coe nor Benny Creech, his trainer, knows now which horse will be able to start.

Black Majesty, another Coe horse, is quoted at 25 to 1, and so are Bud Bunyan, Tonto Rock and Up. Mokatam is a possible bargain at this price, providing he trains and his bad leg will stand up for the mile and a quarter of the race.

He was good enough to beat James Butler's Questionnaire as a 2-year-old but was soundly beaten by Questionnaire as a 3-year-old.

A posible bargain is Crack Brigade at 100 to 1. Here again the matter of fitness is very important, as Dr. T. M. Cassidy's horse has not raced since the Kentucky Derby, in which he was injured. He gave Gallant Fox a stern battle in the Preakness and has been laid by since the Derby. If he is ready for a race he will be hard to beat.

Starpatic's Odds, 30 to 1, Good Price.

Starpatic, always far better than Bud Broom when both raced in the stable of Frank E. Brown, is quoted at 30 to 1. This is a good price if it were sure that the Sanford Stud Farm, now the owner of Starpatic, will try for the big purse.

It is interesting to note that Jim Dandy, the horse that won the last Travers, in which he beat Gallant Fox and Whichone, is quote at 200 to 1. This is another price which might as well be 2,000 to 1.

Life's Darkest Moment —By H. T. Webster

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

DESPITE the heavy condition of the course at Miami due to the rain Sunday, Secretary Wallace has arranged an interesting card which should produce some keenly contested events today. In the absence of a feature, the Holiman Park Purse, a 1-mile test for the older horses in training, will hold the spotlight.

A field of six sprinters have been named over night and the race appears an open affair. REPLEVIN, from the M. Lowenstein Stable, has shown remarkable speed in his recent races and with the heavy track should account for the major portion of the purse. Although SIDNEY GRANT, a fast-stepping son of Maintenant—Flitterman, has been selected for the place, the 4-year-old colt displayed rare courage in annexing his last race and may prove troublesome. NEGOPOLI, who holds a decision over REPLEVIN, was in receipt of 8 pounds in that contest, but, with equal imposts, the son of Negofol figures to save the show.

FIRST RACE—a dozen 3-year-old platers will meet in the 6-furlong dash of the opening number. TRAITOR, a recent winner at this track, has shown the most consistent form of this field and is selected to make it two straight. JAZ AGE, a highly regarded 3-year-old in the Mrs. Pollard Stable, lost a head decision to Talis recently and should improve over that effort. RUNNING GIRL, from the E. B. McLean string, finished third in her last two starts and should be as good as third here.

SECOND RACE—Another twelve-horse field will match strides in the second event, when maiden juvenile fillies are dispatched in the quarter-mile dash. PLAYING, who displayed ability in her debut last week, is favored to carry the E. B. McLean silks to victory. CHOLLA, another promising youngster, from the Belair Stud, has started twice and with this added experience should save the place. VOLCRY weakened in her initial start after setting the pace and figures best of the others.

THIRD RACE—The tihrd event, a claiming affair for 3-year-olds, has attracted six platers to contest the purse over the mile course. BATTY, a clever filly in the Greentree string, has beaten better steeds than she meets here, and looks to be the best bet of the entire card. BLUE LAW, a stable mate of the top one, has turned in some brilliant trials, and should race to the place. IMAGERY closed considerable ground in his last race at six furlongs, and should appreciate the added distance.

FOURTH RACE—CLOUDY, from the R. H. Humphries stable, has enjoyed a long rest, and from recent workouts should account for the fourth race, a six-furlong sprint for 4-year-olds and up. WACKET, the J. J. Burns racer, with two sprints as a conditioner, figures to extend the top one. CANDY PIG has been racing in route races, and may last long enough to save the minor portion of the purse.

SIXTH RACE—Another event for 4-year-olds and up with the claiming clause attached will bring together a field of six sterling sprinters which will be sent over the three-quarter distance. WHISP turned in a brilliant victory in his initial performance on opening day, and has trained well. The Whiskaway colt is partial to the deep going, and should lead the way to this band of platers. BEGORRA, from the Bud Fisher stable, has raced well on varying tracks, and should furnish the contention. PROMETHEUS disappointed in his last start, and is capable of a better showing.

SEVENTH RACE—The final event, the only route race on the program, has attracted a field of 12 platers, which will travel over the mile and a sixteenth distance. MY SCOOP, from the W. E. Caskey, jr., barn, showed staying qualities in his last start, in which he finished a half length behind Croyden. With that effort as a tightener, the 5-year-old gelding should romp home. FAIR ALBERT, a consistent and useful plater in the J. Reynolds stable, has shown several brilliant performances and figures to finish in the runner-up position. UPSET LAD, dropping six pounds off his recent second to Western Princess, may prove dangerous.

$90 OUTSIDER SCORES AT MIAMI

Wolverine Galloping Winner, Closing Much Ground.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 26.—Wolverine, paying $90.50 for a $2 ticket, was a galloping winner of the last race today and when the price was hung out the long-shot players gave a loud cheer as favorites had pretty well cleaned up on the day's card.

Wolverine did not appear to have a chance in the early part, as he was lengths back, but around the stretch turn he closed ground and finishing with a powerful rush, won by five lengths over Lotta Luck, who saved the place from Watch Girl by half a length. The time was 1:48 1-5.

Estin Wins Feature By Head.

The Sunshine Stable's Estin, showing much liking for the heavy going, led three other fairly good sprinters to the wire in the Visitors' Claiming Handicap, 6-furlong feature. The time was 1:14 2-5, and the winner paid $10.70 for $2.

Estin had all the foot of the small field and C. Corbett let the old gelding step right to the front to open up a lead of two lengths over Tantalising.

Estin was three lengths clear straightening out in the stretch, but he began to falter in the final furlong and Tantalizing and Stupendous both charged after the leader menacingly. Corbett rode hard and his mount lasted to score by a head, while Tantalizing nosed Stupendous out of the place.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

RHEUMATISM.

SOME one has divided heart diseases into two great groups. One group resulting from the wear and tear of life, from faulty habits, and allied causes is on the increase. The other group, resulting from childhood infections, rheumatism, sore throats, and various infections of childhood, is on the decrease. Somehow, what is being done is accomplishing good results as far as the second group is concerned.

And this means that we are encouraged to dig all the deeper and try all the harder. It means that parents of the young children have an increased interest in everything that is learned about those diseases of children which cause heart disease. At the head of the list comes juvenile rheumatism. The British regard rheumatism of children as a public health problem and worthy of intensive study. One of their conclusions is that juvenile rheumatism is not contagious.

It is due to a streptococcus, in all probability, but environmental conditions are more important in its causation than is the coccus. Effort to prevent juvenile rheumatism should be directed against bad environment and not against catching it from those who have it.

Juvenile rheumatism is a disease of the upper stratum of the poor. So true is this that this level of society has been called the rheumatic stratum. The children of the rich and of the very poor are not often attacked by rheumatism and they are quite apt to escape rheumatic heart disease. If children from this rheumatic stratum are taken from their own homes and put in boarding schools, or even in asylums, they generally escape juvenile rheumatism. There is something in the diet or clothing of the child, the ventilation or heating of the home on this rheumatic level that makes for juvenile rheumatism.

Congestion in sleeping rooms and in beds is a factor that makes for it. Juvenile rheumatism is highly prevalent in industrial centers. It is particularly in evidence in manufacturing towns. On the other hand, children from the rural districts are quite apt to escape it. Moist, cold weather causes it to become prevalent. On the other hand, there is not much of it when the air is dry, the wind is blowing toward the sea, the sun is shining, and the weather is balmy.

WHOOPING COUGH.

W. K. writes:

1. How long after the onset of whooping cough does a child start whooping?
2. How long does it last?
3. At what stage is it contagious?
4. Is there anything a doctor can give to help the cough?
5. Is there any danger of its affecting the lungs?

REPLY.

1. As a rule the whoop peculiarity can be recognized about one week after the cough is well started.
2. Some tendency to whoop is usually detectable for about six weeks. It may be detectable for six months.
3. It is contagious from the onset of the first symptom. It is most contagious during the first two weeks. After that the contagiousness gradually declines.
4. Very little.
5. There is. The danger is great, especially with young children.

STOCK LIST VARIES LITTLE IN DULL DAY

AMERICAN PHONE RISES

Support for the rails caused a timid short interest to think twice before attempting any very pretentious activity, and out of that second thought came enough general covering to close the market slightly higher. Except in the carrier shares, however, net gains of more than a point were few. On the other hand, earlier declines had been no larger, so that the day's fluctuations in leading shares were relatively unimportant. Sales totaled 1,534,970 shares, well below the daily turnovers of last week's rally.

The railroad stocks, which now seem to have almost as many friends as they had maligners a month or two ago, may have been helped by the fact that December earnings make a fairly favorable comparison with the same month of 1929, in contrast with the showings of immediately preceding months, but that is largely because traffic had already begun to fall off in December, 1929. Nevertheless, it is now realized that dividend rates of the strong roads are reasonably safe, and this better feeling is doubtless being reflected in considerable investment buying.

B. & O. Shares Advance.

New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Atchison, Union Pacific and New Haven were up 1 to 4 points and held their gains. Frisco common rallied 7 and the preferred nearly 3.

Utilities overcame some sluggishness in the afternoon under the leadership of American Telephone, which closed at 190, up 2 points. Electric Power & Light also rose 2, and there were smaller advances in other important members of the group.

United States Steel, whose fourth quarter earnings appear late tomorrow, was less than a point off at its lowest quotation and closed firm, with a nominal gain. There were also minor gains in American Can, National Biscuit, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse and International Harvester. Bethlehem Steel and Goodyear Rubber were up a point.

Tobaccos Rally Vigorously.

Tobaccos rallied vigorously in the morning but extreme rises of 2 points in the American Co.'s shares and Liggett & Myers "B" were about cut in half.

Among the specialties, Worthington Pump and Eastman Kodak gained 4, Auburn Auto 7½ and Case more than 2. Stewart Warner weakened on the dividend omission. Richfield Oil rallied sufficiently to throw its price out of line with the exchange offer from Cities Service.

The bond market, perhaps anticipating an increased flow of new offerings, was less active but prices continued to point higher. Bankers report that recent financing has been well absorbed and that private investors are manifesting more interest, with banking institutions maintaining a lively demand, hopes for the investment market are high.

Bank's Bill Buying Rate Cut.

Reduction of the New York Federal Reserve Bank's bill buying rate for the shortest term paper to the lowest yields in history meant that the bank was cutting to open market levels with a view to replacing immediate maturities in its own portfolio. Competition for the few bills available is keen.

More importance was attached to the firming of acceptances in London where efforts are apparently being made to strengthen money as a means of checking gold imports to France. The Bank of England was said to have been active in both the bill and short term government securities markets. Sterling cables here rallied ⅛ of a cent to 4.85⅞ and were the feature of the firm but quiet foreign exchanges.

Grain prices sagged. Corn, at its lowest, was down about a cent, reflecting an increased visible supply and easier cash markets, but closing quotations represented losses of only ½ to ¾. Wheat was firmer and finished with small gains and losses evenly distributed. Cotton was unchanged to 2 points lower after a dull day.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Prevailing abnormal weather conditions did much to pull corn values down, but tended to hoist wheat. With untimely high temperatures diminishing demand from feeders, all deliveries of corn broke the season's low-price record, whereas persistent lack of rain or snow throughout domestic winter wheat sections aroused anxiety as to crop damage. Gossip regarding a war scare in Europe had little apparent market influence.

Corn closed nervous, ½ to ⅞ cents lower; wheat ⅞ to 1¼ up; oats unchanged to ¼ down, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents decline.

Price rallies in corn failed to last, and the market closed not far above the day's bottom level, which was 5¼ cents beneath last week's top. It was the fourth successive day that corn suffered a setback. Commission houses were persistent sellers, basing their deals not only on adverse weather, but also on Washington official statements that seriousness of the existing grain trade situation called for a one-year 50 per cent increase of United States agricultural tariff rates.

Increases of visible supplies both of corn and wheat counteracted upturns in grains. Some observers said bear traders were disturbed by war predictions, but as the war talk was widely known an hour before rallies started, the transient recoveries were generally ascribed more to profit taking by bears than to war clouds. Rye and oats followed corn and rye registered the lowest quotation in many years.

Unabated lack of moisture throughout domestic winter wheat territory brought reports that in places the soil 6 feet down was dry as powder. An increase of nearly 2,500,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage compared with last week was ignored, as well as good rains over India.

Provisions held about steady, duplicating the action of hog values.

RAIL SALES SLACKEN AS INDUSTRIALS RISE

Advance of Entire Foreign Bond List Also Proves to Be Feature.

UTILITY ISSUES STEADY

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—An improved demand for industrial and foreign bonds featured today's session of the bond market.

Trading in railroad and utility issues, the two groups that have led the advance of the last month, slackened, but a firm trend was maintained with price movement narrow. Realizing cut into the recent gains in some second-grade issues, and the prospect of the sale of some attractive financing this week tended to make bidders hesitant, even for high-grade investment obligations. The best gains were in rail and utility issues that had been less active.

While the day's turnover was considerably under the recent normal for a full session, the exchange of some industrial and foreign bonds was comparatively large, and fractional advances all along the line in these groups attested to the quickening of interest in obligations that have moved more or less erratically for several months.

Liggett & Myers 7s Rise.

Hudson Coal 5s rallied 4¾ points, Penn Dixie 6s gained 6¼, and there were good advances in Phillips Petroleum 5½s and Liggett & Myers 7s. National Dairy 5½s, which touched a new top for the past two years, the volume of transactions in some time.

The gains were dwarfed, however, by the rally in Pan-American of California 6s, up 13 points, and Richfield 6s, which rose 6¾ on the strength of Cities Service Co.'s offer to acquire Richfield through an exchange of stock.

Foreign loans were uniformly higher. Austrian 7s gained half a point in a large turnover, and German 5½s, German Bank issues and Berlin bonds were active and fractionally higher. Nuremberg 6s advanced 6, Brazilian Governments, Tolima 7s and Chilean and Colombian bonds were the strong features of the Latin-American group.

U. S. Governments Sag.

United States Governments were lower with the exception of Treasury 3⅜ of 1947, which touched a new high since 1928.

New financing scheduled for tomorrow includes a $61,200,000 issue of Missouri Pacific Railroad first and refunding 5s, due February 1, 1981, at 95.

The utility group will be represented in the new financing tomorrow by a $27,000,000 first mortgage 4½ per cent bond issue of the Kansas City Power & Light Co., which is being offered at $102.75 to yield 4.33 per cent.

CHRISTMAS SAVINGS ACCOUNTS GROWING

CREDIT MEN WILL MEET

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Washington Christmas savings accounts for 1931 have reached a new high record, according to Elliot H. Thomson, publicity manager, Washington Loan & Trust Co., and chairman of the advertising committee, District of Columbia Bankers Association.

Reporting in the latter capacity at the open midwinter meeting of the association last night at the Willard Hotel, he said results of the Christmas club cooperative campaign for 1931 showed membership of 98,699, an increase of 6,502 over 1930; the amount subscribed is $8,484,410, a gain of $649,160 over the preceding year, and an average of $86 a member, a $2 advance over the previous year's amount. The latter exceeds a country-wide average of $52.60 reported by the Christmas Club, national organization.

Advertising costs for this year's campaign he reported as $2,095, as compared with $2,065 for last year's, and newspaper advertisements were inserted 111 times as against 30 times in 1930. Thirty of the 39 local banks are now operating clubs and 28 banks cooperated in this year's campaign.

Cost of Advertising.

Mr. Thomson said:

"It is worthy of note to recall that before the inauguration of these cooperative campaigns member banks reported expenditures for individual newspaper advertising in 1924 amounted to $6,835, while the combined individual and cooperative advertising this year totaled $2,234.05. In the meantime membership has grown from 50,000 to nearly 100,000 and totals subscribed from three millions to over eight millions.

"In conclusion, the committee express their appreciation of the hearty cooperation of the member banks in their contributions, conformity with the uniform regulations adopted and prompt response to the questionnaires—and bills sent to them. Thanks, too, are due in large measure to the splendid publicity given to the Christmas savings idea by the financial editors of our principal dailies."

John R. Sherwood, vice president Sherwood Bros., Inc., announces that the recent receivership effected for the Richfield Oil Co. of California in nowise affects Sherwood Bros., Inc. Sherwood Bros., Inc., is an independent company in which the Richfield Oil Corporation of New York owns stock. This receivership does not affect the finances, business or status of Sherwood Bros., Inc., in any way.

Company Not to Alter Policy.

The supply of gasoline received by Sherwood Bros., Inc., from Richfield is continuing and will continue without any interruption. The brand names—Betholine, Richfield Ethyl and Richfield Gasoline—will continue as heretofore, and the policies of Sherwood Bros., Inc., will not be altered in any degree.

Two important divisions of the National Association of Credit Men will hold special meetings in the Hotel Mayflower on the last four days of this week. Approximately 35 interchange managers from the Eastern section of the United States are to gather on Wednesday and Thursday. The adjustment and collection managers, some 45 strong from the same section, will meet on Friday and Saturday.

Prominent officers who are coming here include Samuel Ardron, jr., of New York City, manager of the Eastern division of the National Association of Credit Men; Roy Colliton, of St. Louis, director of the interchange department, and Walter C. Foster, of New York City, director of the adjustment bureaus.

Washingtonians to Take Part.

Words of greeting to both groups will be voiced by Lister T. Watts, of Washington, who is also director in the national organization. Local arrangements are being handled by Charles W. Crayton and John A. Reilly, president and secretary-manager, respectively, of the Washington Association of Credit Men.

All trustees of the Mutual Investment Fire Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia were reelected at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. They are Horace L. Beall, Franklin P. Nash, Melvin A. Wertz, M. Frank Ruppert, Vincent L. Toomey, Harry Kaufman, Vernon G. Owen.

The return match of the bowling team of Baltimore Chapter, American Institute of Banking, with the local chapter's team Saturday, was won by the latter by 113 pins, giving it a net of 72 pins for the season.

All officers of the North Capitol Savings Bank were reelected last night at the directors' meeting of the organization. They are Theodore Michael, president; George Clagett, vice president; P. Henry Coates, cashier; E. S. Burgess, secretary; Miss E. M. Michael, assistant cashier.

Battle Over Sale Of Oil Firm Looms

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The unusual prospect of a fight for control of a company in the hands of receivers loomed tonight when Wall street learned there was opposition to acquisition of the $150,000,000 Richfield Oil Co. of California by Cities Service Co.

Late this afternoon the report of opposition was confirmed by the statement of S. P. Woodard, vice chairman of the stockholders protective committee organized after Richfield was placed in receivership January 15.

The Cities Service Co.'s offer is on the basis of one share of Cities Service common for four shares of Richfield up to 500,000 shares of Richfield stock. It expires 30 days from January 26. Cities Service already has acquired an extensive interest in Richfield, it anhounced, and is believed to have bought considerable stock in the open market.

Middle West Utilities To Spend $63,000,000

Chicago, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The 1931 construction budget of Middle West Utilities provides for expenditure of approximately $63,000,000, of which it is estimated $6,000,000 will be carried over into next year for completion.

The figure also includes approximately $16,000,000 authorized and started in 1930, but not completed. Construction expenditures last year approximated $77,000,000.

Poles Ratify Match Monopoly.

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The Senate today ratified the government's arrangement with the Swedish-American Match Co., by which the latter's monopoly in Poland is extended until 1965 in return for a loan to the government of $32,400,000.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, Jan. 26 A.P.).—President R. C. Stirton, of the Associated Apparel Industries, Inc., reported today all manufacturing divisions were operating at full capacity and that a new plant at Gary, Ind., would begin operations next month. Other plants are at Belvidere, Ill., Elkhart and Loganasport, Ind., Janesville, Wis., Ishpeming, Jackson and Saginaw, Mich., and Toronto, Ontario.

Deere & Co., farm equipment manufacturers, reported a net income of $8,119,112 for the fiscal year ending last October 31, equal after preferred dividends to $7.60 a share of no par common stock. Surplus after dividend payments was $3,970,111. These earnings, exceeded but twice in the company's history, compared with $15,181,949 in 1929, equivalent to $13.72 a common share. Five shares of no par common were exchanged early in 1930 for one share of $100 par.

Walter C. Allen, president of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co., today said plants of his company at Stamford, Conn., employing between 200 and 300 persons, would be removed to other cities. Mr. Allen cited the "rapidly rising taxation in

FAIRFAX TAX LEVY 33 PER CENT LESS

U. D. C. CHAPTER MEETS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax County Board of Tax Equalization and Review yesterday made a blanket reduction of 33⅓ per cent on the assessed valuation of all real estate in the county. This action was taken following a conference with a special joint committee of the county board of supervisors and county school board to decide what should be done to maintain the present ratio of taxation between the assessed value of private property and corporation and public utility holdings.

The situation in Fairfax County was identical with that faced by the City of Alexandria, where the council made a 50 per cent reduction in the private property assessments and the new assessment figures were cut one-third in order to avoid placing an undue proportion of the tax burden upon the farmers of the county next year. The total assessment of private real estate holdings in the county prior to the assessment last summer was almost $10,000,000, and following the assessment board's work it was found that the valuations had been increased to approximately $17,000,000, or about 40 per cent increase.

It was believed that the State would increase the valuations of the public utilities accordingly, but last week it was discovered that this was impossible. If the supervisors had lowered the tax rate in the county in proportion to the increased assessments the public utilities would have been paying much less taxes than in prior years.

The members of the special committee which appeared before the equalization board yesterday, recommending the blanket reduction of assessments on private property, included Supervisors W. F. P. Reid, of Mount Vernon District; Mark Turner, Dranesville District; Harry Leigh, Providence District; D. W. Buckley, Centerville District; and School Trustees John T. DeBell, Centerville District; Vernon Lynch, Falls Church District, and Frederick W. Robinson, of the Town of Herndon.

The members of the county equalization board are: Joseph Berry, of Vienna, chairman; S. Cooper Dawson, of Seminary, secretary, and W. H. Ellmore, of Herndon.

Yesterday's meeting of the equalization board was the last opportunity for the property owners of Fairfax County to seek adjustments on their new real estate assessments without the expense of court proceedings. The assessment books now will be closed and totaled, and the results will be made available for the use of the board of supervisors in making up their annual budget, and laying the tax levies for the coming fiscal year.

It has been reported that thieves broke into the Olivet Episcopal Chapel at Franconia sometime during the past week and had made away with the $5.50 collection of Sunday, Jan. 18. The theft was not discovered until the church opened for services Sunday. The chapel is a branch of the Pohick Church, of Truro Parish, at Pohick, Va.

The Eastern Potomac Federation Baptist Young Peoples Union, which comprises 11 churches in Arlington and Fairfax Counties and Alexandria City, will meet this evening in McLean.

The Women's Auxiliary of the McLean Volunteer Fire Department will hold its meeting today at the home of Mrs. Fred Magarity at McLean.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Browns Chapel will hold its meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mack Crippen.

The sewing circle of the Pioneer Grange at Masonville will meet this afternoon to plan an outline of work for the ensuing year, and to make preparations for a Grange Valentine social to be held Saturday evening, February 14.

The Fairfax County Pomona Grange will meet this evening in the auditorium of the Oakton High School, with the Pioneer Grange, of Masonville, as hosts in charge of the entertainment. The closed session will open at 7 o'clock with a program in charge of Mrs. A. Harmon Roberts, of Accotink, the grange lecturer. The meeting will be open to the public at 8 o'clock. T. Bentley Mason, of Mount Vernon, will be the first speaker. A musical number will be given by the Pioneer Grange, which will be followed by a talk by E. D. Rosbury, lecturer of the Centerville Grange.

Other speakers will be Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr, Mark Turner, of Great Falls Grange, and Mrs. M. K. Stroud, of the Florida Grange. The members of the Pioneer Grange will put on a comic skit and sponser several musical numbers.

The Robert E. Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will hold its meeting this afternoon at the home of Miss Nellie Green, in Falls Church.

The Nazarene Guild at Falls Church will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. E. P. Harrison.

Willie Lawson, 57, living near Falls Church, was seriously cut yesterday afternoon and is in Georgetown Hospital, Washington, where it is said he is not expected to recover. According to Town Sergt. Walter Mitchell of Falls Church, who took Lawson to the hospital, Lawson was going through the woods near his home after horses. As he started to cut a chew of tobacco he tripped and fell on his knife which severed an artery in his leg, causing him to bleed almost to death.

The Falls Church "death pole," located on a curve of the Lee highway in front of the Episcopal Church, in the town of Falls Church, has claimed another automobile. The accident occurred Sunday. Residents saw a large car demolished against the pole. They said a number of persons climbed from the wreckage and entered a second car, which apparently was following them, and drove away. Town Sergt. Walter Mitchell arrived shortly after the second car had sped away.

The wrecked machine was impounded by the town authorities, as it bore a District of Columbia license and an insurance policy on the life of Harold Mason in favor of Ella Mason was found in the car. A lookout was posted for the second car, but it was not apprehended. Town Sergt. Mitchell stated last night that the license on the car had been issued to Mason and a warrant for his arrest charging reckless driving had been issued.

The Falls Church town council has made several efforts to have the State highway department place a danger signal at the approach of this curve and has asked the telephone company to abolish the poles on the curve. The telephone company moved the pole on the inside of the walk and several feet east of the original position.

DRAMATIC TROUPE WILL PLAY IN EAST

SECOND TRIP ANNOUNCED

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Representatives of the College of William and Mary will pay their second visit of the current academic year to New England February 21 in the presentation of August Thomas' play "Just Suppose," at Wellesley College, Mass.

Anticipating the same cordial reception accorded the William and Mary football team in its game with Harvard last fall, the William and Mary players are leaving no stone unturned in their preparation for the production. A preview performance will be given here on February 18.

Miss Althea Hunt, director of dramatics at the college, said today that her cast for "Just Suppose" has been selected from the most experienced players at the institution. The cast includes Maurice Berkwitz, of Brookline, Mass.; Marshall Baggett, of Alexandria; Mary T. Pyle, of Richmond; Martin Jurow, of Brooklyn; Howard Scammon, of Newport News, Va.; Gladys Monroe, of Williamsburg; William A. J. Bowen, of Los Angeles, and George C. Diggs, of Norfolk.

Several members of the cast took prominent parts in the William and Mary Virgilian pageant last fall, that was given wide publicity as a unique performance in the celebration of the bimillenium anniversary of the birth of Virgil.

Others have been experienced in such performances as "Twelfth Night," "The Enemy," "Taming of the Shrew," "Anna Christie," "The Importance of Being Earnest," and "The Mollusc," which last year was taken to Schenectady.

Besides the William and Mary players, the Mosquers, of Amherst College, also are booked for presentation at Wellesley.

Youth's Death Quiz Ordered Reopened

Banker-Father of Concord Boy Thinks Demise Was Not Accident.

Concord, N. C., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A coroner's inquest in the mysterious death of Tom Gay Coltrane, Concord society youth and member of a prominent North Carolina family, was ordered reopened today by Coroner I. A. Yow.

Coltrane's body, with a gash in the head, was found in front of the home of Dr. E. A. Meisenheimer on December 4. The theory was advanced that the youth stumbled and fell on leaving the Meisenheimer home, where he had visited the previous night, and the first coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from fall and exposure.

Dissatisfied with this verdict, Coltrane's father, a rich Concord banker, employed private investigators, and the case was brought before the grand jury. Action was postponed until April. The order, reopening the case immediately, was based, the coroner said, on a conference with "interested parties."

Murder Warrant Issued In Slaying of Worker

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 26.—Testimony by a mystery witness, whose name is withheld by the prosecutor, that he heard a shotgun report followed by a pistol shot when Marion Dayton, 26, railroader of Park View, was shot to death last Tuesday midnight at a summer cottage at Grafton Park, caused the issuance of a murder warrant today against Leck Frey, 48, pottery worker, also of Park View.

Frey and his son, Robert, 18, both of whom were jailed, said Dayton was killed as a suspected robber after shooting a pistol at them.

Baltimore Blast, Blaze Injure Six

Baltimore, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Four firemen and a member of the salvage corps were burned and a salesman was injured today by an explosion and fire in a downtown three-story brick building. The large boiler of a newly installed heating plant blew up, police were told.

The building is occupied by a motor-car company on the first floor and two shoe manufacturing concerns on the upper floors. The firemen were called when a minor explosion occurred.

Farmer Dies in Car Parked on Road

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Jan. 26.—William R. Twigg, 69, farmer, Baltimore turnpike, was found dead in his automobile parked on the McMullen highway, near this city late this morning.

Police were notified that a car had been parked on the roadside since Sunday afternoon. Twigg, who had been undergoing medical treatment, evidently felt an attack coming on and sought the edge of the road. His body was in such position that it could not be seen by passing motorists.

He brought Mrs. Twigg to the home of a daughter here yesterday noon and then said he was going to his brother's home. Four sons and six daughters also survive.

Clarksburg Merchant Dies.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 26 (Special).—Louis Oliker, 49, proprietor of Levi Oliker, of Baltimore, died suddenly today of heart disease. He leaves a widow, a son and two daughters.

PRODUCE SHIPPERS IN VIRGINIA WARNED

LAW'S LACK POINTED OUT

Richmond, Va., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—J. H. Meek, director of the Virginia Division of Markets, has issued a warning to the effect that the industrial situation makes it extremely risky to ship produce to firms of unknown standing and commission merchants in States that have no commission merchants law.

Mr. Meek said his warning is especially directed to shippers of farm products who now are shipping to dealers or commission merchants in other States without definite knowledge of the standings.

He pointed out that Virginia has a commission merchants law which protects those who ship products for sale on commission. However, he said, some other States do not. Pennsylvania is one of them.

"Complaints are being received against firms in Chester, Pa., and an investigation shows conditions existing among commission firms there make it extremely risky to ship produce there for sale on commission," he said.

There is a new Federal law regulating dealers in certain produce shipped interstate, but Mr. Meek said it does not cover live poultry.

Man Sets Self on Fire Using Gun for Suicide

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 26.—Using a shotgun, which set his clothing on fire and menaced his home, Benjamin McIntyre, 63, farmer and father of eleven children, committed suicide last night at his home near Wallace. His wife, aroused by the report, rushed to his side and extinguished the flames.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE PROHIBITION REPORT IN WONDERLAND.

THE Wickersham upon the sea
Did shine with all his might;
He did his very best to make
The billows smooth and bright—
And that was odd, because it was
The middle of the night.

The Hoover shone quite sulkily,
Because he thought that "Wick"
Was shining far too brilliantly,
In fact, it made him sick;
"It's very rude of him," he said,
"To play me such a trick."

The Lemann was wet as wet could be,
The Grubb was dry as dry;
You could not see accord because Accord was never nigh;
No harmony was visible
To any naked eye.

The Hoover and the Wickersham
Were walking close at hand;
They wept like anything to see
Such wetness in the land;
"If this were only cleared away,"
They said, "it would be grand."

"If seven aids with seven mops
Mopped up for half a year,
Do you suppose," the Hoover said,
"The rum would disappear?"
"I doubt it," said the Wickersham,
And shed a bitter tear.

• • • • •

"O VOTERS, come and walk with us,"
The Hoover did beseech;
"A pleasant walk, a pleasant talk
Along the sandy beach;
To walk upon the burning sands

The wary voter looked at him
But never a word he said;
The wary voter winked his eye
And shook his weary head;
"The verdict's far too deep for me,"
He muttered as he fled.

But other voters hurried up
And then there came some more;
Some in a muddled state of mind,
Some very, very sore;
"We can not understand," they said,
"What all the shooting's for."

"The time has come," the Hoover said,
"To talk of many things;
Of booze and ships, and liquor tax,
Of stills and whisky rings;
And why the country isn't dry,
And whether flasks have wings."

"But wait a bit," a voter cried,
"Before we have our chat;
For most of us are badly mixed
And don't know where we're at."
"No matter," said the Wickersham—
They thanked him much for that!

Padlock! Padlock!

SHORT STORY.

Commission,
Indecision,
Division,
Derision.

ONE thing is now clear: President Hoover is so dry it may be necessary to sprinkle him daily to lay the dust.

It now looks as if the next Republican national convention will be opened with the Desert Song.

FAIR PLAY.

I'm afraid the Wickersham report may knock Hoover out of a second term," said Mr. Wiggs.

"That's all right. Those that live by the commission shall perish by the commission," replied Mr. Woggs.

TWO ENTER CONTEST FOR JUDICIAL OFFICE

Second Aspirant Is in Race for County Board in Arlington.

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Despite the fact that election of county officers is ten months away, considerable political activity has developed in Arlington County.

Following the announcement that at least four candidates will seek the office of Commonwealth's attorney, two made public their intentions yesterday of seeking the office of county judge, a new position created by the last General Assembly, to take the place of the trial justice of police court.

Those seeking the post are Bryan Gordon, of Jefferson District, present justice of the peace, and H. W. Dudley, attorney, of Clarendon.

In announcing his candidacy Mr. Gordon said he preferred the judicial end of the legal profession, and as a justice of the peace he has been attending to a large bulk of the petty litigation, while the law prohibited his taking cases of any large amount.

Stresses Post's Importance.

He contended that in serving the people for the last six years as assistant trial justice and also as one of the justices of the peace, he had followed the one principle that would govern his actions if elected—that of being fair to all.

Mr. Dudley declared:

"In making this announcement I am deeply conscious of the responsibility of the position involved. The most important branch of any government is the judicial. When courts become lawless, government reaches its lowest ebb and anarchy is openly invited. The most important officers in the State of Virginia today are the judges of our courts. A judge who decides a case outside of defined and accepted law, who decides merely in accordance with his own sense of fitness or the decrees of a political body, or who is influenced by any extraneous cause, is in his very nature a supergovernment, for he does not declare the law, which is the proper business of a court, but makes the law by his own unregulated action.

Outlines Duties.

"There are four things that belong to a judge," he continued. "To hear courteously, to answer wisely, to consider soberly and to decide impartially."

In conclusion he said: "To the voters in the county who do not know me I invite a thorough investigation of my fitness for the office."

It was indicated last night that there will be at least two more announcements for this office within the next few days.

Selection of five men to the county board under the new county manager plan of government, which becomes effective January 1, 1932, is recognized as one of the most important features of the election.

Second Candidate.

Dr. Frank T. Stone, president of the Clarendon Trust Co., previously announced his candidacy for one of these posts, and yesterday George M. Yeatman, of Ashton Heights, also entered the race. He was formerly active in District of Columbia civic development, and for the past six years has taken up the same work in Arlington County.

Mr. Yeatman declared that the new form of government is a business government and must be run along business lines.

"I am connected with no party," he said, "make no promises, but will treat all citizens alike to the best of my ability. If elected to the office it shall be my sole purpose to give to the people of Arlington County a business form of local government."

Commenting on Arlington County's needs, Mr. Yeatman declared a modern county-wide sewerage system is the most important project immediately necessary for the continued progress of Arlington County.

M. E. Church was elected president of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway, at the annual meeting held yesterday in the office of Charles T. Jesse, secretary-treasurer. Other officers are: Julius H. Parmalee, first vice president; Thomas R. Keith, second vice president; Charles T. Jesse, secretary-treasurer, and John S. Barbour, general counsel.

Members of the board of directors are: Mr. Church, P. E. Dewey, Mrs. K. H. Echols, S. W. Flagg, Dr. J. B. Gould, W. R. Gray, Mr. Jesse, Ashton G. Jones, Mr. Keith, Harris Levey, Julius H. Parmalee, Carrol V. Shreve, Dr. T. M. Talbott, Franklin Williams, Howard B. Fields, E. C. Gibbs, and Dr. Frank T. Stone.

The report of the treasurer shows that during the year 1929 the company operated at a loss of $2,931, but that during the past year there had been a profit of $2,405 making a gain over the previous year of $5,336.

Each member of the Red Cross in Arlington County is being urged to contribute to the drought relief fund, by the special committee charged with raising the county's quota of $1,000. Contributions must be made to the county organization to be credited to the county's quota, according to the chairman, George A. Collier.

Since the county does not participate in the Red Cross funds now being raised to the Washington Community Chest, Arlington County members may make their drought relief contributions, he said, to the community Red Cross worker to whom memberships were given, to the lodge, the church or sent direct to the county chairman at Arlington, Va.

Motion for judgment was filed yesterday in the county clerk's office by Marie Louise Duehring, an infant, by her next friend, Julius Herman Duehring, the father, against the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co., for $20,000.

The suit, which was filed by Attorney Harry A. Shockey, grew out of alleged injuries suffered by the plaintiff December 29, 1930, when a collision occurred at Twenty-first and K streets northwest, in Washington, involving a bus in which she was a passenger.

Hugh Reid, member of the House of Delegates of Virginia from Arlington County, will speak at a father and son banquet at the Clarendon Presbyterian Church Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Music will be furnished by the boys' orchestra of the church.

5 FREED IN DANVILLE ON PICKETING COUNT

13 GIVEN CONTINUANCES

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 26.—Three men and two women, charged with constituting an unlawful assembly at the gates of the Riverside Mills on December 8, when police dispersed mass pickets, were acquitted by a jury in Corporation Court this evening.

The State claimed members of the group failed to heed the police order to disperse. The defense entered a denial, while some of those charged claimed they were bystanders, watching the situation.

Those charged were T. E. Young, Mrs. Emma McGhee, W. G. Spain, James Holly and Miss Frances Lawhorne. Judge N. S. Turnbull, of Mecklenburg County, heard the case, as Judge Leigh felt he should not preside, as he was present when the arrests were made.

Thirteen men, indicted as a mob on a charge of attacking C. W. McKellar and his daughter, learned this evening that their cases had been continued until the next term of court. Commonwealth's Attorney John W. Carter is ill with influenza, and, since 26 separate trials would have eventuated, as each of the thirteen is indicted twice, the cases could not have been disposed of prior to the opening of the civil term of court.

Stockholders of the Danville Traction & Power Co., who met in annual session today, were informed that the corporation operated at a loss of $20,383 during the last year. Under a new economy plan it was stated the costs of operation during this year would be reduced by $14,000. Cuts in salaries and wages already have been made. The textile strike has affected the company's income since September, as numbers of workers were formerly conveyed to and from the plants daily on the system.

Reports on Conditions.

(Associated Press.)

Textile strikers of Danville, Va., are not believed by A. L. Schafer, Red Cross national director of disaster relief, to be in acute distress for want of food, clothing and shelter. Following a two-day investigation in Danville, Schafer yesterday submitted a report on conditions to John Barton Payne, national chairman of the Red Cross.

"Danville's strikers are not in acute distress," Schafer said. "They are suffering, as are thousands of others in the country, but they do not want for food and clothing. Owners of houses have not attempted to oust families, and the United Textile Workers Union has spent hundreds of dollars for medicinal prescriptions.

"Pneumonia and pellagra are quite prevalent, and it is doubtful if union funds will hold out," he said. Schafer expected the Red Cross would soon take action on the report.

Mrs. Emma Peery Dies in Berryville

Church Organist and Wife of Mill Man Succumbs to Brief Illness.

Special to The Washington Post.

Berryville, Va., Jan. 26.—Mrs. Emma G. Peery, aged 54, wife of C. R. Peery, who has been employed here for some time by the Clarke Milling Co., died this morning at 11 o'clock at her home from a clot on the brain, having been ill only a short time.

She is survived by her husband and three children, Mrs. W. D. Post, of Philadelphia; Robert, aged 11, and Jean, aged 8, who make their home with their parents.

Mrs. Peery was the daughter of Mrs. W. B. Gale, of Roanoke, by whom she is survived, and the late Prof. Gale, of England, from whom she inherited her love for music. She was a lifelong member of the Episcopal Church and was the organist of Grace Episcopal Church here for the past four years.

She is survived by the following sisters and one brother: Mrs. E. G. Wilford, Mrs. W. E. Long and Mrs. E. A. Bowie, all of Roanoke; Mrs. H. N Hershberger, of Lynchburg; Mrs. D. J. Garber, of Alexandria; Mrs. R. E. Folwider, of Pittsburgh, and T. K. Gale, of Washington.

Fall While on Ice Fatal to Farmer

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 26.—A game of ice hockey on the Severn River yesterday afternoon resulted in injuries which caused the death of Henry Davis Eutsler, 38-year-old farmer, of Gambrills. He died at the Emergency Hospital two hours after his son had accidentally tripped him.

Mr. Eutsler had been playing with his son, Henry, 15, for some time, when the boy, during a lively bit of scrimmage, kicked his father's feet from under him. In striking the ice he incurred the fatal injuries.

Dr. John Claffey was called in and he rushed Mr. Eutsler to the hospital. The widow and five children survive.

MRS. RITCHIE RITES HELD IN BALTIMORE

12 PALL BEARERS NAMED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Jan. 26.—Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Caskie Cabell Ritchie, mother of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, were held this afternoon, first at the executive mansion, and later in the afternoon from the Christ Protestant Episcopal Church in Baltimore. The service at the mansion was held at 1 p. m. in the presence of only members of the immediate family. A brief ceremony was officiated over by the Rev. Edward Darlington Johnson, of St. Anne's Protestant Episcopal Church, this city.

The remains were then taken to Baltimore where a public funeral service was held at 3 p. m., in Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, the Right Rev. Edward T. Helfenstein, Bishop of the Maryland Diocese, officiating. Mrs. Ritchie and her late husband were faithful members of this church before her son's election to the governorship.

The burial took place in the Green Mount Cemetery, Baltimore, the services again being held only in the presence of the immediate family.

Tomorrow the general assembly will adjourn immediately upon reconvening for the fourth week of its session. A large list of honorary pallbearers for Mrs. Ritchie today included committees both from the State Senate and House of Delegates. Frank A. Michel, speaker of the house, headed his committee, while Walter J. Mitchell, president of the senate, headed a group of senators.

The twelve active pallbearers were Dr. Hugh H. Young, Robert B. Ennis, Charles H. Knapp, John M. Requardt, Frank R. Kent, John E. Cullen, Joseph E. Quinn, B. Howell Griswold, jr., Douglas C. Turnbull, Harold E. West, E. Brooke Lee and Stuart S. Janney.

Rear Adm. S. S. Robison Will Stay in Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 26.—While Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy, will retire in May after a brilliant naval career, he will not leave Annapolis, though relinquishing the superintendency of the academy.

Rear Admiral Robison likes Annapolis so well that he has secured a bungalow on South River, where he and Mrs. Robison will make their home after a short motor trip late in May.

REV. S. A. MILLS FUNERAL.

Services For Clergyman in Hyattsville, to be Held Today.

Funeral services for the Rev. Seth Adoniran Mills, 67 years old, retired Episcopal clergyman of Washington diocese, who died Sunday in Hyattsville, Md., will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from Pinckney Memorial Church in Hyattsville. Bishop James E. Freeman of the Washington Cathedral will conduct the ceremonies. He was a life member of Apollo Lodge, F. A. A. M., of Troy, N. Y.

Surviving Mr. Mills are his wife, Mrs. Mary Helena Mills, and a daughter, Mrs. Jerome R. Cox, of Forest Hills, N. Y. His son, Lieut. Harold Colthrust Mills, U. S. M. C., was killed at Belleau Wood.

BOY, 4, SHOOTS SELF WITH FATHER'S GUN

East Riverdale Child Is in Serious Condition From Wound in Leg.

PLAN RELIEF TOMORROW

Childish curiosity may cost the life of James Kennedy, 4 years old, of East Riverdale, Md., who shot himself yesterday while playing with his father's .45 caliber revolver. The child is in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital.

The child is said to have found the revolver in the house. He was examining it outside, with a neighbor's little girl, when it discharged, going completely through the leg. Prince Georges County Rescue Squad was called and took the boy to the hospital.

Miss Thelma Stinnett has been appointed teacher of English and American history, in the Mount Rainier High School. She takes the place of Miss Elsie R. King, resigned.

Miss Adelia Rosasco has also resigned from the county school system. She taught French in the Hyattsville High School. Her successor has not been chosen. Her resignation does not take effect for 30 days.

Two teacher's meetings were announced yesterday by school authorities. Those in charge of intermediate and primary grades will gather at the College Park School at 9:30 Thursday morning. Principals will meet at 9 o'clock Friday morning at the Silver Hill School.

Relief work of the Red Cross in the county will be organized tomorrow night when the central committee will meet with leaders of various welfare organizations in the county. The plans of the Red Cross will be outlined, and welfare groups will ask for the territories which they will cover. Those which are not requested will be covered by workers appointed by the central committee.

The central committee is composed of H. L. Leonard, the chairman; Mrs. C. O. Appleman, of College Park, and W. R. Beattie, of Decatur Heights. It will direct the relief work of the Red Cross and will coordinate the activities of other groups in the county. Specifically, they will issue food and coal certificates, register the unemployed, check on applications for work, to avoid duplication, and supervise the receiving and distribution of clothing.

Field workers will investigate applications for assistance, and their findings will be filed at the central office in Hyattsville. In this way a complete record will be kept of all destitute persons receiving help.

Charged with making false statements in the assignment of automobile titles, M. J. Wilmer, of Twelfth street northeast near Girard street, was freed yesterday on bond of $5,000. His alleged irregularities occurred while he was former owner of the Cottage City Motor Co. At this time he lived in Mount Rainier.

Later he moved to Washington, where he is said to be operating a garage near Ninth and O streets northwest. He was arrested by H. L. McCormick, chief of police of Cottage City.

The Seat Pleasant Volunteer Fire Department will give a dance Friday night at the Beaver Dam Country Club in an endeavor to pay off their remaining debt on 1,000 feet of hose recently purchased. Five hundred feet of it was destroyed in the $150,000 fire which destroyed the F. L. Watkins lumber yard last spring. A balance of $850 is still to be paid, it is said.

The Hyattsville Public Library loaned an average of three books to every man, woman and child in the town last year, according to the annual report of the librarian, Mrs. James E. Steele. This is said to be nearly as high as the average loaned by public libraries here. A total of 12,990 books was loaned.

Charles W. Clagett was reelected president of the board of trustees of the institution at the same meeting. C. D. Anderson was elected vice president. In place of Mrs. C. J. Pierson, Miss Flora Davis was chosen secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Pierson had served for seven years, since the establishment, in fact, of the library, and asked be relieved. The board also decided to buy new books as soon as money was available.

L. L. Powers was selected as president of the Hyattsville Horticultural Society at its last meeting, and Dr. J. B. S. Norton was chosen vice president. Mrs. John Harlan is the secretary.

Dr. Norton and Prof. W. R. Ballard, both of the University of Maryland, led a round table discussion on the cultivation of the iris.

Another step looking to the lowering of electric rates in the territory served by the gas and electric company and the Annapolis and Chesapeake Bay Power Co., has been taken by John R. Riggles, chairman of the Federation of Citizens Associations of the county, who wrote to the Public Service Commission of Maryland.

Riggles asserts that both companies are subsidiaries of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co., of Baltimore, and that, therefore, the subsidiaries should give the same rates as are made in Baltimore. Mr. Riggles asked for a hearing before the commission.

$500,000 Alienation Suit Compromised

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 26 (A.P.).—A $500,000 alienation of affections suit filed against E. S. Romine, wealthy oil and real estate man, by Herman Arbense, former city and State engineer, was settled out of court today. Arbense charged Romine alienated the affections of his wife. He obtained a divorce last year.

The suit was scheduled for trial in circuit court today. The settlement was announced after a two-hour conference of attorneys. One condition of the agreement was that the terms of settlement should not be made public.

King Zogu to Visit Vienna.

Vienna, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The Associated Press was officially informed tonight that King Zogu of Albania will come to Vienna from Tirana soon to consult medical specialists. He will travel incognito and will remain in Vienna only a few days.
